19-25 Draft Will Start About Oct. 1, Chief Says

Liberal Deferment Policy Is Predicted By Hershey; Order Of Call Undecided

Drafting of American men 19 through 25 for a 21-month stretch in the armed forces will begin around October 1.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national Selective Service director, announced this tentative date yesterday as 18-year-olds flooded recruiting offices to sign up for one-year hitches.

By enlisting for 12 months, the teen-agers will not be subject to the longer draft when they reach their next birthday.

And from coast to coast they snapped up the bargain as it was offered for the first time yesterday.

Liberal Deferments Seen

General Hershey told a news conference yesterday that October 1 would be a conservative date for the beginning of the draft. Under the law, it cannot begin before September 22. Registration of men 18 through 25 will begin August 30, end September 18.

The draft chief said he favored drafting 25-year-olds first, but said this had not been decided yet. Neither, he continued, had the matter of deferments been worked out, but he hinted the exemptions would be liberal.

For example, he predicted that only about 8000 would be inducted out of a total of 1,200,000 men aged 25. He said deferments in this bracket would be more than liberal.

He said industry would not be hit very hard.

May Use Lottery

The method of selecting draftees will be either by age groups or by a form of lottery, Hershey said. This will be decided next week.

He explained why he favored the age group plan, calling men aged 25 first: because 100,000 of the 25-year-olds become 26 every month and are not eligible for the draft.

Draft machinery is being quickly whipped into shape for action in October. Hershey announced yesterday that 20 State directors already have been appointed by President Truman. He said the rest should be named in a few days.

All State chiefs were and will be recommended by Governors of their States.

D. C. Youths Line Up To Enlist for Year

Armed forces recruiting stations here accepted 33 18-year-olds yesterday toward their 120-man monthly quota for one-year hitches in the service.

Many more than enough applicants to fill the quota patiently waited their turn at Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps recruiting offices as enlistment got under way. Some youths, eager to volunteer now and escape the draft later, lined up at the offices yesterday morning long before they opened for business.

Here is a breakdown of enlistments by service:

The Army processed and enlisted nine 18-year-olds; Air Force enlisted seven. The Marine Corps signed up its 30-day quota of four youths, plus four additional volunteers for the following period. The Navy accepted 13 applicants, but has not sworn them in yet.

The one-year enlistment, which permits the youths to avoid the draft and longer service when they are 19, brought thousands of 18-year-olds to recruiting stations over the Nation yesterday. Under the draft law, 161,000 volunteers may be enlisted for the year's tour.

Navy recruiters, arriving for work at 7:30 a. m., found 18 youths already in line at the station at 14th and Pennsylvania ave. nw. Half an hour later, when processing got under way, the line had grown to 38. By noon, 58 youths had applied.

At the Army and Air Force station, 403 10th st. nw., Norman E. Turner, of 3616 Yuma st. nw., became the District's first Air Force

9 of 12 Indicted Reds Found; N.Y. to Echo With Propaganda

By John Chabot Smith

New York, July 21 (NYHT).—All but three of the 12-man national board of the Communist Party had responded to their indictments tonight while the party and its sympathizers began mobilizing propaganda machinery to make capital out of their predicament.

John Gates, 34-year-old editor of the Daily Worker, surrendered at noon, and Irving Potash, chairman of the New York joint board of the Fur and Leather Workers Union, announced his intention of appearing in court at 10:30 a.m. Thursday. William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist Party, and the five arrested here with him on Tuesday, posted their bail of $5000 each this morning after being released in their own recognizance Tuesday night. In Detroit Carl Winter, Michigan State chairman, posted $10,000 bail.

Still to be heard from were Robert G. Thompson, New York State chairman; Gus Hall, Ohio chairman, and Gilbert Green, Chicago district chairman. At Communist national headquarters, it was intimated that all would surrender peacefully.

"We're not going underground," a spokesman said.

The indictment of the entire 12-man national board of the Communist Party was understood to have completed this phase of the grand jury's work. If the indictments stand up in court and the 12 are convicted, all other persons who have joined the Communist Party with full knowledge of its purposes and methods will become liable for prosecution. Until a final determination is made in court, the Justice Department is reportedly satisfied to proceed against the leaders and let the followers wait. The grand jury was not discharged, however, and may be recalled if developments warrant it.

The trial is expected to open in October or November. If the Communists find it suits their propaganda purpose they may take advantage of legal procedures to spin the delay still longer. Preliminary motions will be argued at the hearing beginning August 23, when the defendants are expected to move that the indictments be dismissed as a violation of constitutional liberties. Thereafter they may ask for a bill of particulars to back up the indictment. In any case the next reg-

438 U. S. Workers Quit During Loyalty Probe

New England Conscience Wins

Blonde Leader of Spy Ring Credited With Reds' Arrests

New York, July 21 (AP).—The World-Telegram said today in a copyrighted article that a beautiful blonde's tip to the FBI on a large Russian spy ring led to the Federal grand jury investigation culminating in indictments of 12 top Communist officials.

The World-Telegram reported the following:

The unnamed woman, New England-born, suffered pangs of conscience and decided she could no longer sabotage her native country. Her fantastic story, incredible to FBI agents at first, turned out to be completely true.

She told the FBI that 50 Government employes of all ranks were members of the ring. The FBI still does not have enough evidence to indict but is remaining relentlessly on the trail of ring members. Their biggest stumbling block is that Federal courts still do not admit wire-tapping evidence.

The woman, graduate of a noted women's college and an official of a purported relief organization during the war, had been a minor Communist Party member for years. Gradually she was taken into Communist confidence and in the midst of the war, when her immediate superior died, found herself in control of the spy ring.

She was given information by some 50 men and women Government employes, all Communists, ranging from clerks to one man of near Cabinet authority. Nearly all, due to FBI pressure, no longer are on the Government payrolls.

Among the secrets the woman and her agents turned over to the Russians were the first plans of the B-29, still under wraps, and complete data on R-D-X, a plastic explosive. She furnished the Soviet with almost daily figures on American production of planes and other war material.

From a White House official she learned one day that American intelligence officers were about to break the Russian secret code—a break, incidentally, which might have informed American authorities of the existence of the spy ring. The Russians presumably quickly changed their code.

Working for the woman was a man high in the councils of the Office of Strategic Services who would meet the woman on a Wash-

Wallace Hits Red Arrests As Truman Election Strategy

By Francis M. Lemay

Philadelphia, July 21 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace hit at arrest of American Communist leaders today while his "new party" platform framers whipped together a tentative draft calling for public ownership of larger banks, railroads, and the power and gas industries.

In a statement issued through the party's convention headquarters here, Wallace described the Communist arrests as part of the Truman Administration's strategy of creating "Red scares." He said these "scares" are intended to frighten the American people into keeping the Administration in power.

He declared:

"They are another in a series of diversions created for Americans who are complaining about mounting inflation, the stupid bungling in Berlin and other problems."

Wallace predicted the courts will eventually throw out the law under which a New York Federal grand jury indicted 12 Communists on charges of advocating the violent overthrow of the American Government.

Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, chairman of the party's platform committee, disclosed something of the platform's domestic policy stand, as now written.

Besides calling directly for banks, railroads and power and gas industries to be publicly owned, it says the Government should take ownership also of industries "primarily dependent on Government funds and purchases."

Tugwell emphasized that the document will undoubtedly be changed before it is given Sunday to the Wallace convention for adoption. Witnesses testified in a steady stream all day, most of them representing small groups.

Tugwell did not name the industries primarily dependent on Government purchases but obviously such a list might include the aircraft and maritime industries.

One witness, Gerald Schaflander, director of the Pennsylvania Pro-

Marshall Disputes Aides' Story Of Reds in U. N. Sanctuary

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Marshall threw cold water yesterday on a story—told by members of his own department—of Communist agents hacking away at United States security under a shield of United Nations immunity.

But there were strong indications that Congress will delve deeper into the question anyway, maybe considering tighter restrictions on Soviet bloc representatives entering this country.

Marshall told a news conference he doesn't know of a single case in which a foreigner has come to this country for the United Nations and has threatened American security in any way.

The Secretary had been asked for comment on statements by two of his subordinates that hundreds of secret agents from behind the "iron curtain" may be stirring up trouble in the United States under United Nations credentials.

The State Department officials, Robert U. Alexander and William Harlow, gave their testimony to a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.).

Revercomb told the subcommittee staff by telephone from his home in Charleston, W. Va., yesterday to drive "full steam ahead" with its inquiry into subversive activities.

Later, Richard Arens, director of the subcommittee staff, an-

Short Session Of Congress Goal of GOP

High Command Aim Is 2 to 6 Weeks, With Windup on or Before Labor Day

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A congressional session of from two to six weeks, terminating on or before the traditional Labor Day start of the presidential campaign, is the tentative goal of the GOP high command.

This was learned here last night as the White House announced President Truman would personally deliver his curtain-raising message to a congressional joint session at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Republican leaders, who will hold a series of legislative conferences beginning Monday, are expected to agree on a limited "emergency" program.

This almost certainly will include some civil rights showdown, action on such noncontroversial measures as the U. N. loan, short term as opposed to long-range housing action, and possibly even some approach to the school aid problem.

Barring bad international news, highly placed GOP leaders were reported shooting for adjournment by Labor Day at latest, to permit normal campaign presentation of their case by presidential and congressional candidates.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross announced plans for Mr. Truman's personal appearance on the second day of the session before the Congress he lambasted before calling it back.

Ross said the President "is not asking or expecting Congress to enact the Republican platform" or to "go off on a wild goose chase."

Spotlighting anti-inflation and housing measures, Ross said, legislation sought by the President will consist mainly of bills already pending in Congress, much of it partly through the enacting process.

Democratic and Republican leaders were consulted on the second day, joint-session timing of Mr. Truman's address. Ross said the occasion was of sufficient importance to warrant face-to-face presentation, rather than delivery by a clerk.

In these other developments:

Senator Theodore F. Green (D., R. I.) tossed out another intima-

Reuniting Britons With Soviet Wives Stumps Bevin

London, July 21 (NYHT.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has given up trying to persuade Russia to allow the Russian wives of British subjects to join their husbands in Britain, he told the Commons today. There are about 12 wives involved in the dispute, which has been going on for more than a year.

"No useful purpose would be served by making further representations on this subject to Moscow at present," he said.

When Sir Thomas Moore, Conservative, accused Bevin of adopting a "policy of defeat" and urged him to "devise some suitable pressure" on the Soviet government to allow the wives to leave Russia, Bevin snapped:

"Are you suggesting I should declare war, or something of that kind? I have used all the pressure I can."

Tito Charges Cominform Revolt Plot

Soviet-Led Bureau Brought Yugoslavia Near Civil War, Premier Declares

By Osgood Caruthers

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 21 (AP).—Premier-Marshal Tito charged tonight that the Russian-led Cominform brought Yugoslavia to the verge of civil war.

Rejecting again the Cominform's "slanders" against the Yugoslav Communist Party, Tito said "antiparty persons" used the troubled atmosphere caused by the Cominform attacks on him to try to seize power in the country.

Closing an eight-hour speech to 2300 Yugoslav Communists at a party congress, Tito implied that he now has the situation in full control. He pledged the party will continue to follow the Marxist pattern and the line he and his partisan leaders have set for the complete socialization of Yugoslavia.

Tito Spoke 8 Hours 'To Benefit Youth'

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 21 (AP). — Premier-Marshal Tito spoke to his Communist Party followers for eight hours today. He concluded:

"I want to say to the youth of this country that I have been talking all day in the hope they will be benefited by my words."

Tito Cheered Wildly

The Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau) denounced Tito's government and party last June 28 as being highly nationalistic and anti-Russian. It said they were courting the Western powers, had departed from Marxism and had adopted the policies of the late Leon Trotsky, arch enemy of the present Russian Communist regime.

As his followers cheered wildly, Tito ended the long address with the statement:

"The party has honestly carried out its tasks and I am deeply convinced it will continue to do so."

Yugoslavia invited the Communist Parties of all eastern European nations in the Soviet orbit to send delegations to the present congress. However, following the lead of Moscow, they all turned down the bids.

Russian Friendship Sought

Tito said he wanted the friendship of the Russian Communist Party and promised to work toward improving relations with Moscow.

But he did not back down an inch from the position he has held since the Cominform attacked him.

He said Yugoslavia stands on all her policies, including cooperation for peace with countries outside the Russian bloc.

Referring to his charge that the Cominform tried to foment civil war in Yugoslavia and almost succeeded, Tito said two Communist leaders he purged last month were prime movers in attempting to start a civil war and almost succeeded.

He identified them as Sreten Zujovic, former Finance Minister, and Andrija Hebrang, former Minister of Light Industry and one-time president of the nation's planning commission. Both were arrested several days before the Cominform attack.

Tito had bitter comment for five Cominform countries whose rep-

$150,000 Fund for Sister

Pershing Will Names Group To Finish Work on Memoirs

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The last will and testament of Gen. John J. Pershing was made public yesterday.

Important provisions of the document follow:

1. A trust fund of at least $150,000 is set up to provide a life income of $6000 yearly for his sister, Miss Anna May Pershing of Lincoln, Nebr. Upon her death the fund itself will become the property of Francis Warren Pershing, the general's son and only surviving child, now residing at the Carlton Hotel here.

2. Secretary of State George C. Marshall will head a group to compile the memoirs of General Pershing for publication. They will also sort through his correspondence and papers for items of historical worth for preservation in the Library of Congress. The remainder will be destroyed.

3. A $10,000 bequest is given to Laramie County Hospital at Cheyenne, Wyo., as a memorial to his wife, Frances Warren Pershing and "my three little daughters," Helen Elizabeth, Ann Orr and Mary Margaret Pershing. The mother and children died in a fire at the Presidio, San Francisco, in 1915.

4. Most of the general's military equipment and decorations are to go to the Smithsonian Institution here.

The will signed on October 24, 1941, was filed in the District Court. Named as executors were Riggs National Bank, General Pershing's son, and Col. George E. Adamson, the general's aide for many years.

The size of the estate will not be made public until a petition for probate is filed here. This petition is now being readied, bank officials said.

However, Francis Warren Pershing said there was "no doubt" that the estate would be enough to carry out General Pershing's intentions. This would indicate it will be in excess of $200,000.

Colonel Adamson said General Pershing had worked for many years on his memoirs, which are 95 per cent completed. A volume of the memoirs was published in the 1930's.

The will specifies that the contract for publication and any income from it shall become a part of the estate.

To aid Secretary Marshall in the book's preparation, the will named Col. John Callan O'Laughlin, publisher of the Army and Navy Journal, Colonel Adamson and the general's son.

The son, in addition to getting the trust fund, receives General Pershing's wearing apparel, jewelry, personal articles, the Distin-

Clay Here for Talks On Berlin Situation; Sees Marshall Today

Secretary Declares America Will Not Be Intimidated on Rights in Germany

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

America's next move in the tense situation involving the Russian blockade of Berlin will get top consideration today at a series of conferences with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany.

Clay arrived by air last night, after a hurried trip from Frankfurt. He was met at Washington National Airport by a group of high-ranking Armed Forces officers. Today he will meet with Secretary of State Marshall at an early conference and later is expected to visit the White House to give President Truman a "fill-in" on latest developments.

Accompanying General Clay is Ambassador Robert Murphy, Clay's diplomatic adviser. Observers feel that out of conferences with these two will come many of the details of the report on the Berlin situation that President Truman will make to Congress when it reassembles.

Clay Won't Comment

Clay refused to discuss his impending report. As he stepped from his plane, he said:

"I have returned from Germany for a quick trip at the request of Secretary Kenneth C. Royall to report on the Department of Army on the German situation.

"There is nothing else I can say at this time."

Clay and Murphy will fly back to Berlin Sunday, presumably armed with new orders for dealing with the Russians.

Mr. Truman undoubtedly will have to seek additional funds to carry on the increased expenses of occupation in Germany due to the Berlin blockade. So far the United States has spent $1,500,000 on the airlift of supplies to Berlin with expenses piling up daily.

The New York Herald Tribune reported yesterday that it had learned that Great Britain has proposed that the Western powers offer, in return for Soviet lifting of the Berlin blockade, to negotiate with the Russians on all outstanding issues between the east and the west.

This proposal, the Herald Tribune learned, is embodied in the draft of a note which the British propose be sent to Moscow and which the British have submitted to the State Department for consideration.

Warning Is Repeated

Marshall yesterday emphasized to newsmen at his weekly conference what had already been expressed by his aides, that this country plans "to invoke every possible resource of negotiation and diplomatic procedure to reach an acceptable solution to avoid the tragedy of war for the world."

He prefaced that, however, with this definite statement:

"We will not be coerced or intimidated in any way in our procedures under the rights and responsibilities that we have in Berlin and generally in Germany."

As he closed his statement he reiterated that warning:

"I repeat again, we are not going to be coerced."

Is addition to receiving from General Clay a first-hand report on

Radical Socialist Andre Marie Asked to Form French Cabinet

Paris, July 21 (AP).—President Auriol called today on Andre Marie, a moderate rightist who almost died in a Nazi concentration camp, to form a new French government if he can.

The lean 50-year-old Marie, a Radical Socialist, announced he would seek a "government of Republicans," excluding Communists and De Gaullists. There were strong indications he would encounter serious difficulties in mustering the necessary 309 votes in the National Assembly.

The big question mark was the position of the Socialists who brought about the fall of Premier Robert Schuman Monday by insisting on a 40-million-dollar cut in the defense budget. Schuman's Popular Republican (MRP) headed a coalition cabinet.

Socialists and Radical Socialists are poles apart on economic doctrine.

The Socialists want a government-directed economy, while Radical Socialists favor giving the economy considerable freedom from government controls.

The Socialists at a caucus tonight decided their attitude toward Marie would be determined by his economic policy.

Marie told Radical Socialists tonight he would continue the financial and economic doctrine of his fellow party member, Finance Minister Rene Mayer, who has been a favorite target of Socialist criticism.

ANDRE MARIE
Trying to Form French Cabinet

It was difficult to see, therefore, how Marie could iron out the conflicting views.

The stand of the Catholic Popular Republicans of former Premier Schuman also was undecided. Many were reported friendly to Marie

Berlin Crisis A Powder Keg, Dewey Says

Could Be Touched Off By the 'Slightest Mismanagement'

Pawling, N. Y., July 21 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today pictured the Berlin crisis as a powder keg that could be touched off by the "slightest mismanagement."

The Republican presidential candidate gave reporters a verbal statement on the Russian blockade of the former German capital after a luncheon meeting with Harold E. Stassen at the Dewey farm here.

Stassen renewed his promise to campaign actively for Dewey.

"We talked at great length of the Berlin situation," Dewey said. "We're both deeply concerned over it. We share the view that it is serious and the slightest mismanagement, in view of the extremely unsatisfactory arrangements which exist, could have serious consequences."

Dewey said it was "a major concern of the Republican Party that this situation, like all difficult situations that exist in the world, must be handled with the greatest care and highest degree of skill.

"In order to find peaceful solutions, our greatest concern is honorably to preserve and build and strengthen the peace of the world."

Dewey was asked whether he agreed with the action now being taken by the American Government in Berlin, in conjunction with the British and French.

"We've discussed in great detail all the actions being taken," the Governor said.

He disclosed that he had been in daily telephonic communication with John Foster Dulles, his foreign affairs adviser, who has been participating in White House discussions on the Berlin problem.

Asked if he had any criticism of the Truman Administration's handling of the Berlin crisis, Dewey said, "There will be no enlargement on what I have already said."

The Governor said he had discussed with Stassen the special

Jets Span Atlantic in 4 Hrs., 40 Min.

16-Plane Squadron Reaches England On Way to Germany

Odiham, England, July 21 (AP).—Sixteen jet-propelled fighter planes of the United States Air Force landed today after a trail-blazing crossing of the Atlantic which their commander called easy.

The squadron made the ocean crossing of 2193 miles from Goose Bay to Stornoway, Scotland, in 4 hours and 40 minutes flying time. Average speed was more than 430 miles an hour.

British Vampire jet planes, making the first crossing in the opposite direction recently against strong headwinds, needed 8 hours, 18 minutes.

Lieut. Col. David Schilling, the commander, said "We had no real difficulty. We had one bad spot of weather at Goose Bay, Labrador. The engine of one of the planes had to be changed."

In their first west-east crossing of the Atlantic by jets, the Shooting Stars covered a total of 4288 miles in 10 hours and 40 minutes actual flying time.

The planes are en route to Germany to reinforce United States air strength.

First to reach Colonel Schilling was British Air Marshal Sir James Robb, who slapped Schilling on the shoulder and said, "Well done." Then the air marshal noticed a motto on the fuselage of the colonel's plane, "Ready and Waiting."

"You can take it from me, sir," said Schilling, "we are really ready."

The Shooting Stars were accompanied by two B-29 Superfortresses two C-54 transports, a B-17 Flying Fortress and a C-47 transport.

The result underlined a prime strategic point—modern United States jet fighters now are only a few hours from any sudden trouble in this part of the world. The Shooting Stars have a range of 1100 miles and return.

Charles A. Lindbergh made his first solo crossing of the Atlantic in 33½ hours from New York to Paris.

Radio Contempt Action Draws National Broadcasters' Attack

Contempt citations against five Baltimore radio stations and a news commentator for broadcasts in the Eugene H. James case yesterday took on the aspects of a national issue.

A sharp attack on the citations issued by the Baltimore Supreme Bench came from Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters and former associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

"The Supreme Court of the United States," said Judge Miller, "already has indicated in several decisions that the old English court rule with regard to contempt, as practiced in Baltimore, does not have proper application under the Constitution of the United States."

Named in the contempt citations, which stem from newscasts about James and his confessions to the murders of Marsha Brill in Baltimore and Carol Bardwell in Washington, are Baltimore radio stations WITH, WBAL, WCBM and WFBR, Essex, Md., radio station WSID, and James Connolly, news editor of WITH.

The citations are based on a 1939 court rule, which prohibits, among other things, publication or broadcast of any statement made by a defendant before his trial, any account of his action after arrest, or anything "tending in any man-

New Polio Drug Speeds Recovery Of Houston Cases

Houston, Tex., July 21 (AP).—Doctors at the city-county Jefferson Davis Hospital today confirmed reports that polio patients treated with thiazolyl, a new sulfa-type drug, are up and walking around.

They also said the acute illness period of patients treated with the drug is being cut as much as one-quarter of the usual five-to-eight-day period.

The doctors, who declined to be quoted by name, warned, however, against over-optimism.

"We feel that the drug is doing some good," one of them said, "but we just want to be sure before we make any claims."

Use of the drug here and at the John Sealy Hospital at the University of Texas school of medicine at Galveston was disclosed last Saturday.

Jefferson Davis officials said "more than 40" patients have been treated locally with thiazolyl—also known as "drug No. 2"—and another new drug, aureomycin.

First Youth to Join Air Force for Year Temporarily Sidetracks Accounting Goal

Eighteen-year-old Norman E. Turner is a husky, handsome, likable lad with a quiet ambition to become an accountant. At his age, the world lies before him.

Yesterday, along with youths his age over the United States, he went out to meet the world. He was the first District youth to join the Air Force under the one-year enlistment setup in the Draft Act.

Norman got up early yesterday. He left his home at 3616 Yuma st. nw., went downtown, and was standing at the recruiting office at 7 a. m. He was a civilian when he bid his parents goodby, and an airman when he returned.

That was after Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding general of the Military District of Washington, swore him into the service at the Pentagon. In a soft, steady voice, he repeated after the General:

"I, Norman Eglin Turner, a citizen of the United States, do solemnly swear . . ."

And so, to become an accountant, Norman soon will be on his way to Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, where the Air Force will teach him about ordnance—machine guns, 20-millimeter guns, bombs. He will serve his country a year inside its continental limits.

Perhaps a year from this fall he will return to Southern Methodist University to resume his studies. He has finished his freshman year there.

Norman represents a new generation of American men to go into the service. He was born October 5, 1929, in San Antonio. Nine years ago his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David A. Turner, moved to Washington, bringing Norman and his sister, Betty, with them. Turner is an attorney with the Veterans' Administration.

Since then, Norman was graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School, put in his year at Southern Methodist, and generally lived the life of any youth his age.

The 5-foot 10-inch, 161-pound recruit has no idea what he's in for as a serviceman. Next week he will hear "veterans" of maybe a month's service laugh at him with the ancient taunt: "You'll be sor-r-r-y." He's not worried, he says.

Norman has no special reason for enlisting, other than to get his time in now. As for the one-year term, he's optimistic. "I think it's a good deal," he says.

He had to talk his parents into letting him enlist. "I had to argue with 'em a little bit," he says. "But before long they came around."

The 18-year-old will take a seven day delay en route before leaving the District to straighten a few things out. It seems there's a girl here.

It turns out, though, that the one-time Texan has another girl in Dallas, and still another in San Antonio. He likes the one here best, he says, blushing, but . . .

Maybe the Air Force won't be too bad after all, Norman thinks.

Leahy Heads D. C. Draft Setup Again

William E. Leahy, Washington attorney who was wartime head of the District Selective Service, yesterday was officially named director of the forthcoming draft here.

Leahy's appointment came from Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national Selective Service director, under authority of an executive order issued Tuesday by President Truman.

General Hershey also named Col. Henry C. Stanwood, of Baltimore, to direct the Maryland draft. Colonel Stanwood held that post during the late war. General Hershey has not appointed the Virginia draft head.

Contacted in Baltimore yesterday, the Maryland Selective Service chief disclosed that draft boards will be set up in Bethesda, Rockville, Silver Spring, Upper Marlboro and Hyattsville.

Colonel Stanwood announced that Maryland will have a total of 66 draft boards, at "30 or 31" locations over the State, and manned by persons who served on draft boards in World War II. Office space has not been selected yet, he said.

To serve different portions of Prince Georges County, two draft boards will be located at Upper Marlboro, he revealed. The city of Baltimore will have 26 boards.

Leahy said he would announce some District draft plans Monday.

Services Sign 18-Year-Olds

one-year man after waiting since 7 a. m.

Turner, whose father is a Veterans' Administration attorney, was sworn in at 2:30 p. m. in a ceremony at the Pentagon by Maj. Gen. Hobart Gay, commanding general, military district of Washington.

All told, the Army and Air Force took 40 applications yesterday, and reported a large number had come in to inquire about the one-year program. An officer there said he expected an even larger number today.

Some of the Navy 18-year-olds likely will be en route to Great Lakes Naval Training Station, outside Chicago, on Friday, according to Lieut. Comdr. Richard T. Fahy, officer in charge of the Navy recruiting station. He said Navy applicants, after being accepted, are permitted to adjust their affairs before being sworn in. After that, they are on their way.

Capt. George S. Plantier, of the Marine Corps station, said the four Marine enlistees also would be sent out Friday. They will go to Parris Island, S. C.

The Army, according to Col. Raymond Kenny, who is in charge of the office here, has placed its nine men under immediate orders for Fort Dix, N. J. The may take a seven-day "delay en route" if necessary.

The same is true, he said, of Air Force recruits, who will be shipped to Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Tex.

Keep New Guinea Boundaries, U. S. Asks

Lake Success, N. Y., July 21 (U.P.).—The United States asked Australia in the United Nations trusteeship council today not to annex New Guinea.

American delegate Francis B. Sayre told the council Australia "must not try to obliterate" the boundaries of New Guinea, which the Melbourne government governs jointly with Papua, an Australian possession. Australia governed New Guinea before the war under a League of Nations mandate.

Family 'Committee' Greets General Clay

B-29s Train By Bombing Helgoland

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 21 (AP).—United States B-29 Superfortresses from Germany engaged in a bombing-training mission over the island fortress of Helgoland today, the United States Air Force announced.

The once-fortified island of Helgoland is off Germany's northwest coast.

The bombers took off from the Bavarian base at Fuerstenfeldbruck at 6 a. m. and returned shortly before 12:30 p. m.

An Air Force spokesman said a squadron—up to 12—of the big bombers took part in the practice mission.

He said high explosive bombs were dropped on the island—formerly a base for Nazi submarines.

69 Jets To Leave Today For Scotland

Balboa, Canal Zone, July 21 (AP).—The American escort carrier Sicily leaves for Glasgow, Scotland, tomorrow with 69 Shooting Star jet fighter planes, scheduled for duty in Germany.

The planes, which are due to arrive in Glasgow August 4, belong to the Thirty-sixth Fighter Wing, based at Howard Field here. Its 84 fighters will be stationed in Europe.

The Sicily is preceded by the Army transport Barney (Kirschbaum), which sailed for Bremerhaven by way of Glasgow July 15, carrying 15 jets from the Thirty-sixth Wing.

The Sicily will have 620 Air Force personnel aboard and enough spare parts to maintain the fighters until a new base is set up in Wiesbaden, Germany, where they will operate.

History to Be Rewritten

London, July 21 (U.P.).—The Cambridge University Press announced today that it would publish a completely rewritten Cambridge Modern History. The first volume is to appear in 1950. The 13-volume history was last revised in 1934.

Still Not Reliable

Reds Distrust Czech Army After Purge

Heidelberg, July 21 (AP).—Escaped Czech Gen. Antonin Hasal said today the Czechoslovak air force has been riddled by desertions and the army purged of 1200 officers but still is not trusted by the Russians.

He declared he saw no hope of his country being liberated from the Communists except by war or operations of the Marshall Plan, and that he saw no signs that the Russians want war.

The 55-year-old former deputy chief of staff and military adviser to former President Benes slipped out of Czechoslovakia with his wife, son and daughter the night of July 2. He made these statements at United States Army headquarters here:

As many as 70 per cent of the enlisted men and noncommissioned officers in the Czech army are opposed to communism.

About 1200 officers have been purged from the army by the Communists. Several generals have been arrested.

At least 14 of the 120 generals have escaped from the country.

Hundreds of anti-Communist pilots in the air force have fled, and the air force is "very weak."

In case of war " I doubt that the present Czech regime or the Soviets could rely upon the Czech army . . . some forces would certainly try to operate with the West."

Consequently, the Russians are not integrating the Czechs into their armed forces.

The Russians have "taken over for themselves" the uranium-producing areas near Jachimov in northern Czechoslovakia, and are reported to be working 7000 German prisoners in the mines. Large quantities of ore are being shipped to Russia.

Russian motorized units could sweep over the country within 24 hours.

Another general, Mikula Ferencik, escaped to the American zone with Hasal.

Hasal named Gen. Alois Likka and Gen. Mirko Vesel as other generals recently escaped, and Karl Janousek, former air vice marshal, and Gen. Heliodor Pika, former deputy chief of staff, as generals who have been arrested.

U. S., Russia Reported in Rubber Fight

London (Thursday), July 22 (AP).—The financial editor of the London News Chronicle said today the United States and Russia were actively competing for the world's supply of rubber.

The effect has been, he wrote, to send up the price over the last three months from one shilling to one shilling three and one-eighth pence (20 cents to just over 25 cents) a pound.

"Russian buying began about three months ago," the article said.

"The United States have set out to build up a strategic reserve of rubber of 700,000 tons—worth nearly 100 million pounds (400 million dollars). They can finance a part of these purchases out of European currencies which are to be deposited as a counterpart of European recovery plan grants.

". . . A few weeks ago rubber merchants in London were given to understand by their American agents that the United States was prepared to outbid any order for the purchase of rubber made on Russian account. As a result no rubber has been sold to Russia by London for the past month but the price has been creeping steadily up."

French Crash Kills 8

Toulon, France, July 21 (U.P.).—Eight army men were killed today when a French army Wellington bomber crashed in the sea 75 miles off the Mediterranean coast on a flight from Africa. Navy seaplanes rescued the remaining five men on the plane.

session of Congress which opens Monday.

To Use Stassen Organization

Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota and unsuccessful candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, interrupted his vacation to accept Dewey's invitation to see him here.

Dewey told reporters he and Stassen "discussed the organization of the campaign thoroughly and worked out the plans for bringing Governor Stassen's organization into active leadership and participation in the campaign."

"That includes both the people who ran his national (preconvention) campaign and leaders in States and localities," Dewey said.

"It is his desire and mine and the national committee's that the party have the benefit of the skill and leadership of members of Governor Stassen's fine organization."

Stassen held a news conference after Dewey had finished. Asked if he planned all-out support of Dewey, he said. "Yes, that's my position and intention."

He said he would take his speaking cues from addresses to be made by the GOP standard bearer.

As to the special session, Stassen said, "Everyone's agreed it was called as a sort of a peevish and desperate move by the President."

D. C. Area's First Recruits Under Draft Law

the Berlin blockade, high officials here are expected to urge him to tighten controls over the statements of other Americans in Germany.

It is known that concern is felt here over what one official recently termed "sounding off" by officials and visitors abroad.

This has given rise, they fear, to public belief that our officials abroad, particularly in Germany, are disposed to get tough with Russia.

French May Delay Decision

In contradiction, it has been emphasized in recent days that this country plans to exhaust every possible resource of diplomacy and negotiation to avoid a clash of arms. They are determined that any overt act of war shall not be precipitated by America.

What the next step in the negotiations will be, Marshall declined to discuss. But a dispatch from London yesterday reported that Great Britain has sent Washington a tentative draft of a new protest to Russia.

Whatever this country does, it is almost certain to be done in concert with the British, and also the French. It may be delayed, however, pending formation of a new French government and a decision in Paris as to the new government's policy. All three have acted in cooperation to date, and officials here indicate they expect that cooperation to continue.

Among the other "resources of diplomacy and negotiation" that might be undertaken is an appeal to the United Nations. If such action were taken, and the Russians remained obdurate, that action might lay the basis for more forceful moves later on.

Officials here are definitely trying to "play down" suggestions of trying to bull our way through with armored convoys of supplies to Berlin.

They also take a dim view of suggestions that sanctions may be taken against Russia, such as closing the Panama and Suez Canals, or "freezing" Soviet vessels in Western ports.

Marshall's words yesterday added up to the fact that the United States wants a peaceful settlement, and that crashing the Berlin blockade by a rail or truck convoy doesn't figure in the plans.

House Group May Get Report From Clay

Canton, Ill., July 21 (AP).—Representative R. B. Chiperfield (R., Ill.) said today that members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee have a tentative call to get a first-hand report Friday from Gen. Lucius Clay on the Berlin crisis.

Chiperfield said the call for a committee meeting at 9:30 a. m. (EST) Friday had come from Representative Charles Eaton (R., N. J.), chairman of the committee.

U. S. Trains Its Troops In Germany

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Grafenwohr, Germany, July 21. Major combat units of the United States Army in Germany are undergoing intensive training here in an effort to convert quickly from occupational to fighting forces.

They are engaged in everything from bridge-building to "withdrawal actions," two military skills they may need. And while the soldiers know they may face a new Bataan if war broke out, no one seems concerned.

Corpl. Elmer F. Burriss, formerly of 2813 5th st. ne., says "no one or anyway not more than one or two of the fellows are worried about the Russkies. We kid a lot about going to Russian salt mines, but what the hell."

Burriss, whose wife now lives in Mine Run, Va., is a veteran of New Guinea and the Philippines.

First Lieut. Ben L. Landis of 1345 Kennedy st. nw., a constabulary officer stationed on the Russian border said his outfit was "too busy to think about Russians."

Lieut. Thomas Callagy of 220 S. Lee st., Alexander, declared, "no one's worried. I guess patrolling the Russian border, we're too close to it."

Since April 1, the beginning of the present crisis over Berlin, the First Infantry Division has been under continuous field training to get ready for any eventuality. Newly formed regiments of the United States Constabulary, formerly divided into small police units, also have been sent here in the last four months for retraining. For it is no secret that the state of training of the First Division and the Constabulary today, after three years of occupational and housekeeping duties, is not yet satisfactory.

This is not only known to the Russians but can be deduced by any alert reader of Stars and Stripes, the official Army newspaper. It is not a sign of neglect, but rather the inevitable situation when soldiers are maintained in garrison rather than in field training. Encamped at this old Prussian maneuver area only 18 miles from the Czechoslovakian border, the United States troops are receiving realistic-type training matching that given here in the past to Bismarcks, legions and Hitler's Wehrmacht.

"By the end of September," said Gen. F. W. Milburn, commander of the First, "we'll have a fighting division instead of an occupational division. We'll be well trained and ready for any thing they want us to do."

One Excellent Regiment

One of First Division's three regiments, the Twenty-sixth Infantry, is in excellent shape. Milburn, pleasant hardbitten former leader of the Twenty-first Corps in the fighting through France and Germany, calls it "the best damn division in the Army." But Eighteenth Infantry Regiment until recently has been "palace guard" at Frankfurt headquarters and three other commands. After several weeks of training they are shaping up well.

The other regiment of the division, however, has just been formed. Taking the name of the famed Sixteenth Infantry, it is composed of men drawn from MP battalions, quartermaster companies, headquarters clerks, etc., all over the European Command. Officers of the Sixteenth say only about 10 per cent of the men are infantrymen and some never shot a rifle.

Many soldiers including some war veterans gripe about getting assigned as "foot soldiers."

Now engaged in individual and small-unit training, the regiment must go through intermediate and advanced work to be ready for planned European Command meneuvers in September.

Philip Seated in Lords

London, July 21 (U.P.).—Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, took his seat in the House of Lords at a colorful ceremony today while his wife Princess Elizabeth watched proudly.

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, July 21 (NYHT.).—The Russians today began an all-out attempt to use food, fuel and other materialistic inducements to woo the west-sector Berlin away from western ideological concepts and to bring them into the Soviet camp.

They announced that on August 1, Soviet-provided food—including a ration higher than that available in the west sector—would be ready for distribution to all Berliners. On the same date, the announcement said, "additional grants of power to subways and streetcars are contemplated" in order to help transport the population. The Russians also hinted that certain west sector factories might gain grants of Soviet coal if they played the Russian game.

The first reaction of west sector Berliners was to reject the intensified Soviet drive to gain control of the entire city.

Cheering thousands shouted approval at a rally today when Otto Suhr, speaker of the Berlin municipal assembly, said that in a free election "80 to 90 per cent of the population would prefer the hardships of the present Soviet blockade to permitting the Russians to take over sole control of the city."

Similar scenes were enacted in other rallies throughout the city where massed thousands demonstrated in favor of resisting the Soviet. The Soviet German news agency A. D. N. said tonight that Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Soviet military governor, has agreed in principle to give some power to an electric apparatus plant in the British sector. The request for the power was made by the Communist-led Industrial Workers Union.

It was tantamount to saying, "Play the Communist line and you will get a break."

Soviet attempts to harass Allied pilots flying into the city were kept up today as Soviet fighter planes were reported seen in unusual force in the Frankfurt-Berlin corridor. No incidents have occurred.

Clear weather brought in a total of 451 British and American flights, with the American planes carrying a record tonnage of nearly 1600 tons.

Bevin Sees Peaceful Berlin Settlement

London, July 21 (NYHT.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin hinted today at rising optimism that there will be a satisfactory settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Returning from the five-nation Western Union conference at the Hague, Bevin appeared in the Commons to answer questions relating to the Western powers and Russia.

Bevin's replies were cautious but obviously intended to relax the situation. Pressed by a Conservative to consider publication of a white paper on Anglo-Soviet relations in Germany, he said: "To begin digging up everything at this moment when other things are happening . . ."

He paused, then he interjected, parenthetically, "or we hope they are happening," and concluded: "This is not quite the appropriate moment for it."

Britain Joins In New Note To Moscow

London, July 21 (AP).—The British joined in preparing a new diplomatic note to Moscow tonight and began polishing their air defenses as concern sharpened over the international situation in Berlin.

This concern was shown in the decision to adjourn rather than end the present Parliament session July 30.

A responsible official said a new note protesting the Berlin blockade had been drafted by British, American and French diplomats here and may be sent to Moscow in a few days. The informant hinted it may give way to the Russians on one point—offering to broaden proposed four-power talks to cover several other German problems besides Berlin.

The decision to adjourn Parliament, reported to Commons by Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, makes it possible for Parliament to be called back into action on 24 hours' notice.

Parliament is scheduled to quit work July 30 and return September 13.

The air ministry ordered large-scale Royal Air Force exercises over southern England for Sunday in conjunction with a test of Britain's wartime air-raid observation service.

Approximately 100 RAF planes, about half of them Meteor and Vampire jet fighters, will take part in the Sunday exercises. More than 3000 members of the air-raid observation corps will man their stations for the day.

The foreign office announced that Britain "has no plans for the present" of abandoning the air lift to Berlin—whether or no the Russians make good their promise to supply good to Germans in the city's western sectors.

U. S. Seeking Talks On Korea Dispute

Seoul (Thursday), July 22 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge said today he is willing to permit South Koreans to negotiate with their countrymen in Russian-occupied North Korea for settlement of the long-standing electric power dispute.

The supply of hydroelectric power from the north was cut off May 14. The Russians said the United States had failed to pay the bill. They ignored Hodge's protests and said any negotiations would have to be with the Soviet-sponsored North Korean Peoples' Council.

The American occupation commander refused to deal with the council. He said it was a scheme to get the United States to recognize the Russian puppet government in the north.

However, Hodge disclosed he had written the Russian commander, Maj. Gen. S. P. Merkulov, on July 12, and proposed:

1. Immediate resumption of power supply to the south.

2. That the Soviet command send a representative to Seoul, United States occupation headquarters, to accept delivery of equipment stockpiled here for payment of the power.

3. That the Russians send fully authorized representatives of the Soviet command, or agents properly accredited by the Soviet command, with full power to act on its behalf for the settlement of the power problem.

His letter made no reference specifically to the North Korean peoples' council, but the Russians had said previously that the council was authorized to handle the power matter.

Greeks Launch New Campaign

Athens, Greece, July 20 (U.P.).—The Government has launched the second phase of its north mountain campaign against rebel leader Markos Vafiades. The first phase cut into Markos' territory and manpower and brought forth one peace feeler.

As the second phase, a valley-by-valley mop-up, got under way, the general staff announced these results of the first month's fighting:

1. Capture of 100 villages.

2. Occupation of two-thirds of Markos' territory.

3. Elimination of an estimated one-half of Markos' troops. The figures were 1162 killed, approximately 4600 wounded and 357 captured.

The Greek army said it had lost 360 killed, 1952 wounded and 30 missing.

Tito Hits Back at Cominform

resentatives signed the attack on Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia has been helping Albania economically "to our own detriment," Tito said.

He pointed out that Yugoslavia "is writing off $25,000,000 reparations to the brotherly Bulgarian republic—writing off the largest part of our people's property plundered in Yugoslavia by Bulgarian Fascists and . . . passing over all that happened in the past."

"Is that nationalism?" he asked ironically.

For Romania, Tito said, Yugoslavia spared 2000 railway carloads of wheat during the 1946 drought "while our own people were dying." He added that Yugoslavia helped feed Poland in 1947 and Czechoslovakia this year.

"And what are the representatives of these countries doing today at the information bureau session—signing a resolution in which we are pharisaically reproached for pursuing an incorrect policy with our population's food supply," he said.

However, he said, Yugoslavia looks to Russia "for reliance and protection." Yugoslavia's working people and Communists, he said, "will never forget what we were taught by our party—that our reliance and protection should always look to the Soviet Union, the all union Communist Party, and its leader, great Stalin."

With every fact and figure recited as the day wore on, Tito shoved Cominform charges back with hard jabs.

He charged the Cominform with having "called for civil war in our country . . . annihilation of our country," and demanded "what has our country done all of a sudden for such a drastic campaign to be started against it?"

"Is it possible," he continued, "that because of the accusations contained in the information bureau's resolution—even if they were true—those very countries with which we have maintained not only normal but even allied, friendly relations start throwing at our country and our peoples such terrible slanders?"

Tito's speech in a suburban assembly hall, which was ringed with troops and antiaircraft units, was greeted with tremendous ovations by the 2300 delegates. Most of them served with him as partisans during the war.

When he appeared on the rostrum the delegates shouted his name for five minutes. The applause again was ear-shattering when he spoke of the struggle to liberate Yugoslavia. Many times he had to wait while the delegates shouted, "Tito, Tito, Tito."

When he told of how the Red army came to help in the liberation the crowd screamed "Tito, Stalin—Tito, Stalin."

Tito said he proposed to answer anly the three charges contained in the Cominform attack of June 28 "that we consider most harmful."

1—That of "turning away from the Soviet Union and the countries of peoples democracy."

2—"That we are nationalists and not internationalists."

3—"That we have renounced the teachings of Marxism-Leninism."

The Yugoslav Premier made no apologies for himself or his followers. Recounting the history of the Yugoslav Communist Party he said 'it was founded on Marxist-Leninist lines. He said it had gone through purges, strikes and organization changes and had climaxed its efforts by leading the struggle for national liberation.

The peoples' uprising in Yugoslavia was "organized and led only by our Communist Party of Yugoslavia," he said. "That uprising had as its aim, besides the struggle of the peoples of the Soviet Union, who at that time, completely alone, carried the entire burden of the struggle on their own shoulders."

This last was in reply to criticism from Cominform countries charging him with over-emphasizing the heroic struggle of the Yugoslavs and belittling the role played by the Soviet Union in winning the war.

"I have underlined all this," he said, "in order to prove that at the call of Comrade Stalin to the struggle against the Fascist conquerors in 1941, only the peoples of Yugoslavia answered that call, and not only answered it, but had even before that call joined the struggle, considering it their duty."

Tito's point that "only" the people of Yugoslavia answered the call of the Soviet Union was an indirect reference to the Communist rulers of neighboring countries who sought refuge in Moscow during the German occupation.

He lashed out at leaders of the old Yugoslav government who flew to England to set up a refugee government.

"I have underlined all that, also," he continued, "for reasons to once again remind our former allies in the west who at the peace conferences have not taken as friendly an attitude toward us as should be shown an allied country, who have not taken into consideration our enormous contribution and our enormous sacrifices, have not taken into consideration the fact that ourselves and ourselves alone—the national liberation movement—have waged an uncompromising and most severe struggle from May, 1941, right to the end of the war against the common enemy. Without respite we waged that struggle."

but uneasy over his pronounced anticlerical views.

Marie's colleagues said he wanted former Premier Leon Blum, elderly Socialist, for Foreign Minister and former Premier Paul Reynaud, a rightist, as Finance Minister. These sources said both had accepted the offer.

Blum would replace Popular Republican Georges Bidault, who has directed French foreign policy almost continuously since the liberation.

Marie expected to spend the night conferring with party leaders and drafting a policy for his government.

China's Navy Set to Attack In Manchuria

Nanking, July 21 (AP).—"Strong units" of China's young American-trained navy have been ordered to attack the Communist-held Manchurian port of Yingkow, competent military sources said today.

They said it appears the government may attempt an amphibious operation to recover a supply port for the armies of Gen. Wei Li-huang which yesterday were reported 25 miles north of Yingkow in a drive down from Mukden.

Meanwhile refugees reaching Peiping from Taiyuan, capital of Shansi Province, said the city's south airport had been captured over the weekend.

The north airport was still functioning, they reported, but confusion and panic reigned with people paying "any price" for seats on departing planes.

Among the refugees were eight Americans, who said four American women missionaries at Fenchow were missing. The missing women are the Misses Emma Noreen, Brainerd, Minn.; Gladys Williams, Oberlin, Ohio; Mary De War, East Orange, N. J., and Louise Meebold, whose address is unknown.

The eight evacuees who arrived in Peiping today were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wampler and two children, Joseph and Eugene, Harrisonburg, Va.; Oliver C. Sollenberger, Los Gatos, Calif.; John W. Detrick, Alliance, Ohio; William Statterthwaite, Yardley, Pa., and Nurse Isabel Hemingway of Washington, D. C.

D. C. Woman Is Daughter Of Mission's Founder

Miss Isabel Hemingway, daughter of the late Willoughby A. Hemingway, founder of the Oberlin Shansi Mission, has served for a number of years in the mission hospital.

The mission is operated by the Congregational Church and receives financial aid from Oberlin College, Ohio, alma mater of Miss Hemingway. The nurse was born at the mission. A sister, Mrs. Horace in Truesdell, formerly lived in Silver Spring.

Spaatz Will Join Newsweek Staff

New York, July 21 (AP).—Newsweek announced today that Gen. Carl (Tooey) Spaatz, 57, former Chief of Staff of the Air Force, would join its staff August 1 as air and military consultant and contributing editor.

Malcolm Muir, publisher of Newsweek, said Spaatz "will interpret significant air and military trends for Newsweek readers under his own signature and will confer regularly with the editors and staff on air and military affairs."

West European Union Opposes Show of Force in Germany

The Hague, the Netherlands, July 21 (AP).—The five member nations of the Western European Union have agreed on a course of action in the delicate German problem. They are reported opposed to any show of force against the Russians in Germany.

The Foreign Ministers of Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—members of the union—issued a communique yesterday at the close of the two-day session. It said they were in complete agreement on a "number of international problems of direct interest to the five countries, notably that of Germany."

The communique declared the members had decided to do everything possible to "defend their independence, integrity and institutions."

A conference informant said the five nations decided on a go-easy policy toward Russia in Germany because they wished to avoid the danger of a clash.

During the meeting here, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault presented two proposals for a political and economic federation of western Europe which would link the five nations closely with Norway, Sweden, Denmark, western Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Spain and Portugal.

Popular Front Ends in Italy

Rome, July 21 (AP).—Italy's popular front alliance of Communists and Socialists died quietly today.

The front, formed for last April's general elections, apparently will carry on in name only with Communist domination of a few small left-wing parties.

The Socialist Party's new secretary-general, Alberto Iacometti, said that as far as the Socialists are concerned the front "no longer exists."

At a Socialist national congress in Genoa last month it was decided to dissolve the front but continue cooperation with the Communists.

[The Italian senate adjourned tonight without taking a vote on a Communist demand the government resign because of its anti-Communist policy, alleged to have resulted in the attempt to assassinate Communist Leader Palmiro Togliatti. Togliatti's physicians said his condition was improving.]

Dutch Plane Crashes

London, July 21 (AP).—The British Air Ministry said tonight a Dutch naval plane had crashed in Scotland and that all six persons aboard were killed.

An Announcement by Newsweek

Effective August 1st,
GENERAL CARL SPAATZ, Retired, will join the Newsweek staff as air and military consultant and as Contributing Editor. He will interpret significant air and military trends for Newsweek readers under his own signature and will confer regularly with the editors and staff on air and military affairs.
One of America's pioneer airmen, "Tooey" Spaatz has had unparalleled experience in a career that saw him become Commanding General of the United States Strategic Air Force in the European Theatre, Commanding General of the Strategic Air Force in the Pacific Theatre, and finally the first Chief of Staff of the independent United States Air Force until his retirement this month at the age of 57. He brings to Newsweek an unexcelled reputation as aviation expert, air tactician, and world strategist.
This atomic era calls for thinking in new world-wide terms. Accordingly, the appraisals of one with General Spaatz's expert knowledge and broad-gauge concepts should prove indispensable reading for thinking Americans. Newsweek considers his appointment a major step forward in keeping with its credo that "A Well-Informed Public Is America's—and the World's—Greatest Security."

12 Communists Indicted Under 1940 Statute Fathered by Rep. Smith to Protect Security

By The Associated Press

The law that brought about the indictment of 12 Communist leaders by a special grand jury in New York is one of the prewar acts passed by Congress to protect internal security of this country.

The law is known as the Alien Registration Act of 1940 or the Smith Act. Its primary purpose was the registration of all aliens in the United States after the outbreak of war in Europe and before this country got into the conflict.

Sponsored by Representative Howard Smith (D., of Va.), it went on the statute books June 28, 1940.

One of its sections prohibits any act tending to bring about the violent overthrow of the United States Government or the local government of any political subdivision in the country, or to conspire to this end. Penalties provided for violations range up to 10 years in prison or $10,000 fine or both.

The section relating to violence against the Government reads:

"It shall be unlawful for any person:

"1. To knowingly or willfully advocate, abet, advise, or teach the duty, necessity, desirability, or propriety of overthrowing or destroying any government in the United States by force, or violence, or by the assassination of any officer of such government;

"2. With the intent of cause the overthrow or destruction of any government in the United States, to print, publish, edit, issue, circulate, sell, distribute or publicly display any written or printed matter advocating, advising, or teaching the duty, necessity, desirability, or propriety or overthrowing or destroying any government in the United States by force or violence;

"3. To organize or help to organize any society, group or assembly of persons who teach, advocate, or encourage the overthrow or destruction of any government in the United States by force or violence; or to be or become a member of, or affiliate with, any such society, group, or assembly of persons, knowing the purposes thereof."

9 Reds Reply To Indictment

ular term of the court does not begin until October 5.

It appeared the Communists intend to use the indictments and trial as the basis for an all-out propaganda campaign. The New York State party organization announced that the opening session of the party's fourteenth national convention would be turned into a "gigantic protest against the Reichstag fire frame-up and for the freedom of all arrested." The session will be held at Madison Square Garden on August 2, with an audience of 20,000 expected.

The Reichstag fire theme was echoed in other protests issued during the day by Communists and their sympathizers.

The Civil Rights Congress announced a $250,000 fund raising drive to pay for propaganda, the preparation of two million protest leaflets, and plans for 500 street meetings throughout the city on Tuesday.

The Communists also found a measure of support from the strictly non-Communist American Civil Liberties Union, in an open letter to Attorney General Tom C. Clark the union announced its intention of intervening in the case to attack the constitutionality of the Smith Act (Alien Registration Act of 1940) under which the men were indicted, and the indictment itself.

The letter said the indictment "on its face, in our judgment, violates every principle of freedom of speech and press." The union believes that "our concept of civil liberties . . . even belongs and must be applied to those who, if they were in power, would destroy it." The Rev. John Haynes Holmes, chairman of the board, Roger N. Baldwin, director, Arthur Garfield Hayes, counsel, and other officials of the union signed the letter.

Meanwhile, sensational stories circulating during the day about espionage plots described to the grand jury by an unnamed blonde woman received neither support nor denial from official sources. United States Attorney John F. X. McGohey, who prepared part of the evidence for the grand jury, said "I do not know anything about any woman before the grand jury—blonde or otherwise."

Bail for the six who appeared in court this morning was provided by the Civil Rights Congress, which is enlarging its bail fund in anticipation of future arrests. The others appearing with Foster were Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the party; John Williamson, national labor secretary; Jacob Stachel, chairman of the party's department of agitation, publication and education; City Councilman Benjamin J. Davis, jr., chairman of the party's legislative committee, and Henry Winston, organization secretary.

After posting bail they all adjourned to the press room to pose for newspaper and newsreel photographers and issue self-justifying statements. Foster called the arrests a frameup and a step toward fascism and war; Dennis said it was the Truman Administration, not the Communists, who advocated force and violence; Davis said his arrest was an attempt to "silence the only voice of the Negro people" in the city council; and Abraham Unger, counsel for the defendants, called the case "an outrageous use of the courts for political purposes."

An hour later Gates walked into the United States District Court Building on Foley Square, and inquired the way to the courtroom of Judge Vincent L. Leibell, before whom all the indictments and arraignments of the Communists have taken place. Finding the judge absent, he introduced himself to David Sweeney, the clerk, and said he was ready to give himself up. "I have a clear conscience," he said.

Borrows Red Necktie

The Daily Worker editor said he had known nothing about his indictment until he read it in the newspapers this morning. He said he spent Tuesday night "at the home of a friend."

Gates was in his shirtsleeves, wearing tan slacks. For his arraignment he borrowed a coat and red necktie from Robert W. Dunn, treasurer of the Civil Rights Congress, who had brought the $30,000 in United States Treasury bonds as bail for the other six Communists. Present at the arraignment were Frank H. Gordon, special assistant attorney general, and United States Attorney Irving Saypol.

Dunn had no more bail fund money with him, so Gates arranged a standard surety bond for his $5000.

Winter, arrested in Detroit, faces a hearing August 10 on his removal to New York for the trial. He said today that he did not know whether he would contest the removal proceedings and would not decide until he saw the indictment. A copy was dispatched to him by air from New York.

Seattle, July 21 (AP).—A "contempt of Legislature" citation was ordered today against Herbert J. Phillips, a member of the University of Washington philosophy department who has been on the Columbia University summer faculty.

The action was announced by the State Legislature's Un-American Activities Committee when Phillips refused to say whether he was or ever had been a member of the Communist Party.

None received money for their activities. They turned over the information because they were loyal members of the Communist Party. After informing the FBI, the woman retained many of her old associates for more than a year to give the FBI a chance to check her story.

Once, with FBI agents watching, she met a high official from the Soviet Embassy in Washington. She received an envelope containing several thousand dollars from him. The official came to New York to press the money on her because he believed she was weakening.

438 Resigned Jobs During FBI Probe

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported yesterday that of the 2,020,975 Federal employes checked under President Truman's loyalty program, 438 resigned during investigations by bureau agents.

He said full field investigations were needed in only 5510 of all cases processed and that 2632 of those were completed at the close of the 1948 fiscal year ended June 30.

In such cases examined so far, he said, 438 of the employes resigned during the studies and another 18 were found to be no longer on the Government payroll.

Hoover also reported that his bureau's activities during the past fiscal year enriched the Treasury by $54,327,283 in fines, savings on claims against the Government and recovery of money due.

He listed 9966 convictions, or 97.1 per cent of all persons brought to court by the FBI, among the bureau's accomplishments. Also listed was the location of 5250 Federal fugitives and the recovery of 11,262 stolen automobiles.

Marshall, Aides Differ

nounced that the Government's central intelligence agency is checking up on alleged subversive operations by U. N. employes. He said data from this inquiry may be available for him and his assistants today.

Members of the staff said they expect Congress to take some action at the special session beginning Monday in the direction of giving immigration authorities more power to keep "Red" agents out of the country.

Marshall said he hadn't studied the testimony of Alexander and Harlow in detail. But he said he had the impression that their testimony was contrary to his own information.

The Secretary said U. N. meetings could hardly be held in this country if our Government prohibited the entry of official representatives from abroad.

United States laws, Marshall added, permit action against any visitor who, outside his official duties, works against American security.

Harlow, chief of the State Department's diplomatic visa section, said Tuesday:

"I believe every representative of an iron-curtain country is here for one purpose—to disseminate propaganda. Their presence here is a threat to the security of the United States."

Similar testimony was given earlier by Alexander, assistant chief of the department's visa section.

They and several other Government officials said they didn't know what could be done to stop such allegedly subversive activity. John P. Boyd, deputy immigration commissioner, said "more careful screening" of visa applicants abroad might be the answer.

Alexander told the subcommittee that the foreign-agent question has been "brought to the attention of policy-making officials" of the State Department.

"It is under serious consideration and has been for some time," he said.

Charles M. Hulten, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State, told the Senate investigators "quite a number" of persons who ordinarily would be barred under immigration laws are in this country as U. N. employes.

But Hulten said he knew of no case "where saboteurs or spies have sought admission." He said the present machinery for admitting U. N. employes is working satisfactorily.

Lovett Blamed for Letting Undesirables Into U. S.

Charleston, W. Va., July 21 (AP).—Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.,) declared in an interview today that Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett was responsible for the admission of "many undesirable citizens into this country."

The Senator said this was brought out today at hearings in Washington before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee investigating immigration. Revercomb heads that committee.

Potent GOP Urged in Va.

Creation of a powerful Republican Party in Virginia was urged last night by Charles O. Pratt, Arlington attorney and candidate for the GOP congressional nomination from the Eighth Virginia District in the August 3 primary.

In a radio address over Station WARL, Pratt declared that Virginia "has almost no influence when the Nation and the world most need its historic leadership." He declared the reason for this lies "in large measure because its conscience has literally been mortgaged to one political party."

"So long as there is only one political party in Virginia," said Pratt, "all we Republicans can do is talk."

Promising not to "duck" any of the "other great issues" which now face the country, he said he stood "squarely in favor of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill."

Pratt declared that "with Russia threatening the peace of the world as she does today, it would be suicidal to fail to maintain and build adequate defenses." But he added that "there is grave danger of draining this country of resources to the point of exhaustion."

In organizational activities last night the Pratt-for-Congress Committee formed a women's division and elected officers to head the new branch. These included: Chairman, Mrs. Jessie B. Hutchison, Arlington; secretary, Mrs. Emma H. Kernan, Arlington, and treasurer, Mrs. Virginia Hastings, Alexandria.

Bodies of Ohio Prison Head and Family Found in Cornfield

Kidnaped Ohio Penal Official, Wife, Daughter Found Slain

Mansfield, Ohio, July 21 (AP).—The nude bodies of a veteran Mansfield reformatory executive, his wife and their 21-year-old daughter were found today in a cornfield, eight hours after they were kidnaped from their home.

Victims of the kidnap-slaying were John E. Niebel, 50, superintendent of the reformatory's farm for 20 years; his wife, 52, and their daughter, Phyllis.

Niebel had been shot through the head. Mrs. Niebel had bullet wounds in the head and abdomen. The daughter had black and blue marks about the head and face as if she had been beaten to death.

Coroner D. C. Lavender said the bodies, nude except for a pair of shoes worn by Mrs. Niebel, had been lying in the sun-swept cornfield about seven miles from here for several hours before being discovered.

The three victims, clad in their night clothing, had been kidnaped before dawn. The kidnapers ransacked the residence.

Empty purses of all three were found on a dining room table; a shotgun, rifle and revolver were missing.

Cigarette stubs were found snuffed into carpets on both the first and second floors. None of the family smoked.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson and other authorities were known to be working on a theory that the "Ambrose killers have struck again." Two former reformatory inmates are being sought for questioning in the July 9 killing of a Columbus tavern operator, Earl Ambrose.

Two Columbus men, Robert Murl Daniels, 24, and James Coulter West, 22, were identified by witnesses as the killer of Ambrose.

District Wallace Supporters Take Program to Convention

Henry Wallace supporters from the District of Columbia are carrying a many-planked program of District proposals to the Progressive Party convention which opens Friday in Philadelphia.

District home rule by proportional representation, and representation in the Senate and House, tops the list of a revised version of local proposals released yesterday by local Wallaceites.

Other planks:

"We declare an all-out war against discrimination because of race, color, creed or national origin. We will fight Jim Crow in all its forms, in or out of Government . . ."

"We demand the abolition by law of racial segregation in the public schools and recreational facilities, in all housing built, financed, or loan-secured by the Federal Government, in the National Guard, in the hospitals, and all other places of public accommodation whether publicly or privately owned."

The District group's platform also calls for a District fair employment practices committee, Government-built low-rent housing and slum clearance, a strengthened local rent control law and a Public Utilities Commission "responsible to the interests of the people."

Increases in public utility rates are flatly opposed, and "any (utility) which cannot or will not serve the people at reasonable rates should be placed under public ownership."

The third party supporters called for a reduction in milk prices and "adequate Government supervision" of the local milk shed. A local sales tax was strongly opposed.

For Federal workers, the proposals called for full unemployment benefits, full rights to join unions, and "substantial" pay increases.

Police Discover Fingerprints In Rape Attempt

Chicago, July 21 (AP).—Police today reported finding four clear fingerprints on the window sill of a hotel room where Mrs. Hilda Green, 39, was beaten yesterday. They will be compared with those of 55 Negroes detained without charge yesterday.

Mrs. Green, a Frederick, Md., school teacher, told police a Negro attempted to rape her after gaining entrance to her room through a window.

He threatened to kill her unless she submitted to his advances, she said. She ignored his threats and struggled until her assailant knocked her unconscious with a lamp and fled.

Wallace Assails Arrest of U. S. Communists

gressive Party, a branch of the Wallace movement, made a vigorous appeal for nationalization of the steel and coal industries.

Tugwell's announcement said the tentative draft states that "the cure for the excesses of private monopoly is democratic control through public ownership."

The tentative draft also calls for:

1. An expanded farm security program with Government credit at low interest rates for tenants, share croppers and small farmers.
2. Immediate repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law.
3. Establishment of regional river authorities along TVA lines.
4. Taking the profits out of inflation by controlling prices, squeezing out excessive profits and other methods.

A foreign policy plank, made public yesterday, calls for "Peace with Russia."

Wallace, hitting the arrest of the Communists, took up where C. B. Baldwin, his campaign manager, had left off earlier.

Baldwin had told reporters the arrests were a threat to "democratic rights," and "the first time in our history the Government has moved to outlaw a political party."

Brown said President Truman should send troops to the South to see that all Negroes are registered to vote. He said he believes if Wallace were President he would do just that. Brown proposed that the Wallace convention move to Washington to demand that the special Congress session pass civil rights laws.

The 74-member platform committee received Brown during hearings on a platform for their party's already-selected ticket—Wallace for President and Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho for Vice President. The hearings will continue tomorrow. The convention itself opens Friday night.

Rexford Guy Tugwell, one of the original New Deal "braintrusters" and chairman of the platform group, told reporters a preliminary platform draft declares that "capitalist America and Communist Russia can and must live together in the same world."

It would pledge the party "through negotiations and discussion with the Soviet Union, in good faith, to find areas of agreement to win the peace."

Baldwin's cracks about the timing of the Communists arrests brought this question from a reporter: Are there Communists in the Wallace movement?

Baldwin responded: "I assume that there are."

Many national organizations of industry, labor and agriculture, which appeared before Democratic and Republican platform committees, cold-shouldered the Wallace group.

These included the CIO and AFL. Phil Pearl, an AFL spokesman, said in Washington a letter inviting his organization to testify was tossed in a waste basket "because we regard the Third Party as a front for the Communist Party." Wallace denies this.

Before its hearings began, the platform committee announced that some 60 witnesses were to be heard today and tomorrow. But after sitting for the first half hour today, when three witnesses were heard, the committee had to take a recess because nobody else was on hand to testify.

Wallace will arrive here Friday morning. Taylor is due in Philadelphia tomorrow.

Baldwin said registration of delegates has reached 3000—more than "the most optimistic forecasts." In addition, he said, there will be at least 600 alternates and 4000 observers.

The committee heard American policies toward Germany and Japan criticized by Herbert Kriedman of New York City, spokesman for the Society for Prevention of World War III.

Those policies, he said, are rebuilding a strong Germany and a strong Japan and will make those nations again the masters of Europe and the Far East.

Willis H. Satterthwaite, representing the Friends Committee on [illegible] legislation, told the platform group "American foreign policy should be based on the development of the United Nations and not on national military power, military alliances, or balance of power."

"We believe," he added, "that our present negative policy of armed opposition to Russia leads toward war."

He urged repeal of the Selective Service Act.

Maryland Approves Dixiecrat Write-ins

Baltimore, July 21 (AP).—Attorney General Hall Hammond advised today that Marylanders who want to can vote for the "Dixiecrat" presidential candidates.

They'll have to write the names of eight electors on their ballots, however.

His ruling was made in response to a query by Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, nominated for the Presidency at Birmingham, Ala., last week by Southern Democrats who balked at President Truman's nomination on the regular Democratic ticket.

Convention leaders said they planned to campaign in Maryland if it was found votes could be cast for their candidates in the State.

Revolt Won't Carry South, Editor Says

Orono, Me., July 21 (AP).—Most of the voters in Southern States "will stay with the Democratic Party in the coming election," Hodding Carter, Greenville, Miss., editor, said today.

"The 'solid' South is not solidly behind the Southern revolt in the Democratic Party," the editor of the Delta Democrat-Times said at a University of Maine summer assembly.

"The civil rights program is naturally opposed by the bigots and by a growing majority of liberals and moderates who believe the passing of laws will not solve the racial problem in the South," he added.

Referring to antilynching legislation, he said:

"The problem is to punish those involved in lynching. What we need is a change of heart rather than a change of laws."

Thurmond Resigns Democratic Post

Columbia, S. C., July 21 (AP).—J. Strom Thurmond, presidential candidate of rebellious Southern Democrats, has resigned from the National Democratic Committee.

Senate Candidates Attack S. C. Ruling

Lancaster, S. C., July 21 (AP).—Four United States senatorial candidates tongue-lashed today a Federal Court order opening the State Democratic Party to Negroes.

They were Senator Burnet R. Maybank of Charleston, United States Representative W. J. B. Dorn of Greenwood, Newberry Attorney Alan Johnstone and Marcus A. Stone, Dillon lumberman.

The fifth candidate in the group, appearing in South Carolina's unique stumping tour, was Neville Bennett of Clio. He did not directly mention the Federal order, issued last week by District Judge Waties Waring.

Johnstone said he was ordered from the courtroom at the Federal hearing. The order, he said, "which commands enrollment and voting by a man simply because he is black is unlawful. His (Waring's) courtroom friends were carpetbaggers from New York, his judicial conduct was tyrannical and invites race suicide."

Maybank said the order was "deplorable," and Dorn said there was resultant confusion in the Democratic Party. Stone said that "were I the Governor of South Carolina, I would tell that judge down in Charleston a few things."

The Senator Notifies Himself

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DONE WITH A MIRROR—Senator Alben W. Barkley, temporary chairman of the Democratic nominating committee, as well as his party's candidate for Vice President, told a homecoming crowd at Paducah, Ky., yesterday, he would notify himself of his nomination by addressing himself in a full-length mirror at home. And when he got home he did it, as this picture shows

Murray, Ford Appear Victors In Montana

Helena, Mont., July 21 (AP).—Democratic Senator James E. Murray of Butte and Republican Gov. Sam C. Ford tonight were apparently safely over the primary election hurdle.

Murray, three-term Senator, piled up 53,129 votes in 872 of the State's 1142 precincts to 12,469 for his Democratic opponent, Dr. Harry J. McGregor of Great Falls.

Ford, out for his third term, swamped his opponents in 914 precincts. Ford received 36,948 votes to 9707 for Railroad Commissioner Leonard C. Young and 4160 for Mike Kuchera of Hardin.

The only place that appears in doubt is the race between incumbent Sam W. Mitchell and Supreme Court Clerk Frank Murray for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State.

Unofficial returns on yesterday's balloting gave Mitchell 32,840 votes to Murray's 32,243 in 887 of 1142 precincts.

Other candidates apparently safely in are John W. Bonner of Helena, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, and Tom J. Davis, Butte attorney, seeking the GOP senatorial nomination.

In 915 precincts, Bonner polled 27,739 votes to 20,581 for Arthur F. Lamey of Billings, 15,143 for Leif Erickson of Helena, 3515 for George M. Melton of Dillon and 3268 for Vernon Hover of Plentywood.

Davis, making his first bid for political office, out-drew Rankin Wellington, Democrat, of Helena in 894 precincts. The count was 29,279 to 21,690.

In the only contested Democratic congressional race, with 537 of 748 precincts counted in the Second District, Willard E. Fraser of Billings led Mrs. Wallace Kingsbury, 17,912 to 10,815. Representative Mike Mansfield, Democrat of Missoula, was unopposed in the First District.

Talbott Named To Handle GOP Finance Tasks

The Republicans have handed their top campaign financing job to Harold E. Talbott, businessman of New York and Dayton, Ohio.

The appointment as chairman of the National Republican finance committee was announced yesterday by Hugh Scott, national GOP chairman.

Short Session Is GOP Goal

tion that Mr. Truman may report to Congress on the international crisis. Said Green: "It is fortunate Congress will be in session, in case Mr. Truman has something to present on the strained situation in Berlin."

Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.), another close friend of the President, said he couldn't go along with forecasts of a special session clash. Said Hatch: "If the President approaches Congress in a cooperative spirit, and Congress meets him in the same spirit, I look for good results."

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath (R. I.), after a White House strategy conference, predicted Southern Democratic rebels "will be with us when the chips are down." McGrath announced plans for a series of White House strategy conferences with all types of opinion within the party.

Asked whether the international situation would be covered in the presidential message, White House Secretary Ross said he could give no information at this time.

But, he said, the President very probably will see Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany, and Clay's political adviser, Ambassador Robert D. Murphy, before he delivers his message.

Among domestic measures to be urged, Ross mentioned a new measure for the admission of displaced persons to replace the act Mr. Truman called "anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic," an aid-to-education bill, and a bill raising the minimum wage level. Ross had previously listed as items to be covered anti-inflation and adequate housing legislation, a 65-million-dollar U. N. loan for completing headquarters in New York and ratification of the international wheat agreement.

He said the opening message would be "inclusive," but that did not foreclose the possibility of later messages on special topics.

In saying Mr. Truman will not ask "the impossible," and obviously is not asking enactment of the Republican platform, Ross made his only indirect comment on Tuesday's statement by Herbert Brownell, jr., Governor Dewey's campaign manager. Brownell called the special session of politically inspired "rump" meeting, which could not possibly enact the Republican platform.

McGrath's forecast that Southern Democrats will return to the fold by November followed indications that Democratic candidates in at least two Southern States, Virginia and North Carolina, will support the National Democratic ticket, as opposed to a Dixiecrat fourth party.

The Democratic chairman said he thought the Dixiecrats' presidential nominee, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, made "a good statement" after his nomination and "took a lot of sting out of the revolt." McGrath referred to Thurmond's renunciation of the support of racial extremists and his statement that he was more interested in "States' rights." Under questioning, he said he was sure Thurmond would be "welcome" at the White House.

McGrath said the first of the proposed party cross-section strategy conferences would be held at the White House today and told reporters:

"I don't want any mystery about this. These are no secret conclaves. But from time to time, when I can get the President with a free evening or any free time at all, I want these groups to talk to him. We are in the campaign to win and the President is in it with us."

Arab Losses 20% In 10 Days, Jews Say

By Kenneth Bilby

Tel Aviv, July 21 (NYHT).—With all Palestinian battlefronts quiet, Israeli army headquarters computed today its successes and failures in the war.

Statistics presented by Yigal Yadin, youthful chief of operations, showed Jewish troops have conquered 810 square miles of Arab Palestine; that over 5000 Arab soldiers have become Israeli prisoners and that the Arabs now hold only 205 square miles within the boundaries of Israel as marked out under the United Nations partition.

In the 10 days of fighting that occurred between the U. N. truce periods, the Israeli chief said the Arab armies had lost 20 per cent of their effective fighting strength in Palestine. He placed the total Arab casualties during this second phase of combat at 5090 killed, wounded and captured.

He revealed that Israeli army headquarters has opposed, on a purely military basis, the resumption of the U. N. truce because of the momentum gained by its forces.

He asserted also that large numbers of deserters, particularly from the Arab legion and the Arab army, indicated that the morale of the invading forces was crumbling rapidly.

Revolutionary

Colombia's Labor Profit Split Shown

Bogota, Colombia, July 21 (U.P.).—Additional details of the government's revolutionary plan to give labor a share in the profits of private enterprise were disclosed today. The plan was decreed by President Mariano Ospina Perez yesterday and will become effective in January, 1950.

It applies to both industrial and agricultural enterprises capitalized at more than $60,000—and employing more than 30 persons when industrial and 20 when agricultural.

Labor will share in any profits over and above 12 per cent of the original capital investment. Their share will begin at 5 per cent for profits of between 12 and 15 per cent and increase to 8 per cent on profits between 15 and 18 per cent; 15 per cent on those between 15 and 25 per cent, and reach a maximum of 20 per cent of any profits above 25 per cent.

One fourth of the proceeds will be distributed directly to the workers and the remaining three fourths will go to increase the social secuirty fund, construction of workers' homes and other social improvements.

Ospina, a Conservative, said the plan will establish a social system that will "promote the collaboration of the working classes in the nation's economic tasks, with equal rights and duties."

Lightning Kills 6

Dortmund, Germany, July 21 (AP).—The newspaper Westfalenpost said six persons were killed and 20 hurt today when lightning struck the Memorial Tower in nearby Hagen.

Man Held For Murder After Fight

James Franklin Lewis, 40, of 1135 10th st. nw., was held on a charge of first degree murder yesterday following the death of Irvin Holman, 27, of 1133 10th st., nw., from injuries inflicted with a club.

Police said Lewis and Holman got into a fight last Friday night in front of the latter's house when Holman attempted to collect an $8 debt. During the rumpus, police said, Holman was struck over the head with a wooden club.

Holman did not appear to be seriously injured at first. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital and treated for alcoholism. However, while police were returning him to the Second Precinct he lapsed into unconsciousness. He was rushed to Gallinger Hospital where he died yesterday at 2:45 a. m.

Lewis who had been released in $500 bond on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon was rearrested yesterday and taken before United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence. The Commissioner ordered the man held on a murder charge without bond

Ships Bureau Cites 3 for Long Service

Awards for 40 or more years' service have been presented to three civilian employes of the Navy Bureau of Ships.

Joseph W. Wilson, who started his naval career in 1891 as a skilled laborer and rose to mechanical engineer, was one of the trio cited for "long and faithful service" in letters from Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan.

Wilson, who lives at 9311 Ocala st., Silver Spring, Md., is retiring from Federal service.

Others honored were Morris E. Eason of 1810 Wyoming ave. nw., electronics engineer with 46 years' service who helped install the first underground transmission station at Corregidor, and Talbott Walker of Rt. 2, Falls Church, who entered Navy service in 1908

A meritorious promotion involving an annual pay increase of $239 was presented to Joseph D. Pierce, electrical engineer, of 1414 South George Mason dr., Arlington, for aid in design of a submarine construction plant.

Lawrence P. Winnemore of 5414 Glenwood rd., Bethesda, Md., received a $50 award for suggesting use of vertical elevator to connect the second deck and flight deck of aircraft carriers, and a $10 award was presented to Paul Risinger of 4202 Russell ave., Mount Rainier, for a time-saving suggestion in routing office documents.

Command Change

Adm. Fahrion Heads Naval Gun Factory

Rear Admiral Frank G. Fahrion, skipper of the battleship North Carolina during the war, yesterday became superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory here, in ceremonies held in the factory auditorium.

Adm. Fahrion

Admiral Fahrion succeeds Capt. A. S. Wotherspoon who had been acting director since last March when Rear Admiral T. D. Ruddock, then superintendent, was transferred to San Francisco as senior member of the board of inspection and survey, Pacific Coast section.

Admiral Fahrion started his naval career in 1913 at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Among those who attended a luncheon at the officers mess in his honor yesterday were: Rear Admiral A. G. Noble, chief of the Bureau of Ordnance; Rear Admiral Glenn B. Davis, commandant of the Potomac River Naval Command, and Rear Admiral F. E. Beatty, officer in charge of the Naval Ordnance laboratory.

Pershing Will Details Given

guished Service Medal, and a sword presented by the State of Missouri, a West Point class ring, his library, silver, horse, saddle and automobiles.

The will orders the executors to cancel all debts General Pershing's relatives might owe him.

One sword to be selected by the executors will be presented to the Museum of the Capitol of Missouri at Jefferson City. Another sword and his collection of Moro articles will go to the University of Nebraska at Lincoln which also gets $1500 for a medal to be awarded annually to the best ROTC student.

Two $10,000 bequests were to go to his sisters-in-law, Mrs. Jessie E. Pershing and Mrs. Gertrude E. Pershing, both of whom died before him.

Colonel Adamson will receive $1500, and $500 each is given to two of General Pershing's other aides, Lieut. Cols. Ralph A. Curtin and Charles B. Shaw. Other $500 bequests go to Robert C. Schaeffer, his orderly and chauffeur for many years, and to Cesar Santini, his World War I chauffeur.

A memorial to his mother, Anne Elizabeth Pershing, is to be established with $3000 at her birthplace, near Maryville, Tenn.

NAB to Enter Radio Case

ner to interfere with the administration of justice."

Justice Miller's statement came in answer to a query from The Washington Post as to any NAB interest in the case.

"We have taken action already," he said, "by sending to Baltimore our general counsel, Don Petty, who is conferring with the station principals involved.

"As has been evident from my own public utterances and from the appearances of broadcasters before Congress and the various Federal regulatory bodies, the broadcasters of America have a vital interest in any threat to freedom of speech, regardless of its source."

The NAB "is going to participate in this case," Petty said yesterday in Baltimore. Presumably, NAB will seek to enter it as a "friend of the court." Those named in the citations have been given until August 16 to show why they should not be adjudged in contempt.

Charles A. Roeder, program manager and assistant director of radio station WCBM, said the contempt citation for his company, announced on Tuseday, was not received by the station until 4 p. m. yesterday, and contained no details of alleged statements in contempt.

Roeder said his station is "going to fight" the citation, terming the news restriction "the Baltimore gag."

It is believed the contempt charges may be based on alleged references of James' past sex crime record, or reports of his confessions in the murders, publication of which is prohibited in Baltimore under the court rule.

Baltimore Gets News

For the first time yesterday Baltimore received its first official inkling that there are confessions in the James case, when his attorney had James' trial on the Brill murder and the rape-robbery of a Baltimore housewife postponed from August 3 to September 20.

James' confessions to the Brill murder of July 6 and to the Bardwell murder of June 27—for which he was indicted by a District grand jury on Monday—were reported by Washington newspapers on July 8 and 9, but were never referred to previously in Baltimore newspapers because of the court ban.

William H. Murphy, James' attorney, told Criminal Court Judge Emory H. Niles in Baltimore yesterday that he required more time to study "statements" that James gave to police.

Commented J. Bernard Wells, State's attorney for Baltimore, "I might say that those confessions have been turned over to counsel."

Admonishing Wells for this "slip," Judge Niles declared, "Mr. Wells, I think it is improper to call any statement a 'confession' that has not been admitted into evidence."

Wells then "corrected" himself, saying, "Well, statements . . ."

Baltimore newspapers then reported this conversation, in open court, but they are forced to let the reader decide what the "confessions" or "statements" involve.

A pledge of support to the Baltimore radio stations in the contempt case came yesterday from the Prince Georges and Montgomery County Press Association, which have strongly opposed a contemplated extension of the crime news restriction to the entire State.

In a telegram to WCBM's assistant director, Roeder, "100 per cent support" was pledged by Phillip J. Austensen, head of the Prince Georges group, and John W. Coffman, jr., head of the Montgomery County association.

Austensen and Coffman also offered the aid of the two associations' attorney, Joseph M. Mathias of Bethesda.

Brannan Suggests Cut in Bread Prices

Liquor Nets Montgomery $415,451

The Montgomery County Liquor Control Board realized profits of $415,451.23 during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to preliminary figures released yesterday by Charles B. Buscher, general manager.

This was an increase of $45,568 over profits of the previous fiscal year.

In addition, the board turned over $169,886.08 to the Maryland State Alcoholic Beverage Tax and $34,976.37 to the Maryland State Sales Tax. Profits and taxes totaled $620,313.68, the largest amount ever taken in by the county dispensary system.

The board operates four liquor dispensaries, in Silver Spring, Bethesda, Rockville and Brookmont, and a beer warehouse in Linden.

Buscher said the figures were remarkable considering that similar business in adjacent areas is reported to be off as much as 35 to 40 per cent.

All profits of the board are turned over to the Board of County Commissioners.

Barry Farms Wins on Beer

Residents of Barry Farms, Southeast Washington housing development, yesterday won their fight to keep a beer and wine store out of their neighborhood.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board denied the application of Albert and Minnie Kaplan for a Class B license to sell beer and wine at 2600 Wade rd. se.

ABC ruled the store was an "inappropriate location" for sale of alcoholic beverages.

At an ABC hearing June 16, opponents of the proposed license produced a 467-signature petition from Barry Farms residents opposing the Kaplans' petition.

In another action ABC dismissed charges that Richard F. Cannaday, proprietor of a restaurant at 1418 Florida ave. ne., had permitted drinks to be served to an intoxicated man and allowed him to remain on the premises.

At a hearing Tuesday, the restaurant manager denied drinks had been sold to the man and said he had merely wandered into the eatery and helped himself to his friends' drinks.

Liberal Party In N. Y. to Enter Fall Campaign

New York, July 21 (AP).—The New York State Liberal Party tonight announced plans for an August convention in New York City to select its own candidates for President and Vice President of the United States.

The plans were announced by Adolf A. Berle, jr., New York State chairman of the party. He formerly served as an Assistant Secretary of State under President Roosevelt and was a member of Roosevelt's original "New Deal" group of advisors.

Berle's statement giving the Liberal Party's plans to enter its own candidates in the November national elections added:

"It is now clear that the Republican Party is far less certain of victory than many political writers and observers have been telling us. . . ."

Secretary of Agriculture Brannon suggested yesterday that the baking industry cut the price of bread and other bakery products.

Brannan said cash wheat is about 75 cents a bushel below the peak of last winter. That, he said "should justify a corresponding decrease in the price of bread and bakery products."

The Secretary made the comment in a letter to Ralph D. Ward, chairman of National Affairs Committee of the American Bakers Association.

He also sent a similar letter to Representative Hope (D., Kans.), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

Meatless Days Possible In D. C. Institutions

Soaring meat prices may force the District to order two meatless days a week at most of its institutions, it was disclosed yesterday.

District Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan said he may recommend the action to the Commissioners if August meat supply bids continue the upward price trend.

A. & P. Cutting Meat Prices 4 to 6 Cents Today

New York, July 21 (AP).—A & P stores said they will cut their meat prices from 4 to 6 cents a pound effective Thursday. An A & P spokesman said it was the first price reduction since early last spring.

Among cuts affected are chuck, from 79 to 73 cents a pound; prime rib roast, 85 to 83; pot roast, 97 to 93; lamb shoulders, 97 to 92 and leg of lamb, 79 to 75.

Chain to Cut Butter In Philadelphia Area

Philadelphia, July 21 (AP).—The retail price of butter in Philadelphia area A. & P. food stores will drop three cents a pound beginning Thursday, Vice President L. A. Mullen announced today.

The reduction will cut the price of solid butter from 89 cents to 86 and the price of quartered butter from 90 to 87 cents, he said.

Mullen said the decrease, reflecting the drop in wholesale prices, will be effective in all A. & P. stores in the Philadelphia and southeastern Pennsylvania areas, southern New Jersey and Delaware.

Area A. & P. Stores Announce Butter Cut

Greater Washington A&P stores will cut butter prices 1 cent today. This follows a 2-cent cut earlier in the week, a spokesman for the stores said.

Prices today will range from 88-89 cents as compared with 89-90 cents yesterday.

A spokesman for the Safeway Stores here said no definite action had been taken to lower butter prices but pointed out that it would be necessary to meet competition, implying an imminent decrease.

Neither chain had planned a cut in meat prices. Officials of the District Grocery States were not available for comment.

Tokyo, July 21 (AP).—Flash floods today inundated 2525 homes in two villages near Osaka, the newspaper Asahi reported.

Colonel Devereux, Wake Island Hero, Will Retire Aug. 1

Col. James P. Devereux, hero of Wake Island and four-year prisoner of the Japs, will retire on August 1, the Marine Corps said yesterday.

Col. Devereux

The 45-year-old officer, now serving with the First Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, California, has 25 years of service behind him.

Devereux and his small Marine detachment were isolated from all help on Wake Island after the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. Fighting against hopeless odds, they damaged or sank five Jap warships and battled planes and land troops from December 8 through December 26, when they were taken prisoner.

Four years later, on September 15, 1945, Devereux was found in a prison camp in northern Hokkaido, Japan, and brought back to the United States.

The late President Roosevelt awarded him the Navy Cross and a presidential unit citation to him and his First Marine Defense Battalion.

Scottsboro Rape Prisoner Leads Alabama Break

Montgomery, Ala., July 21 (U.P.) Haywood Patterson, one of the Negro defendants in the Scottsboro rape trials of 15 years ago, led a break of prisoners from the Kilby prison farm yesterday and is still at large, it was announced today.

Patterson was one of five sentenced to long terms for the rape of two white girls on a moving freight train near Paint Rock, Ala., in 1931. Nine originally were tried and sentenced to death but a long legal battle resulted in freedom of four and commutation of sentence for the others.

Patterson was serving 75 years.

Jackson Hole

The new Jackson Hole Wildlife Park, which was dedicated this week, is a substantial addition to the facilities enabling Americans to view one of their great natural resources in primitive state. The park comprises some 1500 acres in northwest Wyoming within the boundaries of the Jackson Hole National Monument, which adjoins the magnificent Grand Teton National Park. It will be stocked with moose, grizzly bear, bighorn sheep, swans, eagles and other wildlife, and the public will be able to view these specimens not through zoo bars but in their natural habitat. The park also will serve as a biological station and a training ground for conservationists. It will be administered jointly by the Wyoming Game and Fish Commission, the New York Zoological Society and the Jackson Hole Preserve, Inc., a Rockefeller instrumentality which gave the land.

The significance of the dedication was noted by Fairfield Osborn, president of the New York Zoological Society and author of the admirable Our Plundered Planet. "Forty years ago," he said, "the American bison was saved from extinction by an aroused public opinion. Today's task of wildlife protection will be made immeasurably simpler if Americans can see at a place such as Jackson Hole Wildlife Park the animals that are the West's great heritage."

The opening of the wildlife park is extremely timely, for the perennial effort to abolish the Jackson Hole National Monument is by no means dead and doubtless will be revived in the special session of Congress. This campaign has roots in the desire of cattle and sheep growers to take over the area for unrestricted grazing. In the last session of Congress, proponents of this bill evolved a unique "compromise" to give part of the Jackson Hole area to the Grand Teton National Park and to turn the rest over to the Forest Service. Strangely enough, this proposal came from the very groups that had recently indulged in scathing attacks on the Forest Service; apparently they counted on these attacks to cripple grazing regulations imposed by the service. The securing of the wildlife park is a step forward in the continuing fight to preserve the public domain for the benefit of all the people.

Since Seneca Falls

One event at the recent Democratic National Convention would have given both pride and amusement to that valiant little group of women who a century ago initiated the women's rights movement at Seneca Falls, N. Y. Those who are this week celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of that meeting should add to the credit side of their ledger the fact that for the first time at a national party convention a genuine movement—not the usual phony one—got under way to nominate a woman for Vice President.

It was another instance of feminine triumph over handicap. Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas had the worst spot on the program for a speaker. All the women speakers were shunted to the end of the long night programs, and Representative Douglas addressed a tag-end audience of hot, exhausted delegates in the early hours of the morning. But her speech provoked one of the most significant demonstrations of the convention and a movement, started by an Ohio delegate to nominate her for Vice President, spread rapidly among several delegations. This was promptly discouraged by Representative Douglas because of the boom for Senator Barkley, and because she wanted to return to the House. Nevertheless it showed that the day of what Al Smith would have called "baloney" nominations of women for Vice President, as practiced by gallant men delegates at past conventions, was over. It heralded what may happen sooner than we think, even possibly in 1952.

The Seneca Falls women were so unsure of their platform status that they asked a man to preside at their meeting. Nevertheless their famous "Declaration of Sentiments" drew Nation-wide booing. A long fight lay ahead of them in rectifying even the first of their listed grievances—the inequalities married women suffered in control of their persons, children and property. Educational, political and economic disabilities came next on their schedule. Though all of these haven't yet been removed, the feminine progress of the century is indeed something to celebrate. And significantly the one hundredth anniversary of the fight for women's rights comes at a time when a national party convention has dramatically taken its stand for the new civil rights movement, and when a ground swell in behalf of human rights is on throughout the world.

Insulation: 1948

The citation of five radio stations and one individual for contempt under the Baltimore press-gag rule demonstrates the absurdity of the restriction which the court has foisted upon that city. While the citations were not specific, they concerned the confessions of Eugene James in the murder of Marsha Brill in Baltimore and Carol Bardwell in Washington as well as James' past record. Presumably the radio stations in some manner ran afoul of the Baltimore Supreme Court ruling, in effect since 1939, barring any comment on an accused person after his arrest. Yet all the time that Baltimore newspapers remained muzzled and the radio stations operated on tenterhooks, Washington newspapers giving full details of James' confessions circulated freely in Baltimore and anyone with a radio could tune in on news reports from outside stations.

The effect of this anomaly is to show the utter futility of the Chinese wall of insulation which the Baltimore court has attempted to build. The announced intent of the Baltimore rule, viz, to assure the accused a fair trial, is in itself commendable. The error lies in the assumption that justice can be effected in a sort of legal vacuum apart from the society which creates justice. It may have been possible at one time to dispense impartial justice in an ivory tower above the concerns of the world, but it certainly is not possible in this day of twentieth century communications.

No one can hold that heart-throb sensationalism, or trial by newspaper as it is sometimes called, facilitates true justice. By the same token, however, it is one of the functions of the court to guard against the undue influencing of jurors by reports in the newspapers. The resort to such arbitrary methods as an absolute prohibition is, in our opinion, a confession of inadequacy on the part of the court. For judges have always had the power to cite the press for contempt in instances of "clear and present danger" to the administration of justice. What the Baltimore court has done is to cover one potential evil with a host of greater and more sweeping evils.

For example, while it is essential to protect the rights of the accused, it is also important to observe the rights of the public. It meant a good deal to Washington parents to know that the person who signed the confessions of the slaying of Carol Bardwell and Marsha Brill had been apprehended—a relief not extended to Baltimore parents. Moreover, often it is only through press reports of crime that persons with vital information are induced to contact the police. Washington police say they would have been greatly handicapped in the Bardwell case if the Baltimore rule had been in effect here. Nor does the publication of details of arrests always work against accused persons. Sometimes the news of such arrests results in the uncovering of evidence which proves the accused persons innocent. Perhaps a more important consideration from the standpoint of public policy is that if the press and radio are fettered in reporting crime news, then there is no effective check on the action and competency of police and other officials.

What has happened in Baltimore is bad enough in itself, but there is an even graver threat in the move by a committee of Circuit Court judges to extend the prohibition to the whole State of Maryland by incorporating it in State Court of Appeals rules. Such an encroachment on a constitutional freedom, not on ground of "clear and present danger" but out of fear that such danger might exist, is a disconcerting commentary on the lack of understanding of the relationship between a free press and judicial process. As J. Edward Gerald observes in his book, The Press and the Constitution, "the courts have found it easier to limit freedom of the press than to accommodate themselves to its pressures." They have, furthermore, ignored the dictum of Justice Black in the Los Angeles Times-Mirror case, which is to blame the pressure of events on the events, not on publication by the newspapers of the facts of life.

The quarrel is more than merely one between newspapers and the courts. The newspapers are in a very real sense the custodians of the public's right to know the facts. And it is by no means a farfetched comparison to see in what the judges have imposed on Baltimore and would impose on the rest of Maryland precisely the same condition that prevails behind the iron curtain, with the people dependent for accurate news of the functioning of their institutions on what information can pierce the barrier from the outside.

Clay's Return

The return of General Clay, America's proconsul in Berlin, for consultation is a sign that a thought-through policy on Berlin is in the making and that it is now in civilian hands. This is cause for satisfaction. Up till a week ago the quip that the State Department had gone underground had acquired wide circulation. It is notorious that the generals and the diplomats have not seen eye to eye on our developing policy on Germany. Such a conflict is due as much to circumstances as to personalities. A duality of authority exists between the Army Department and the State Department over the diplomacy in and on Germany. And the Army Department leaves things pretty much in the hands of General Clay. In the nature of things the arrangement was bound to cause confusion, especially when General Clay, who is a man of independence and incisiveness of mind and outstanding ability as an administrator, is impatient with civilian direction. The lack of liaison had become apparent within the last month or so. Inquiries, for example, about the currency wrangle in Berlin could not be answered satisfactorily in the Capital, either at the military or civilian agencies. General Clay will be able not only to get new guidance but also to give enlightenment on several points that have risen in the Russo-Western clash, and both are necessary to wise policy making.

This does not mean—judging from the clarification which is now available of the way that policy-making is proceeding—that there will be any backing down on American rights. Firmness here is an inescapable duty of the Administration. The new cohesion about Berlin has to do with a regularization of procedure along lines which go to the roots of the American system of civilian responsibility. And—to what end? Over the weekend the admission came from military and civilian alike that the issue with Moscow is not merely whether the Westerners shall or shall not call a Soviet bluff. The issue cannot be that simple to the diplomats, and the military themselves are raising questions. It is realized it would be the height of folly on the part of diplomacy not to keep a door open to the Soviet, criminal to forget the responsibility owed to world as well as American opinion. The record of the quest for peaceful settlement must be clear, and the struggle must likewise be recognized as a battle of wits as well as a war of nerves in which the Soviet is obviously anxious to pin on the United States the aggressor's label. What has to be pitted against the international conspiracy focused in Moscow is not so much military might as nonmilitary skill and steadiness of purpose, and this would probably be the case even if there should be war—a tragedy, as Mr. Marshall puts it, which diplomacy will try to avoid without yielding to intimidation.

As Brownell Sees It

Governor Dewey's campaign manager, Herbert Brownell, jr., has disposed in two terse sentences of the silly contention that the Eightieth Congress is under an obligation to enact legislation at the special session giving effect to the Republican platform pledges. The "Republican platform," he says, "calls for the enactment of a program by a Republican Congress, under the leadership of a Republican President. Obviously this cannot be done at a rump session, called at a special convention for political purposes in the heat of a political campaign." We agree.

The Eightieth Congress undeniably left undone some things that will eventually have to be done if it is to fulfill the pledges the Republican Party made at Philadelphia, and its record will, of course, influence voting next November. But Mr. Brownell's statement is a timely reminder that the present Congress was not elected on the platform declarations of 1948. Nor for that matter does that platform commit the party to indorsement of specific legislative proposals presented by a Democratic President, as, for instance, Mr. Truman's program for control of inflation. The present Congress has decisively rejected most of the items in the President's 10-point anti-inflation program, and the Republican platform in effect indorsed that rejection by accusing the Administration of ineffective use of the control powers now at its disposal. It promises to attack inflation by continuing efforts to reduce taxes and lower the cost of Government.

Owing to the brevity of the special session it would, moreover, be quite impracticable for Congress to put through any new legislation of a long-range nature, on which hearings would have to be held. The only measures of this kind carrying Republican indorsement that are in shape for floor debate are some of those dealing with civil rights. And if they are put first on the legislative agenda, the chances are that the special session will be hopelessly deadlocked by a Senate filibuster that would injure both parties, and that, as The Washington Post has said, "in the setting of the circumstances and the times" would "repel all responsible people."

There are, however, certain items of unfinished business that could and should be quickly disposed of, such as the U. N. building loan, the oleomargarine bill, Federal-aid-to-education, legislation providing pay increases for D. C. employes, and possibly certain features of the housing bill. There is, too, the world crisis to bear in mind. The increasing gravity of Russo-Western relations has caused a good many critics to change their opinion concerning the desirability of a special session at this time. Britain's Parliament has been put on call. It is equally desirable to have our Congress in Washington. Although the call was originally designed to embarrass the Republicans, the presence of Congress in Washington at this critical period may serve a highly useful purpose. For it will enable legislators to keep more closely in touch with the Administration's handling of delicate diplomatic negotiations.

If emergency legislation should become necessary, no time need be lost in securing action in accordance with pledges to follow a bipartisan policy in foreign affairs. Governor Dewey could be counted upon, we suggest, to approve any action taken by Congress in pursuance of that policy, if the international crisis should become more threatening while Congress is in session.

EVENING OF A LITTLE GIRL

I lean to the remembered song
Of birds at day's end;
To the sound of my own prayers;
To conversation in the living room;
To the long, long
Thoughts aloud in bed . . . and listening there
For the trolley shrieking around the bend
To the summer sound of sudden wind, of rain,
And through the gloom
Again, again,
My mother, I hear
The tiptoe of your voice.
You lower the light;
That sound is night,
And I rejoice.

Controlled Farm Prices

It is rather definitely accepted by our people that wage control, by means of collective bargaining, is proper. The principle of collective bargaining is well embedded in our law. Whereas our antitrust laws seek to compel price competition in the industrial field in the matter of the sale of processed and manufactured goods, they expressly exempt labor from that category.

The same principle holds true in the field of agricultural marketing. Farmers are not, for the most part, in a bargaining position when it comes to the matter of the sale of basic farm products. Under our antitrust laws, agricultural societies, as well as labor organizations, are exempt from the rule of competition.

Ordinarily, when our farmers go to market to sell they ask "What will you pay?" and when they go to market to buy they say "What is the price?" If farmers can bargain collectively for the sale of their basic crops, well and good. If not, the Government should see to it that they receive a cost-of-production price. Controlled prices in certain fields are greatly to be desired, and they should not be left to manipulation by commodity gamblers.

Transit Fares

With all the hullabaloo about raising Capital Transit fares, let's not forget that this is a matter for the Public Utilities Commission to decide. It has done a good job in the past, and will probably continue to do so.

As Chairman Flanagan has remarked, it is simply a matter of arithmetic. If a study of the books of the company shows it is not realizing 7½ per cent on its investment, it will be allowed to increase fares. Any accountant who has studied the financial records of the company will have an opinion worth listening to. Any other opinion would be worthless.

G. R. C.
Washington.

The public is aroused over the fare increase as never before. Salaries of the masses are below the level which permit an American citizen to live according to ideals instilled into us. That has made no difference to the Public Utilities Commission, which has granted every increase requested by the Capital Transit. Capital Transit has employed every argument known to financiers and the tremendous pressure exerted by a profit-making institution today has again weighed against simple justice.

EXPLOITED RIDER.

German Army

Congress was not summoned in special session because of an international emergency, but the existence of such an emergency may have to be recognized when Congress convenes. The economic recovery of Europe is impossible under present conditions. Berlin is already in sad plight. What will happen when winter comes with its demands for fuel? Is there no limit to the gasoline which can be supplied for transport planes?

There is one measure which might bring salvation, though it would mean a complete reversal of the old policy of disarmament and demilitarization for Germany. Russia is now the common enemy. Germany has millions of men who have been trained as soldiers and have had hard experience of war. There are capable officers who have not been guilty of war crimes. A large German army could quickly be formed with the supreme command and control of supplies all in American hands. Its formation might halt the aggresstion which Russia is determined to pursue.

Russia knows that the American people are reluctant to send an army of two million men overseas. The men capable of doing the work are already on the spot, if we have the wisdom to make use of them. It is inconceivable that Germans under arms would be a danger to ourselves when they were gathered to protect their own country against a hated and cruel tyrant.

Preventive Housing

In The Washington Post of July 17, I saw a picture of a house that a group of people had bought to prevent some other people from moving in. I am reminded of a story that I would like to convey to those people.

One thousand nine hundred forty-nine years ago there were some people (a minority group) who were looking for a house. They trudged along a weary road. The wife was pregnant and was hoping to find shelter. They came to an inn. But the house was reserved for a special group. In those days it was the Romans.

The man who had charge of the inn couldn't give them a room. After all, who were they to think that they could live where the Romans lived? But the innkeeper was a little considerate. They could have the stable. Of course, they were to keep out of sight.

I'm sure these people have accepted Christ as their Saviour. They say history repeats itself. Could these people have lived in those times? Could be.

"Average" Food Bills

As a housewife battling the high cost of food, I was very interested in the article of Mrs. Mary Keehan published in your July 15 issue. I was particularly interested because her case so closely parallels ours.

We are a family of four including two children. Like Mrs. Keehan, I patronize the local stores and pack a lunch daily for my husband. All of us are fond of meat and milk, two very expensive items at the present time.

I make a practice of keeping a close account of all food bills, and I find that we get by very well on $80 to $85 a month as opposed to Mrs. Keehan's estimated $35 to $40 a week. This includes all foodstuffs and also other household necessities such as soap, wax, bleaches, etc., which we purchase at the grocery store.

Although we cannot afford such luxuries as olives, fresh cherries or grapes (at 39 cents a pound), or expensive cuts of meat, we eat very well, in my opinion, and are a very healthy family. May I say, then, that I am a "better than average buyer"? JANE B. MURPHY.

Single File

It is nice to pay respect to the dead. I do not begrudge the hours spent standing in line Sunday for a final view of a fellow Missourian, General Pershing.

I wonder, however, if those in charge of the arrangements might not have shown more respect for the living, especially the 4000 who stood but did not get to pass through. Why stick to the archaic single file? Instead of one line, why not arrange a bank of three or four parallel ramps each 18 inches higher than the other. By such an arrangement three or four times as many people could have passed through in an hour. Thousands would have been grateful if the long hours of standing in the hot sun could have been avoided.

"Housing Paradoxes"

In the editorial on "Housing Paradoxes" of July 17, you state that "one method of bringing down cost by increasing the supply of housing would be a brake on public construction exercised by agreement among the States." Many people are laboring under this misapprehension that if public (Federal and non-Federal) construction were sharply curtailed, the materials and manpower thus released would be funneled into residential construction and go a long way toward alleviating the present housing shortage.

Analysis of the latest Commerce-Labor estimates of the volume of new construction reveals that reduction in this field where possible or feasible would not be of appreciable help.

New Construction Activity (millions of dollars)

	1946	1947
Total new construction activity	10,488	12,977
Total private	8253	10,892
Residential	3183	3260
Nonresidential	3346	3131
Industrial	1699	1702
Commercial	1116	835
Hospital and educational	196	271
Other	351	323
Farm	230	450
Public utility	1374	2082
Total public	2305	3084
Residential	369	182
Nonresidential	325	905
Hospital and educational	168	356
Other	139	149
Sewer and water	194	331
Military and naval	188	204
Highway	772	1233
Conservation	340	396
All other	117	182

Of the public construction, the residential, sewer and water, and hospital and educational construction cannot be eliminated or reduced for obvious reasons. Military and naval construction, which includes expenditures on housing and hospitals is close to the irreducible minimum. Expenditures on highways and conservation can be reduced, not eliminated without serious effects. However, the very nature of these categories of construction—the skills, location of labor force and materials utilized—preclude a shift in toto to residential construction. In short, far less than one billion dollars of public construction could be expeditiously postponed, and only a small fraction of this portion would find its way into residences.

A glance at private construction shows an entirely different picture. Industrial, commercial, and other types of nonresidential building consuming labor and materials which can be used directly for residential construction was greater in volume than all public construction in 1946 and almost as large in 1947. If expenditures on public utility buildings are added, outlays for private nonresidential building are substantially in excess of public construction. Limitation of construction in this field would have a far greater effect upon increasing residential building than any tampering with public construction.

Moral Court Packing

In the Saturday Evening Post of July 3, Mr. Harold L. Ickes, writing of his experiences during an over-extended Administration, states in effect that although the promoter of the proposal to "reform the Supreme Court of the United States (in other words to make it a creature of his will) appeared to lose on form, he, in fact, gained, through his attack, much of the substance which was his objective, because (under the attack) the court itself lowered, if it did not remove, the bars which it had previously interposed to New Deal legislation.

This is, of course, tantamount to saying that the majority of the court, after it was attacked, lacked the courage to decide in accordance with its convictions.

It follows that if any decisions were so induced they are unsound, and that the opinion in support of such a decision is no more than an apology for it. The effect of such a premise is an allegation of usurpation of power and disregard of the Constitution.

Vacation Melting Pot

By Malvina Lindsay

People On The Move

RUGGED INDEED will be the individualist this summer who in answer to the question, "Where are you going?"—or "Where did you go?" will dare to answer "Nowhere." Not since prewar days, and probably never in any summer, have so many Americans been in flux. If elbow rubbing smoothes off regionalism, the old battles between East and West, North and South, New Yorkers and the rest of the country, should be ready for armistice by the end of September.

In addition to the flood of travel to Europe, Americans are mixing among themselves as never before. In this they are abetted by about seven million new motor cars that have been added to prewar leftovers.

During this month and next vacation travel reaches high tide. Much of this will be on a budget basis. Vacationists who have to watch their pennies are supplanting the free spending resort crowds of late war and early prewar days. Large numbers of schoolteachers will be on tour from Maine to California, and dipping over into Canada and Mexico. For "planned travel" now rates college credits toward degrees, and in many school systems it can be applied on the "professional growth" that brings salary increases.

THE DEPARTMENT of Interior, through its U. S. Travel Division, has been promoting national parks and playgrounds, and a general bearing down on these by family motor car is getting under way. Typical of American energy and curiosity is the way motorists this summer in their new and even old cars are setting out to "do" the country on three- and even two-week vacations. Soon in many an office workers who it seemed were at their desks only yesterday will be walking in, sunburned and triumphant, announcing they have seen Niagara Falls, Chicago, Banff, San Francisco, Hollywood, the Grand Canyon, Mexico City and Florida.

However, such elbow brushing is not the whole travel picture. People are being stirred up and melted down in a big way in convention mixing pots this year. The period of little more than a month will have seen three national political conventions in Philadelphia as well as a conclave of Elks. The city had counted on the two big party conventions bringing about 10,000 visitors each. The year 1948, it is estimated by convention experts, will have about 18,000 conventions, including many large national gatherings as well as State and regional ones. Never, probably, have so many Americans been meeting across barriers of States and regions in back-slapping atmosphere.

WHAT GOOD, if any, comes from all this may, of course, be argued. The general feeling in this country, that physical movement is progress, gives vacationists who "get out of town" on any basis whatever, if only across a county line, a feeling of great satisfaction and superiority. Yet visitors from older civilizations marvel at the national restlessness that gives no opportunity for thought and meditation, let alone physical rest.

For that matter one native highbrow school of thought holds that what this country needs above all else is a day which the entire population could devote to sitting and thinking—or at least trying to think.

However we are not a people equipped by temperament or training for meditation however badly it may be needed. We love movement and companionship. Nothing seems to refresh us so much as getting together in a crowd—the bigger the better. Perhaps as a people we were so long lonely in our pioneer youth that we still get a thrill from saying, "Howdy, stranger."

This national mixing around does rub off some corners of provincialism, and to an extent tempers regionalism, suspicion and prejudice. To young vacationists especially it opens new lines of thinking. It also helps business. And now at a time when the need for study of human relations is heard on every hand, many citizens are getting laboratory experience in this in conventions, trailer camps, diners, barbecue stands, on beaches, mountain tops and in sightseeing buses.

Glass Union Orders Heads To Sign Anti-Red Affidavit

Charleston, W. Va., July 21 (AP).—The Federation of Glass, Ceramic and Silica Sand Workers of America (CIO) resolved last night that its officers must sign non-Communist affidavits.

Delegates to the eighth biennial convention voted that "any person who is a member of the Communist, Nazi, or Fascist Party, or any person whose belief is in the overthrow of the United States Government shall be barred from holding any elective or appointive office, including grievanceman and committeeman in the federation.

"Any person holding an elective or appointive office, including grievanceman or committeeman," the resolution continued, "must sign a non-Communist affidavit." There was no indication as to whether the resolution was expected to effect any personnel changes.

The week-long meeting is attended by representaives of locals in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Louisiana, Virginia and West Virginia.

Today And Tomorrow

On Negotiating With Russia

AN EVENT of great importance to the conflict over Berlin occurred on Monday of this week when the 11 German Minister-Presidents of the western zones made their formal reply to the Western powers. In moderate language, but quite firmly, the Germans rejected our basic proposals. They refused to establish a western German state; they refused to convene a constitutional assembly to prepare a German constitution "until a solution for all of Germany is possible and until German sovereignty has been sufficiently restored." They declined the proposal for a popular referendum which "would give to the basic law" for the administration of the western zones "the kind of weight which should be reserved to a final constitution."

LIPPMANN

THIS GERMAN reply, which was published on July 19, needs to be read in conjunction with the Russian note replying to the Allied protests, which was broadcast from Moscow on July 14. The Russian note said that "when the United States, Great Britain and France, by their separate actions in the western zones of Germany, destroyed the system of quadripartite administration of Germany and began to create in Frankfurt-on-Main a capital for a government of western Germany, they thereby undermined also their right to participate in the administration of Berlin."

Now that the Germans have refused to do the very thing to which the Russians object, the struggle over Berlin is being waged over an issue which has been radically modified, if it has not been totally dissolved, for the Germans have walked out on us. We are left with a bitter and dangerous struggle in which the main bone of contention—a western German state—has been removed.

THE NARROWER issue of the Berlin blockade has also been substantially modified this week by the Russian offer to supply under certain conditions the whole of Berlin. The original Allied notes pointed out that the responsibility "for the physical well-being of Berlin" was "initially undertaken at Soviet request on July 7, 1945" and that this responsibility is "outstandingly humanitarian in character." If the Russians now wish to assume the responsibility, it is, of course, because this would make them the masters of the economic life of the whole of Berlin.

But it may be that there are compensating advantages. Relieved of the responsibility for the economic support of the Berlin civilians, we could strengthen our military position in Berlin. There would be no question of our ability to supply our troops or to reinforce them, if necessary by the airlift, even in winter. As long as the troops remain, we shall not have surrendered Berlin, or any of our legal rights in Berlin, or our moral obligation to protect those Germans who would suffer if we left Berlin. For while we fought for the right to occupy Berlin, we did not fight for the right to feed it. In any event, the Russian offer is worth exploring as an expedient which might permit a broader attempt to solve the greater problem of Germany without the pressure exerted by the blockade, the strain of the airlift, and the risks of an irreparable incident.

BUT ALL of this effort to reduce the struggle in Berlin depends in the last analysis on a judgment as to whether the resumption of negotiations for a German settlement is practicable and is advisable. My own view is that neither our moral commitments nor our interests permit us to refuse negotiations. But that they cannot be begun until there has been careful preparations, until preliminary measures have been taken, and until there has been much clarification of our own ideas about the principles of a settlement and the means of enforcing it.

This would mean in fact, I think, that formal negotiation, as distinguished from conversations through diplomatic channels, could not begin before the new administration is in office. Our main objective until then would be to relax the tension of the conflict, avoiding irrevocable decisions and averting, as best we can, irreparable incidents.

THE ULTIMATE and underlying objection to negotiation is, of course, the general conviction, derived from hard experience, that the Russians do not negotiate in good faith and do not abide by their agreements. This is not, it seems to me, a conclusive reason for refusing to negotiate at all. If it were, few of the great conflicts of history could ever have been settled, except as Rome settled with Carthage—by obliterating it entirely. The essence of a settlement of a great conflict is not that the antagonists have decided they think alike and can trust each other, but that they have accepted conditions which make it too dangerous and too unprofitable for either to take the risk of upsetting the settlement.

That is why I continue to harp, no doubt with tiresome repetition, upon the decisive importance of a military withdrawal by the Red army. A European settlement of the German question is, I believe, inconceivable as long as the opposing armies confront each other in the center of Europe. The Russians dominate the part of Europe which their armies dominate. The less of Europe they occupy, the less they will be able to dominate.

FOR THIS reason I would contend that the basic question of good faith can be answered only in the terms of the settlement. Arrangements which could be violated with impunity are not worth making. But arrangements which become dangerous to violate are well worth making. For they rest, not on that community of ideas and principles which one might hope for, though as yet in vain, but on a balance of power which no one is able, and therefore no one dares, to challenge.

Rivals Charge Pan Am Fails To Show Need of U. S. Routes

By The Associated Press

Counsel for Eastern Airlines told the Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday that Pan American Airways has been unable to show any need for domestic routes it seeks to fly.

Smythe Gambell of Atlanta, Eastern's attorney, joined with other domestic airlines in final arguments before the board opposing Pan American's route application. Pan American proposes to operate 12,500 miles of express routes linking the 13 terminals of its international operations.

Eastern's opposition is enlivened by the fact that a CAB examiner recommended only one route for Pan American. That was between New York and Miami, the main line of Eastern and of National Airlines.

Gambell accused Pan American of seeking internal routes in retaliation for the Government's postwar policy, giving domestic airlines international routes in competition with Pan American.

Routes Already Duplicated

Gambell said Eastern's routes were 90 per cent duplicated by other carriers before Pan American filed in March, 1945.

He said the record shows Eastern has been subjected to additional competition which amounts to diversion of $1,750,000 of revenues yearly.

John W. Cross of Washington, representing National Airlines, told the board that "very few, practically no passengers will receive new long-haul service" under the Pan American proposal.

National, like Eastern, also would be hard hit under the examiner's recommendation that Pan American be given New York-Miami route to link its South American and Atlantic divisions.

Claim Held Unsupported

The evidence does not support Pan American's claim there would be an improvement in domestic services, Cross said.

Discussing Pan American's argument that it needs economic strengthening, Cross said it is "ridiculous" and "absurd" to make such a proposal on behalf of the world's largest airline.

United Airlines, through its attorney, John T. Lorch, contended, Pan American has failed to present "evidence of fundamental need."

There is no proof of the need of Pan American's proposed domestic service which would be superimposed over the existing airline network, Lorch said, in fact, "we find nothing in the proposal in the way of benefits which offset the harm and injury which will inevitably result to United and other domestic carriers."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

The President And Inflation

IN HIS opening message to Congress, President Truman intends to bear down with all possible force on the issue of high prices. How explosive the message will be can be judged from the efforts of the White House researchers who are now supplying raw material for the grand opener.

Childs

They have come up with those full-page newspaper advertisements published two years ago by the National Association of Manufacturers. The NAM was then leading the campaign to destroy price control.

Those remarkable ads blamed the postwar price rise on Government regimentation. Take off the controls, they said, and prices will certainly go down. By killing OPA and removing controls, America's productive forces would be released, industry would turn out a flood of goods, and prices would come tumbling down.

So went the siren song. The ads were echoed almost word for word by Senators Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska, Republican leaders who led the attack in Congress that cut the heart out of OPA.

The housewife needs no statistical charts to tell her what has happened in the two years since the country was told that the death of OPA would mean lower prices. Hamburger costs twice what it did in June of '46 and so do a great many other essential items in the budget of the average householder. But the figures are available, too, and the President will use them in his message to the returning Congress. The index of the price of food is at 211, about half a percentage point more than at the peak in January of this year. That is 44 points higher than in June two years ago.

THE PRESIDENT does not intend, as of this writing, to ask for across-the-board price control. About a week after his message he will send a bill to Congress calling for allocation and rationing of commodities essential to the household budget.

What answer the Republicans will make has not yet been determined. They cannot simply ignore the case presented by the President. The inflationary spiral is too menacing for that, particularly now that a third round of wage increases makes another price boost certain.

The GOP could, of course, go back to one of President Truman's first acts to show that original sin in this matter of inflation can be assigned to the Democrat in the White House. The President urged Congress—it didn't take much urging—to repeal the wartime excess profits tax, which kept down the soaring profits of large corporations.

Once that step was taken, a whole chain of consequences was bound to follow, including the demand for higher wages to match the higher profit ratio. The President went even further. He backed up higher wage demands on the theory that increases were necessary to compensate for the loss of overtime worked during the war. Raises were essential, so the theory went, to sustain purchasing power and make it possible for the mass of Americans to buy the products of a greatly expanded industry.

THE REPUBLICANS might cite original sin on the excess profits tax if their own tax record in Congress were not so bad. They cut the Federal income tax by about five billion dollars at the session that ended a month ago. Nothing could have been more inflationary in its effect than that.

In the same revenue act they changed provisions of the inheritance tax in favor of the wealthy. Leaders, such as Chairman Harold Knutson of the House Ways and Means Committee, wanted to pare it down even further.

In contrast, the President's tax record during the past two years has been good. He has fought hard to keep Federal revenue at a level that would mean a surplus and reduction of the staggering Federal debt.

Faithfully he has followed the recommendations of his Council of Economic Advisers. The council's firm warning against any tax cut was not likely to win any votes in an election year. But Mr. Truman followed the unpopular course and was promptly tagged by the Republicans, "High Tax Harry."

The Council of Economic Advisers is working closely with the White House on the message to Congress. Their role, naturally, is technical rather than political. It was on the basis of the council's reports that the President presented his 10-point inflationary program to Congress last November.

Since that time, as the President will make clear, the price speedometer has jumped ahead at an alarming rate. Today, therefore, more drastic measures are called for, and these the President will recommend. As seen from the White House, this will give the Republican Congress a choice of accepting responsibility for high prices or passing legislation so often denounced in the past.

Why you should buy now

The obvious reason for buying at sale prices is that you save money. This may not mean much if lower prices were certain to come in the immediate future. We are not wise enough to predict such good news, for the trend seems upwards.

Our sales are dictated by long custom. We have no "distress" merchandise. Nor have we purchased special lots of not-quite-so-good articles to attract bargain-seeking shoppers to our store.

Everything on sale is of standard quality and in many lines we may be compelled to pay higher prices to replace what we sell.

So this is an opportunity especially for our regular customers and friends, to anticipate their needs for months ahead and buy now at the reduced prices.

On Sale now are Selected Groups of Men's Summer & Winter Suits, Topcoats & Overcoats. Fine Quality Haberdashery. Hats & Shoes. Women's Tailored Suits & Coats.

Mentally Ill Ratio Here Tops States

Strictly on the basis of population ratio, more persons are mentally ill in the District than in any of the 48 States.

The District's chief psychiatrist, however, hailed the statistical record as a healthy sign.

National statistics released yesterday by the Mental Hygiene Division, United States Public Health Service, showed that in 1946 (the year selected for the tally) the District had 4994 patients in hospitals here for mental treatment, or 612.6 for each 100,000 residents.

New York Tops States

New York State topped the States with a record of 82,806 such patients, or 593.9 per 100,000 population.

The District, too, led all 48 States in number of new admissions for mental treatment in 1946, when 1387 were reported for the year, a ratio of 170.1 per 100,000. New Hampshire ranged next highest in new admissions, with 751 admitted to hospitals for a rate of 146.3.

The Federal Security Agency branch reported that on a national scale 88 out of every 100,000 Americans were admitted to mental institutions for long-time care in 1946. Total admissions for the year were in excess of 122,000 patients, of which some 30,000 were admitted to private sanitariums.

Total for Nation

Number of mental health patients under care throughout the Nation at the end of 1046 was 527,428, the report showed.

Commenting on the District's showing, Dr. Leopold E. Wexberg, head of the District's bureau of mental hygiene, explained:

"Experience shows that the fear of admission to mental institutions is the first thing we must overcome if we are to properly care for the mentally distressed.

"With such a big and beautiful institution as St. Elizabeths Hospital here, and with its reputation for modern and proper care, much of that fear has been overcome here. Families do not hesitate to have their kin committed to St. Elizabeths."

Changing Population Here

Parenthetically, he said, Washington would be apt to have a higher rate because it is a "mobile urban area." Studies show, said Dr. Wexberg, that areas of changing population have more cases of mental disorders due to their "restless nature."

The national statistics released yesterday showed that Virginia had 4210 new admissions of mentally ill patients in 1946, a ratio of 108.3. At the end of 1946, Virginia's mental hospitals' total was 11,074, for a ratio of 374.8.

Maryland, the statistics showed, admitted 2926 new patients to mental hospitals for the year, a ratio of 90.6; by the year's end, Maryland institutions were accommodating a total of 8776, for a ratio of 373.1.

Boy, 6, Drives Tractor in Sick Dad's Place

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LEARNED AT 5—Six-year-old Lamont (Monty) Lee Antoine is shown operating a tractor-cultivator on the farm of his father, Henry, at Justus, Pa., near Scranton. The father, who is ill, says the boy has ridden on a tractor seat since he was 4 and learned to handle the controls at 5. He does a good job of farming, too, the neighbors testify

D. C. Venereal Figures Show Strange Curve

Most startling aspect of the venereal disease problem in Washington is the rampant increase in gonorrhea contemporaneous with a decline in the syphilis rate.

Gonorrhea has increased sixfold in six years—from 2296 reported cases in 1941 to 12,934 last year. But syphilis, with 5435 cases reported in 1941, rose to a wartime peak of 7652 cases in 1943—then steadily dropped down to 4313 cases last year.

And so today there are at least three reported victims of gonorrhea for every syphilis sufferer in Washington.

One explanation for the sharp cleavage in trends, health officials believe, is the differing incubation periods of gonorrhea and syphilis.

Trend Explained

Dr. S. Ross Taggart, director of the Health Department's venereal disease bureau, explains it this way:

During the incubation period of either disease, there is little chance that the newly infected person can communicate the germs to another.

Whereas syphilis symptoms may take three to six weeks to show up, gonorrhea develops and so becomes fully infectious within 24 hours to 7 days after contact.

Therefore, a person newly infected with syphilis has more time to discover symptoms and go to a doctor for treatment before he becomes a transmitter. Moreover, syphilis often develops more obvious, more readily recognized symptoms, particularly in women.

Another consideration in the respective rates of gonorrhea and syphilis is the fact that syphilis declines in infectiousness after the first year a person acquires it, Dr. Taggart reports.

That is, syphilis becomes less communicable as it goes into a latent stage. It may be wreaking havoc within the victim's body, but after one year there are less likely to be lesions on the outside of the body whereby the germs can be passed to another person. Within four years, syphilis usually becomes completely non-infectious.

Sadly, though, gonorrhea remains highly communicable at all times, while the gonococci germs are harbored in the man's urethra (urinary canal) or the woman's cervix (mouth of the womb).

Perhaps the prime reason for the slumping syphilis rate here is the effectiveness of the United States Public Health Service informational and control drive against this deadly disease. The public has been familiarized with symptoms of syphilis and learned to dread its consequences, insanity, blindness, paralysis, death.

But gonorrhea is still laughed off by most people as no more serious than a cold in the head, a tragic underestimation. To correct this misconception and to curb the gonococcus germ—which can blind and cripple, cause sterility and heart disease—health authorities here have launched a year-long drive.

WTOP to Broadcast Syphilis Program

Radio station WTOP at 10:30 tonight will broadcast a report on "The Undiscovered," a series of 14 documentary radio programs about syphilis. Some 676 persons have been, or are being cured of syphilis as a result of this series, District Health Department records indicate.

Infected persons who heard the program, then recognized that they had symptoms of syphilis, and presented themselves to District clinics for treatment, will tell their own stories on tonight's broadcast.

Also scheduled to speak are Thomas I. Richmond, of the United States Public Health Service venereal disease section; Dr. S. Ross Taggart, head of the District Health Department venereal disease bureau, and Gunnar Back, writer-narrator of the series.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of his happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

No War in Sight, Gottwald Says

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 21 (U.P.).—President Klement Gottwald told a deputation of women yesterday that there would be no war.

"The whisper propaganda about a coming war must be halted," Gottwald said. "What government in what country in the world today is capable of leading its people into an aggressive war?"

Ga. Tobacco Market Set

Valdosta, Ga., July 21 (AP).—Slow mules and fast trucks, freighted with the "Golden Leaf," were converging on a score of south Georgia and northern Florida towns today for the opening of the tobacco market tomorrow.

Fairfax Supervisors Approve Munson Hill Apartment Plan

Despite the protest of citizens and against the advice of planning and zoning officials, Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday approved an apartment development on a 43-acre tract near Baileys Crossroads.

The property, owned by Irving Payne, Fairfax builder, is on Munson Hill between Leesburg pike (Route 7) and Lee blvd., a mile north of Baileys Crossroads.

The county board of zoning appeals had unanimously disapproved the project, limiting use of the land to single-family houses. The county planning commission also recommended against the apartment development, holding along with the zoning appeals board that existing roads cannot handle the volume of traffic created by such development.

Nearby property owners jammed the board room yesterday, as they had at the original hearing two weeks ago, protesting that they had bought substantial homes on large lots to get away from crowded city conditions. They maintained the development would hurt their property values.

The supervisors granted permission for apartments by a 4-to-2 vote with the proviso that a 100-foot buffer strip be left on the north side adjoining Lee Boulevard Heights. No such provision was made for Lebanon residents on the south.

450 Children Attend Day Camps in Parks

(Second of a Series)

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

The District's many parks are not only useless but a source of danger for children unless there are programs and supervision.

In nine sylvan areas, the District Recreation Department is conducting day camps.

Four hundred and fifty children were enrolled in the two-week camp period which ended Friday. An additional 450 moved into the camps Monday for two weeks. By time the season ends August 27 an estimated 1800 children will participate.

The camps are manned by counselors who supervise the play of the children ranging in age from 7 to 14 and direct their energies into such constructive ventures as outdoor cooking.

Host to Parents at Supper

The two-week camp was climaxed Friday when the youngsters played host at supper to their parents. Programs featuring songs and plays, and an exhibition of the craft work of the children were presented for the parents.

Hiking, exploring and games are part of the camp day. Naturalists from the Parks Service lead hikes, acquainting the children with the names of trees, flowers and birds.

Each camp has a theme. Sometimes the children play they are Indians, cowboys or members of Robin Hood's band.

On rainy days the children visit museums—a popular exhibit is one on Indian life at National Museum.

Camps by giving children experience in outdoor living meet one of the city's biggest recreational needs.

Another way the Recreation Department encourages use of the city's many parks is through its picnic service.

The department loans out overnight or over a weekend picnic kits loaded with a variety of athletic equipment including soft balls and bats, badminton racquets and nets, and horseshoes.

The department also will throw in suggestions for organizing programs, picnic menus and song sheets for campfire singing.

To further simplify the process of getting together an outdoor party the department gives out permits for 142 picnic spots with fireplaces.

Entire communities turn out for night dances held at playgrounds. The hard surface areas where children bounce balls by day become the dance floor.

Every night at 10 different playgrounds throughout the city free movies are shown out-of-doors. Films are shorts, frequently on travel or sports subjects, and the program generally concludes with a community sing.

55 Industries Produce at Old Jap Naval Base

Yokosuka, Japan, July 21 (AP).—Textiles instead of torpedoes, paper instead of planes, are coming off the production lines here where Japan once had her largest naval operating base.

Fifty-five new industries, many of them housed within the once walled and tightly guarded confines of the base area, are turning out a variety of goods ranging from cloth to clocks.

The harbor, which once admitted only Japanese warships, is an anchorage for commercial vessels.

The Japanese built midget submarines here, plus some planes and many torpedoes. At one time the base employed 70,000 persons.

American raiders hardly touched Yokosuka. The Navy found machine shops, cranes, derricks and docks practically intact after the surrender.

Now the machines are used for peaceful production or to keep in good shape the U. S. naval vessels on duty in Japanese waters.

Most of Exodus Refugees Reported In Israel Now

By Ruth Gruber

Tel Aviv, July 21 (NYHT).—For the first time it can now be revealed that almost all the refugees of the Exodus 1947 have come home to Israel.

Last Sunday marked the anniversary of the tragic afternoon last summer when the former Chesapeake Bay excursion boat limped into Haifa, battered and weary after being intercepted at sea by the British.

About two months after Israel was declared a nation the bulk of the 4500 Exodus people are living, working and fighting for the homeland they tried so desperately to reach.

Their odyssey had taken them from southern France to Haifa, where the British loaded them on three prison ships, forced them back to internment in Germany.

In little groups they escaped from the British camps and went down through Europe to the secret ports in Italy and France, climbed on Haganah's tiny fishing boats or large converted ships and traveled the whole underground journey to Palestine.

Walker Heads Army in Japan

By The Associated Press

Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, who commanded the Twentieth Corps in the European campaign, will succeed Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger as commander of the Eighth Army in Japan.

Walker now is commander of the Fifth Army, with headquarters at Chicago. He will leave for Japan early in September, the Army announced yesterday.

Eichelberger is a veteran of the Pacific campaigns, having commanded the Eighth since September, 1944, when final phases of the New Guinea campaign were under way. He moved northward with his army through the Philippines campaign and then into Japan for occupation duty.

Prior to command of the Eighth, he had served in the First Corps, reporting to General MacArthur in Australia in 1942.

40 in Hyattsville Are Facing Eviction

Ten families—nearly 40 persons—face eviction if Hyattsville City Council makes effective its announced intent to close the Hyatt Mansion as "unfit for human habitation."

The venerable brick building which has stood for nearly a century and which was first occupied by the man for whom Hyattsville is named, now resounds to the prattle and laughter of nearly a dozen small children of the 10 families occupying the building.

"Their parents just shake their heads and say, "Where can a poor man find rooms at a price he can pay these days?"

C. R. Gibson and his wife were feeding four grandchildren when a reporter for The Washington Post visited the house yesterday.

Gibson said he had hunted and hunted but could find no other shelter he could afford and pointed out that a veteran son had to wait more than a year before he could get into Calvert Houses, a Federal low cost housing project at Riverdale.

Raymond Miller, who lives on the third floor wtih his wife and two small children, said he did not know where he could go if evicted. He said tenants believe that the entire eviction program is an effort to move them out before the lease held by Mrs. Grace Baer, who operates the house, expires April 20, 1949.

Other tenants bore out the plaint that they have no place to go if evicted and feel they should be allowed to remain until the lease expires which would give them time to make a more thorough search for new rooms.

There's More 'Leg' on Beach Than in Camera Ad Products

Take a look at Miss Arden McCall, 3050 S. Buchanan St., Arlington. She is a candidate for "Miss Shirlington" in a local business shopping center beauty contest and is pictured here by Photographer Charlie Baptie in a much more striking pose than your dollars sent to "cheesecake" advertisers will produce

By Ollie Atkins

WANT a good laugh? Read these typical "cheesecake" ads taken from current magazines:

Glamour Girls—Postcard size. Strictly amateur posed in silk hose, high heels, etc. Ten for $1.

For Men Only! Here are hundreds of living art studies, especially posed and photographed in full color to meet the exacting needs of artists, professional cameramen and all adult students of art. A steal at two for $1.

We say "bunko" to such classified advertisements as the above appearing in the photography magazines. To be positive our initial impression of these claims was justified, we sent a dollar bill to the first ad listed here and got in return 10 snapshots which any box brownie artist could have taken so far as the quality was concerned and of "cheesecake" no more dramatic than you can see in any movie magazine.

Enclosed in the envelope was a mimeographed letter which said in part, "Thanks for your order. Our line is strictly legitimate photos of the silk hose and high heel type." Also included was a flier for a book entitled "The Playboy's Handbook."

The old-time medicine ads were strictly pikers compared with these modern claims. One nationally-known camera magazine contained 34 of these "cheesecake" ads from which I selected the peaches published in today's column.

It's summertime now. So take it from me—you'll see a lot more cheesecake on the beaches than you'll ever get for cash through the mail from these racketeering camera magazine advertisers.

No lewd pictures are permitted in the United States mail.

HERE is another excellent reason why you should join a camera club. On Sunday, the National Photographic Society is sponsoring a picture-making junket to Harpers' Ferry, W. Va., via Frederick, Md., en route and returning via Charles Town and Leesburg. Take special charter bus leaving 1416 F st. nw. at 8 a. m. (round trip fare, $2.90). A picnic lunch basket will be necessary. Picture-making strollers will visit historic spots in Harpers Ferry, including the site of the John Brown raid, the Federal Arsenal and Jefferson Rock.

Several weeks ago we took a chip off the shoulder of some artists who claim photography is not art but a mechanical process and it did the heart good this week to see the news item from Frankfurt, Germany, regarding Paul Fontaine, American artist, who basked in glory about praise critics bestowed on his abstract paintings until he wandered over to see his stuff on display and found the pictures had been hung upside down.

Police arrested Joe Jamieson of the Associated Press Photos the other day for making pictures at the scene of a dramatic accident involving a bus and private car in Virginia. At the time of the incident the local constable told Joe not to make photos while the body of a man killed in the mishap. This was an unreasonable request of a newsman and strictly not in past practice which has seen the utmost cooperation between news photogs and the police of all branches all over the Nation.

Policeman Son Of Slain Officer Clings to Life

Detroit, July 21 (AP).—A woman's sobs, muffled in despair a generation ago, today were hushed in hope.

Mrs. Helen Kaliszewski, who kissed a rookie cop a last goodby 23 years ago, was told today that another rookie policeman, her 22-year-old son, had a chance to live.

In 1925, Mrs. Kaliszewski's husband of four months, Casimer, died in her arms in the same hospital from a bank bandit's bullets. He was 23.

Their baby, born six months after Officer Kaliszewski's death, grew up to be a cop, too. He was shot down Tuesday as he walked his beat.

Fellow officers surmised Casimer, jr., may have surprised a robber, just as his father did in 1925.

Shaw, Near 92, Offers Profundity On Washing Face

Ayot St. Lawrence, England, July 21 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw thinks people ought to stop using soap on their faces.

"Why should anyone rub soap on his or her face?" the playwright asked in an article written for the Optical News, a new Irish magazine making its bow on his 92d birthday, July 26.

"It hurts the eyes, nose and mouth, which all need cleaning," Shaw went on. "It makes children hate being washed. Sensible women use face creams, instead.

"I plunge my head into a full basin of cold water, with my eyes open and my ears well under, and shampoo it with my naked palms until it is nearly dry, when I finish it off with a rough towel.

Negro Teacher Files $25,000 Railroad Ejection Suit

Richmond, Va., July 21 (AP).—A $25,000 damage suit was filed today by a North Carolina Negro educator who sought to recover the sum from the Atlantic Coat Line Railroad Co. and A. S. Lambeth for alleged racial discrimination.

The suit was filed by William C. Chance in Federal District Court.

Chance, a resident of Parmele, N. C., said he was "unlawfully" requested to move to a forward coach of one of the company's trains while returning from the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia.

The complaint said Chance was not hindered in his choice of seats until the southbound train arrived in Richmond. At that point, he alleged, he was requested to move to a coach that was "less comfortable and had less accomodations" than other coaches "solely because . . . he is a Negro."

After refusing to move, the complaint continued, Chance was permitted to retain his seat until the train reached Emporia on the afternoon of June 25. At Emporia, Chance said, "the defendant, Lambeth, unlawfully and falsely swore to a criminal warrant charging that the plaintiff was guilty of being disorderly . . ."

Chance said he was arrested, taken from the train and placed in jail. Lambeth, the conductor of the train, later told the Trial Justice Court of Greenville County that "he was satisfied by the arrest and imprisonment of the plaintiff and the disorderly conduct charge was dropped.

He needs an Extension Telephone. Do you?

One of the advantages of having an extension telephone in your home is that you can have privacy on the line when you're entertaining guests.

It's also mighty convenient to have the telephone near at hand when someone calls late at night.

An extension saves you time and steps. It may prevent you from missing important calls. And it gives you the assurance that help is never far away in case of an emergency.

You can have an extension telephone now for only a few pennies per day. For complete information, simply call our Business Office.

Why you can get an Extension Telephone while some folks are still waiting for telephone service

No new orders for telephone service are being held up for lack of telephone instruments. It is the need for additional central office equipment, cable and other outside plant that is temporarily holding us back. We'll be able to fill new orders for service as rapidly as those facilities can be enlarged. It's a big job, but we're working harder than ever to complete it. We don't like to keep anyone waiting for telephone service.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company

"Folks, I'm still in the Bargain Bracket!"

"I really appreciate the wage increase I've been granted.

"This is the first time in 28 years that I've ever asked for even a small wage boost. I've been working in and around Washington for a long time and I've had my 'pay' cut many times. But these constantly rising costs finally forced my hand! coal, payroll and other materials.

"Why, my coal bill alone actually went up a million and a half dollars last year and at present prices it would have been three million over the 1946 bill.

"I want to point out though that the wages most of my customers pay me will go up only a little.

"ONLY ABOUT TEN CENTS A WEEK INCREASE FOR THE AVERAGE WASHINGTON HOME!

"So, you see, I'm still in the bargain bracket. Still the biggest buy on your household budget . . . with one of the lowest rates in the U.S.A. That's a distinction I intend to keep."

One on the Aisle—

Disney at Best With Americana

By Richard L. Coe

WALT DISNEY'S "Melody Time," at Keith's, is mighty pleasurable—his best in a long time, and Disney's best is always the screen used with imagination.

"Melody Time" is a Disney variety show, with such popular folk as Dennis Day, Freddy Martin, the Andrews Sisters, Roy Rogers and Fred Waring's singers to give voice to the drawings of the master and his staff.

The variety consists of seven episodes, two of them colorscopes, two semiclassics, two tall tales from American folklore and a trio of those smiling cartoons that make room for Disney's gentle humor. The revue form ties the episodes neatly together and, in passing, one may rejoice that there's no plot to weary one between the song numbers, praise be.

Picking a favorite in this melange is needless daring, but you're bound to admire the Disney approach to our national legends. First of these is the Johnny Appleseed story, which Dennis Day chants with his likable simplicity. There's an air of pride in this one inherent in the story; it's not boastful flag-waving, doesn't intrude itself, but maintains the easy going quality of a real folktale.

"Pecos Bill" is the second of these, and my favorite. Roy Rogers and his Sons of the Pioneers sing of the Texas hero neatly, and the drawings for this tall tale of the Lone Star State are delightfully fresh and amusing. It's perfect Disney material, with a winning conception of scrawny Bill and how his cocky love for Sluefoot Sue accounts for why coyotes bay at the moon. It's completely charming and makes one long for a complete catalogue of Disney—Americana.

A Frolicsome Tugboat

Another of your favorites will be "Little Toot," the tale of a frolicsome tugboat sung by the Andrews Sisters. Here you have the Disney genius for bringing life to the inanimate. If you are of the cult which believes that things have a personality, that they may bring luck or ill fortune as they may wish, that they may smile and be sad, you will relish Disney's interpretation of the chugging tug whose frivolous nature plumps an ocean liner over the West Side highway.

On the purely pictorial side, the adventure of a bumble bee to Freddy Martin's "Bumble Boogie" is a highlight and more preferable to the pretty-pretty style of "Trees." Here you have the movement of color that recalls the similar treatments accorded fancier works in 'Fantasia."

Another decisive impression one takes from "Melody Time" is admiration for the Technicolor process. Other color patents are appearing on the screen, but for clarity, richness and smooth motion, at no expense of taste, the superiority of the Technicolor cameras is unquestionable. On the basis of colorscopes alone, "Melody Time" is a refreshment to the eyes.

Into what is, above all, a mood captured only by the imaginative use of celluloid and soundtrack, one should tramp no further. But it is pleasant to have Disney's imaginative use of the screen back with us once more, and I'm sure you'll find his "Melody Time" pleasant.

TEX RITTER and his White Flash get into their week on the Capitol stage this morning, and it promises to be a busy one for the popular Westerner . . . Between their four daily stage appearances—and that means five for Saturday—Tex and White Flash have a full calendar . . . After their opening performance they'll go over to the Water Gate Inn for an all-equine brunch . . . Local thoroughbreds gathered round the trough will include Goldacious, of Mrs. Robert Watson; Bonny Fille, of Robert Lee; Mills City, of Lee Stanley Jones; Red Night, of Avon Shockey; Masque, of Mrs. Leonard Frasier, and Day Dream, of Angelina Carabelli . . . And on Saturday morning Tex will jaunt out to Hecht's Silver Spring emporium.

GRANDPA JONES, who opened Grandpa Jones, in the event you're on the fringes of the hillbilly set and don't know, is the Tagliavini of the mountain folk and is widely acclaimed for such things as "Bald Headed End of the Broom" . . . Connie Gay's Constitution Hall Saturday night series, is back in these parts and will headline "Gay Time's" bill this Saturday night . . . He'll be doing it down at the hall on bath night.

TONIGHT: The Masquers of Roosevelt Center will be giving the first play in its new out-of-doors series . . . This one is "When the Whirlwind Blows," by Essex Dane, and the program also will include music by the Takoma Mandoleers, songs by Eugene Murphy and dances by the pupils of Marjorie Mitchell . . . In the event of rain, the program will be held inside the Roosevelt auditorium, not in the school's court as now planned . . . Tonight, too, the Washington Workshop's drama group will close its current season with a repeat performance of two one-act plays, Mary Averett Seelye's "Fleas and Figs" and Thornton Wilder's "The Happy Journey," at the parish house of St. Paul's Church, 819 16th st.

WILL SHE GET THE JOB? It's too early to tell whether Bette Cannon, 19, of Alexandria, will wind up in the cast of the all-local revue, "Going Native" at the Capitol the end of next month, but from the look on Director Gene Ford's face, Bette seems to have a chance. She's one of 750 applicants whose auditions end tonight in the Press Club auditorium

Olney Boarding House Comedy Spreads a Good Table of Fun

COMEDY is again the Olney's forte this week, with "Chicken Every Sunday" as the attraction. Sidney Blackmer and several members of the original New York cast are playing their roles with zest, and laughter in the audience indicates these will be happy nights at Olney.

"Chicken Every Sunday" is comedy of a different sort than garnered the buffo laughs of last week's "Twentieth Century." This is the nostalgic, naughty approach, a sort of "Life With Father"—"I Remember Mama" with a Far West setting, where men are men and don't hold back when it comes to lustiness with the ladies.

Blackmer, who must have played virtually hundreds of screen roles of the villainous banker-horsetrader school, is having a hearty time bringing a boyish cuteness to the character of an aggressive pioneer who dabbles as head of such assorted enterprises as Tucson's bank president-streetcar chief-laundryman-dreamy prospector.

All this might be expected to make his hoped for Easy Street a reality, but pop isn't too practical. It developes on Mother to assure a steady income, which she does by taking in boarders.

These are a harum-scarum lot, and their adventures form the action which Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein have spun from the popular book of recollections by Rosemary Taylor. The Epstein brothers are screen writers of wide experience and repute, and it signs rather surprising that their play, dating from the 1943-1944 season, hasn't yet been transferred to celluloid.

The Epsteins have done a shrewd job of making Mrs. Blachman's paying guests fun for an audience. Some are screwballs, others in the position of screwballs. They've spared very few twists of life to include just about every situation which bears a laugh. And they've seen to it that, as all good comedies should, "Chicken Every Sunday" comes out with just the right romantic pairings.

All these inhabitants allow not only Star Blackmer a lively workout; everyone and the large cast has a comic field day. Wheelhorse of the action is Mary Orr, who looks a bit too young for Mother, but she's wholehearted in her playing. Maxine Stuart is expertly funny as a lively divorcee who'll inveigle an Indian in a pinch. Sarah Seegar has considerably goofy fun as a lady who takes care of herself. Ethel Remey and Lloyd Edwards limn a mother-son relationship that finally bursts its silver cord. Helen Martin is outstandingly good as the Blachman maid, and Viola Roache has a bang-up time as a squiffulated vaudeville veteran. And J. Mark Stephens and Peggy Stephens Royall are disarming fun as the household's youngsters.

"Chicken Every Sunday" may not be an example of inspired playwrighting, but it is a thoroughly successful comedy which gets every laugh it sets out for. And laughs seem to be what most all of us want.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE PARADOX is that Bill McGowan, the best, the toughest and the quickest-tempered umpire in the majors, hasn't thrown a player or manager out of a ball game in five years.

He hasn't mellowed any since he came into the league as a rookie umpire 24 seasons ago and immediately picked no less than Babe Ruth as the first victim of his wrath. He thumbed Ruth out, and quickly got a reputation as a tough guy.

POVICH

"Don't fuss with McGowan," has been the watchword of the ball players for a couple of decades now. They didn't like him, but no umpire's authority was more respected. Consequently he has had less trouble than other umpires, but not simply because he had the players cowed. There were fewer arguments with McGowan because he muffed fewer decisions.

If they didn't like McGowan's tyranny, that fact didn't deter the players, a few ars ago, from voting him "No. One" in a poll conducted among clubs to rate the umpires as they preferred them. That didn't endear McGowan to his fellow umpires, incidentally. der their breaths they muttered "No. One" and "Big Shot" en he wasn't within hearing. Umpires are a jealous group any- y. Other umpires rated higher in company politics and got re frequent World Series assignments than McGowan but he ld still strut his top rating.

LL OF THE swagger has gone out of McGowan since his sus- sion, however. He's talking and walking softly, at least until knows his fate from League President Will Harridge, who is estigating the Nats' charges that McGowan was profane and at- pted to brow-beat the Washington players.

I don't want to do any talking," said McGowan yesterday. "Mr. ridge is running the league, and I'm taking orders. I still don't w why I was suspended."

McGowan has been in trouble before with league headquarters, with its umpiring in a sorry state already, the league was never posed to get tough with him to the point of firing him, or even pending him.

he suspension before an inquiry, and taken merely after hearing rges telephoned by the Washington club, is an unprecedented on by a league president. I think I know what McGowan is king at this point. To him, Harridge's action sounds like rike two, yer out!"

NEVITABLE was the story that Joe Louis is reneging on his sion to retire and will fight "one more." In direct quotes lited to Louis, Ring Magazine says Joe is bored with one round olf after another and "I have to look forward to something more ting. Maybe I should meet Lesnevich. I can beat him. I still be able to retire unbeaten like Gene Tunny."

a direct denial Louis has said "I don't know where those rumors e from. I've retired and that's all there is to it." But Louis' ne of mind is always subject to change, particularly with his of revenue in big chunks and a Lesnevich fight guaranteed to h him at least $500,000.

unney is still the only heavyweight champ to announce his re- ment undefeated and make it stick. Louis' retirement thus far f only one-month duration. As yet, that isn't quite admissible tence that he's leveling.

HE QUOTE OF THE WEEK, though, belongs to United States mpic Committee Chairman Avery Brundage, the former weight wer and strict disciplinarian of wayward Olympic athletes of m his biographers have said: "Brundage has a discus where heart ought to be."

rundage was announcing his retirement as Olympic chief at the of this year's games, and explained: "I think it is a good thing the presidency to be passed around." That last must be a re- idea of Brundage, who has held the job for 20 years.

ROM THE START of the season, Manager Bucky Harris of the kees stated frankly that the club he was worried about was the Sox. Even with the Indians holding the league lead from April July except for two days in mid-June, Harris was more con- ed by the threat of the Red Sox to take it all.

hat threat is now more ominous. When Harris awoke yesterday w his Yankees in third place, only one game in the fore of the paging Red Sox who have been the hottest club in the league a month. Even without Ted Williams, the Sox have been win- . He's been out of the game for 10 days now and his return e lineup will not make the Yankees or the Indians happy.

arridge Will Not Come Here o Probe Bill McGowan Case ill Harridge, president of the erican League, will not come Washington to investigate rges by the Nats that Umpire McGowan abused two of the hington players in Monday t's Nat-Cleveland game. arridge, who Tuesday sus- ded McGowan pending a plete investigation of the plaints against him by the hington club, yesterday re- sted the Nats to send him davits setting forth their rges against McGowan.

McGowan, who is standing by at his home in Silver Spring, Md., pending Harridge's final decision in the case, may be called to Chicago by Harridge.

The Nats charged that McGowan cursed Outfielder Ed Stewart and threw a baseball at him in Monday's game. They also claim that McGowan ridiculed Pitcher Ray Scarborough in Thursday's Chicago-Washington tilt.

Bill Can Have a Job In Evangeline Loop

Dallas, July 21 (AP).—Bill McGowan, the big league umpire now under suspension for allegedly cursing and throwing a baseball at a player, has nothing to fear along the unemployment line, says Lefty Craig, who employs a lot of umpires.

Craig, umpire supervisor for six minor leagues—the Big State, Evangeline, Lone Star, Sooner State, Longhorn and West Texas-New Mexico—today sent this telegram to McGowan at his home in Silver Spring, Md.:

"Have opening on Evangeline League umpiring staff if worse comes to worst."

New York Wins 1st, 7 to 3; Loses, 12-8

New York, July 21 (AP).—Sparked by Jim Hegan's grand slam home run in the eighth inning, the league-leading Cleveland Indians came from behind and beat the New York Yankees, 12-8, today after the Yanks had won the opener of the doubleheader, 7-3. The attendance was 67,133.

Trailing 8-4 going into the seventh inning, the Indians scored three runs on Lou Boudreau's double and singles by Joe Gordon, Ed Robinson, Hal Peck and Dale Mitchell to set the stage for their big eighth inning.

Allie Clark singled to start the five-run rally. A walk and Ken Keltner's single knocked in the tying run and sent Relief Pitcher Joe Page to the showers. Karl Drews took over and walked Pinch-Hitter Wally Judnich to load the bases. Hegan followed with a homer into the left field stands. Russ Christopher, fourth Cleveland pitcher, was the winner.

In the opener, the Yanks supported the six-hit pitching of Lefty Ed Lopat with a 12-hit attack that included homers by Joe DiMaggio, Billy Johnson, Cliff Mapes and Phil Rizzuto.

Boston Rally Sweeps Two From Chicago

Boston, July 21 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox stormed from behind with a three-run rally in the ninth to sweep a day-night double-header from Chicago White Sox, 10-9, tonight after capturing the afternoon contest, 3-1.

Those successes moved the Bosox into a third-place tie with the New York Yankees, the team they figure they must beat for the American League pennant.

Same Mele thrilled a 29,851 crowd by keeping the Bosox in the arclight competition with a two-run homer in the third inning, after Bobby Doerr had doubled with the bases loaded. Mele doubled in the ninth and then scored the winning run, thereby giving Tex Hughson, who hurled only in the last frame, his first pitching win of the season.

Climbing Bums Whip Cubs Twice, 9-3, 7-1

Chicago, July 21 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers continued their torrid pace in the National League pennant race today, sweeping a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs, 9-3 and 7-1, to strengthen their grip on second place.

Since Burt Shotton took over from Leo Durocher, the Dodgers have won seven games and lost only one.

Big Ralph Branca breezed to his twelfth victory in the first game, scattering eight hits while his mates clubbed three Chicago pitchers for 16.

Tommy Brown and Jackie Robinson led the Dodger attack by collecting three hits apiece. Brown knocked in four runs, including two in the fourth inning when the Dodgers staged a five-run rally to sew up the game.

Dutch McCall held the Dodgers hitless for five innings in the second game, but the Brooks, with the aid of two errors, broke his spell by scoring four runs in the sixth.

Louis Vetoes Fight Reports

Detroit, July 20 (U.P.).—Joe Louis, surprised at widespread reports that he might come out of retirement to fight Gus Lesnevich in September, denied emphatically tonight that he would ever return to the ring.

The abdicated heavyweight champion declared, "this is final, regardless of what anybody says or writes. I'll not fight Lesnevich in September and I won't fight anybody else at anytime. I've hung up my gloves for good."

Louis issued this denial tonight after a conference with Comanagers John Roxborough and Marshall Miles and Attorney Truman Gibson, jr.

His statement came as a bombshell in the boxing world, where many prominent persons felt certain that Louis would fight Lesnevitch at Yankee Stadium in New York on September 22, if Lesnevich defeated Freddie Mills at London, Monday night.

Citation Is Scratched; Shy Guy 2d

Papa Redbird, chestnut 3-year-old son of Balladier-Taj Bibi, ran a remarkable race, stepping the mile in 1:35 2/5, only a second slower than Equipoise's world record.

Bewitch, only filly in the field, finished 2¼ lengths behind Shy Guy.

Papa Redbird's margin over Shy Guy, which Steve Brooks brought up in a hurry in the stretch, was only a head.

Papa Redbird took down the winner's swag of $19,000. It was the most important triumph of his career, and in fact his first stakes victory. He was the losing favorite in the 1947 Arlington Futurity.

Bewitch had no excuses. She got away in front and at the quarter, was just a length behind the pace setter, W. M. Ingram's Carraramarble. Baird moved Papa Redbird up as the band hit the quarter and then caught Carraramarble while Bewitch also was Stepping ahead.

At the half it was still Carraramarble in front, Papa Redbird second, and Bewitch third.

Papa Redbird swept into the turn for home in front but being challenged by Shy Guy and Bewitch. As the trio straightened out, Papa Redbird and Shy Guy were heads apart and they never changed their positions.

Whirl Blast, ridden by Jockey Eddie Arcaro, was fourth.

Crossley, Public Links Ace, Wins Match on 3-Minute Putt

Atlanta, July 21 (AP).—Wilfred Crossley's on-again, off-again putter was hot this afternoon as the national public links champion crushed his fourth-round opponent, 5 and 4.

The champion, a Brooklyn insurance executive, sent Michael Szwedko of Sharpsburg, Pa., reeling and very nearly turned the entire tournament into a "beat Crossley" race.

Patrick V. Martino, last of the Washington, D. C. representatives, bowed out to Rudolph L. Karry of Philadelphia, 3 and 2.

In the third round this morning, the former New England amateur champion won his match when a putt tottered on the edge of a hole for three minutes and then fell for a birdie. Crossley and his morning opponent, Frank Michalek of Baltimore, waited for the putt and just before it fell Michalek commented:

"I guess I'll have to give it to you."

Crosley said he thougnt they had waited long enough. The two golfers started toward the ball, but it plunked into the cup before they reached it. They were more than a yard away when the ball fell.

Aubrey Turrentine, the Durham, N. C., pendulum golfer, had a large gallery watching his victory over Joe Belton, jr., of Dayton, Ohio, by a big 4 and 3 margin.

Thrifty Wins On Aud's Hit

Shortstop Bill Aud tripled home three runs in the first inning to lead Thrifty to a 4-3 victory over Heurich in The Washington Post-Industrial League yesterday on the Ellipse. Bill Hess pitched a six-hitter for the winners.

Zone Rules Waived For NBC Television

National Broadcasting Co. yesterday was granted permission by the Board of Zoning Adjustment to increase the height of its television tower 12 feet and install an experimental television transmitter at Wardman Park Hotel.

The board permitted the exception to zoning regulations for one year, after no opposition to the plan was voiced at a public hearing.

In other actions the Washington Institute of Medicine Research Foundation was given permission to operate a library for research in the restricted section at 1708 Massachusetts ave. nw., after the proposal went unopposed at the hearing.

The board approved requests by Capital Transit Co. to extend bus and streetcar terminal canopies at Georgia and Eastern aves nw., and Connecticut ave. north of Hampton st. nw. CTC also was permitted to set up a news and refreshment stand to be operated by the Washington Society for the Blind at the latter terminal.

Woodward & Lothrop Co. was given authority for use of a building at the rear of 923-927 L st. nw., as a warehouse for storage and the operation of a painting, decorating, maintenance and house repair business.

10 Rezoning Pleas Granted

Approval was given 11 rezoning petitions and six others were postponed to August 18 yesterday by Prince Georges County Commissioners. The Commissioners held public headings in the County Service Building at Hyattsville.

Largest project approved was the application of Ralph G. Shure, agent, for apartment house zoning of a part of the Riggs Estate on Ager rd. between Hamilton st. and Riggs rd., Hyattsville. The 11-acre tract will be site of a half-million-dollar, 112-unit, two-story garden type apartment project, Shure said. The land is owned by John H. Burton, Hyattsville nurseryman and president of the Maryland Nurserymen's Association, who plans the development, Shure added.

Other petitions approved were:

Margaret K. Hines, owner, lot 8, Jaquet subdivision of Hyattsville, from residential A to commercial D; Edward K. Allen, owner, portion of the Thomas M. Miller tract on east side of Riggs rd. between Eastern ave. and Chillum rd., from residential A to commercial D; Frances Irons and Whitnet Irons, owners, parcel of land in Seabrook west of Seabrook ave. (Railroad ave.) and south of the Pennsylvania Railroad, from residential A to commercial D; Harry E. Stello, owner, lots 12 and 13, block 13, Kropp's Addition, College Park, from residential A to industrial E; Edgar F. Csarra, owner, lot 3, Csarra's Addition to Hyattsville, 5209 38th ave., Hyattsville, from residential A to commercial D; Vincent B. Seek, agent, parcel of land on west side of Sheppards Branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the south side of Baltimore Parkway in second district, Bladensburg, from residential A to industrial E; Dallas Williams, owner, lot 15, block B, Jefferson Heights, Seat Pleasant, from residential A to commercial D; Robert E. Harris and Violet C. Harris, contract owners, southern part of parcel C of the Guervich Estate, Baltimore blvd., Vansville District, from residential A to commercial D; Ned Underwood, owner, lots 1 to 6, inclusive, block A, Sylvan Vista, residential A to commercial D; Leo F. Lauterback, owners, lot 5, block 39, Riverdale, from residential A to commercial D.

The petitions postponed were those of Dr. Howard F. Strine and Ruth Powell Strine, William E. Hawkins, Albert Simmons and Pearl Simmons, Charles E. Karr and Edward L. Haley.

Bread Rationing To End in Britain

London, July 21 (NYHT.)—Food Minister John Strachey announced in the House of Commons today that bread and flour rationing will end in Britain at midnight Saturday.

Bread and flour have been rationed since July 21, 1946.

Good grain crop prospects for Britain has been the chief factor in the decision.

Then the reptile struck her finger and the picture at the right was snapped. She died 90 minutes later

Board Plans Zone Merger in Arlington

Plans to combine commercial districts now in Section 5 of Arlington County in the new master plan for zoning were disclosed yesterday by the Arlington County Planning Commission.

A public conference on the planning commission's proposals for this section of the county is scheduled for July 28. Section 5, one of the most populous in Arlington, includes Arlington Forest, Ballston, Bon Air, Brandon Village, Buckingham, Dominion Hills, East Falls Church, Glen Carlyn, Highland Park, Lee Heights, Livingston Heights, Overlee Knolls and Westover.

Under the proposal, scattered commercial areas along Lee highway would be zoned into commercial districts. This would eleminate the present condition of having a residential lot between two commercial lots or having commercial property facing residential property.

Aside from local commercial development, the revised master plan also allows a "C-2" general commercial district for the Cherrydale Shopping Development, Falls Church, and similar areas with a large density of population to serve.

A limited industrial use of land would be allowed on the west side of Fairfax dr. at Falls Church.

Many Legal Decisions Clarify Operation of New Retirement Act

The Langer-Chavez-Stephenson Retirement Act has been law nearly five months. This is the first of a series of vacation articles on how it's functioning.

What effect has the new retirement act had on the Civil Service retirement system? This frequently asked question can be answered from three angles which are:

(1) An examination of administrative decisions and clarifications arising from the new law; (2) a review of certain provisions of the law which have proved to be of particular interest but are difficult to understand; and (3) a survey of some interesting cases handled by the retirement division of the Civil Service Commission.

Today let's spend some time on the No. 1 item.

When any new piece of legislation is put into operation, many questions are bound to arise which must be determined administratively on the basis of legal interpretation. Obviously, no law can be written so as to cover in explicit language all contingencies and conditions. For the sake of operational expediency it is also necessary to clarify parts of the law which to the average layman are confusing and often appear to be contradictory. Here are some of the important decisions and clarifications which the Civil Service Commission has already made.

Let's first take some of the decisions which have been made with regard to those people who were retired before April 1, 1948—the annuitants who were entitled either to the increase in their own annuities, or to the privilege of naming the husband or wife to receive an annuity upon their death.

Here is a decision which is beneficial to the wife or husband who was named joint-annuitant under the old law. If the retired employe (who took a reduced annuity when he retired to provide for the survivor) elected to take the increase for himself, this increase will be reflected in the annuity due the survivor upon his death. In other words, the survivor will receive one half of the rate which the retired employe is receiving when he dies—not one half of the rate which the retired employe was receiving before he got the increase.

Another decision (where the retired employe did not take the increase for himself) fixes the date the annuity will begin to the surviving wife or husband. In this case the annuity will begin on the day following the death of the retired employe.

The companion decision to the above is a ruling that annuity payments to the survivor-annuitant cease as of the last day of the month preceding the date of death. In other words, if the survivor-annuitant dies in the middle of a month, there is no so-called accrued annuity, as it lapses with the death of the survivor-annuitant.

Even though every annuitant who was retired before April 1, 1948, was provided a notice showing he could either choose the increase for himself or provide an annuity for his widow (or husband) upon his death, some of the annuitants failed to return the notice to the Retirement Division. Ruling was made some time ago that these people would be notified by letter that if choice was not made within 30 days of receipt of the letter, the annuity rate to the individual would be increased automatically. Without a ruling of this sort, the Retirement Division could never close the books with respect to these individuals.

Several rulings of clarifications have been made regarding the deposit of money in the retirement fund for the purchase of military service. Here are a couple:

The recent amendment to the Retirement Act put military service in the gift class—that is, no contribution is required at all for any of it. It was natural that a question would arise as to whether such money deposited before April 1, 1948 (the effective date of the new law) for the purchase of this service could be refunded. The answer is no. That is water over the dam, for at the time the money was deposited it was strictly according to the law in effect at that time.

However, any money deposited for this purpose after April 1, 1948, is another story. It may be refunded. Generally, this money will not be accepted by the Retirement Division, but if for some reason it is deposited in the fund it may be refunded, but remember—not unless it was deposited after April 1, 1948.

Here is a situation which needed to be clarified. An employe made a service credit deposit for both civilian and military service. Later he left the service and paid a refund. Then he returned to the Federal service and decided that he wanted to redeposit the money refunded to him. The question: Must the redeposit include the military service deposit? The answer is no.

WALLACE'S ARITHMETIC: In a recent column, the Federal Diary commented that Henry Wallace needs a manager who knows fourth grade arithmetic. The statement was based on the story that the Democratic and Republican parties jointly paid $20,000 to decorate Philadelphia's convention hall, then accepted a check of $10,000 from Henry Wallace, reducing their share to $5000 each.

According to James McCormick, of the M. & L. Construction Co., which decorated the hall, the two major parties jointly paid $50,000 for the decorations. When Wallace came through with a $10,000 check for the use of the decorations, he reduced the cost to each of the major parties to $20,000.

In other words, Wallace wound up paying exactly half what each major party paid, instead of twice as much—which would indicate that he knows fourth grade arithmetic.

Another Polio Case Reported In District

National Figures Reach 3603, Topping 1946 Period by 1011

One more case of infantile paralysis was reported in the District yesterday, as national records soared above figures for the same period in 1946, second worst polio year on record.

The District case was identified as a 6-year-old boy living in the 3500 block of Rock Creek Church rd. nw. He was admitted to Children's Hospital on July 7, but his illness was not diagnosed as infantile paralysis until yesterday, the District Health Department said.

Eight District Cases

His case brought to eight the number of District residents stricken with polio this year. Another eight cases among nonresidents have been admitted to hospitals for treatment here this year. At the same time last year, records showed, there were three resident and five nonresident cases under treatment in District hospitals.

Nationally, the number of infantile paralysis cases this year mounted to 3603 by the end of last week, the Public Health Service reported yesterday. This was 1011 more than for the same period in 1946.

The service said that the majority of cases are still being reported from three States, North Carolina, California and Texas. Six other Southern States have reported slightly more than the expected number. Of last week's total number of new cases, 717, about 61 per cent were reported from the three hardest hit States.

Texas reported that polio struck 75 new victims last week. The new cases brought the year's total to date to 811, compared to 452 for the comparable period in 1946, the last bad polio year.

Virginia's total for the year reached 56 cases yesterday when a 9-year-old Tazewell County boy was hospitalized with "a mild case of infantile paralysis," the State Health Department reported.

North Carolina, with 47 new cases recorded yesterday, has reported 783 cases since January 1. The total is within 95 cases of the 878 reported in 1944, the State's most severe polio year.

The Tarheel State's polio record brought warning to District motorists to avoid travel in the danger areas, particularly with children. The warning was issued to its members by the District of Columbia division, American Automobile Association, last night.

Children Now Get Schooling At D. C. Home

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Into the disrupted lives of a group of homeless children has come the steadying influence of a school.

The children are wards of the Board of Public Welfare, housed in the Industrial Home School Annex on Little Falls rd. nw. The children, all under 13, are there until relatives take them in or until they are adopted or placed in foster homes.

Some of the children remain in the home for months while others are there a matter of days. Until a few weeks ago there was no planned program for the children. No effort was made to continue their education. Now each child goes to school several hours a day.

Now Separated

The children at the annex formerly came under the jurisdiction of the Receiving Home. The Welfare Department recently set up the annex to separate these dependent children from delinquent children sent to the Receiving Home by Juvenile Court.

The Receiving Home, while at present sharing quarters with the Industrial Home School Annex, will move September 1 to a new building at Mount Olivet rd. near Corcoran st. ne.

When the children ask Miss Winifred Thompson, assistant superintendent of the Industrial Home in charge of the annex, why they must go to school in the summer, she tells them it is because they did not go to school last winter.

Hard Work Ahead

For most of the children it will be a hard climb before they catch up in their studies. Several are illiterate and nine out of every ten are below grade level. They are children who have been in and out of schools but never in long enough to learn.

The 60 children are grouped roughly into four classes by age and training. Instruction as much as possible is individual and remedial.

During the abbreviated summer program the two instructors, Mrs. Elaine Jenkins and Bifflee Moore, are teaching in the same classroom, dividing the children into small groups.

Like most District welfare projects, the school is hampered by a shortage of funds.

Because the youngsters are on many grade levels, a variety of books are needed. Textbooks now in use are hand-me-downs no longer used in the public schools. The school also is without work books and craft materials.

Are Trained Teachers

Both Mrs. Jenkins and Moore are trained teachers who meet District Board of Education requirements. Mrs. Jenkins, who has degrees from the University of Denver and Ohio State, was a substitute teacher in the Negro schools here before her present assignment. Moore, a graduate of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., is a specialist in remedial reading.

Classes are non-segregated—the only such classes supported by public funds in the city.

"We have not made an issue of racial difference and the children have not recognized it," Miss Thompson said.

By September, Carl Oliver who is in charge of classes at the Industrial Home School on Wisconsin ave., where children over 13 are housed, plans a testing program at the annex to determine the IQ's of the children as well as their skills in reading, spelling and arithmetic.

Gallinger Rejects Blood Of Red Cross

Hospital Denies Race Origin Is Involved; Seeks Own Bank

Use of free Red Cross blood supplies in Gallinger Hospital has been forbidden by executive order of the hospital's chief of staff, Rear Admiral P. S. Rossiter (USN Ret.), it was learned yesterday.

The order, it was reported, closely followed refusal of the District Red Cross Blood Center to designate race origin of blood and plasma requested by the hospital.

Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, however, said the primary reason behind the order was to enable Gallinger to build up its own blood bank so the hospital could be independent of Red Cross supplies "which might not always be available."

Segregation Admitted

Dr. Jacob Weinstein, chief of Gallinger's blood bank, said the hospital blood bank does segregate its supplies according to race of the donor as well as by blood types. He admitted that "as far as blood experts know today" there is no physiological difference in the blood of Negroes and whites.

"Under order of the executive committee of the hospital, issued several years ago and never rescinded," said Dr. Weinstein, "transfusions of white blood to Negro patients or Negro blood to white patients is forbidden. There's a legal question involved," he added in explanation of the order.

Admiral Rossiter's order, issued on July 16, stated:

"To all chief medical officers, residents and interns: Until further notice, no blood obtained from the Red Cross shall be administered to patients in this hospital. And no additional blood shall be obtained from the Red Cross under any circumstances.

"All chief medical officers shall immediately take steps to insure that residents and interns on their services are cognizant of and shall obey these instructions. This will require extra effort . . . in securing donors to maintain the solvency of the hospital blood bank."

Own Sources Needed

Dr. Sweeney said "continuing extra effort" was what the hospital blood bank needed to be properly maintained. Too many resident physicians and interns, he said, had begun to rely too heavily on the Red Cross free supplies.

"The blood bank we built up over the years, before the Red Cross program, was being threatened," he said. "And we want to keep it at an ever-increasing level so that in case of a national emergency, when perhaps the Red Cross banks will be drained, we will have enough for our needs. We might even become a blood center for civilian use."

Dr. Weinstein expressed the same sentiment, adding that "at least once, over a weekend holiday, when we needed blood we could not get it from the Red Cross."

A spokesman for the District Red Cross Blood Center explained that the center was following "policy" in refusing to identify race origin of blood supplied Gallinger Hospital, a District institution. The "policy," spokesman said, provides that the center will identify race origin on request of private physicians but withholds such information on blood to be supplied Government hospitals.

Gallinger Hospital, in its own blood bank system, replenishes supplies by voluntary donors solicited among friends and relatives of patients receiving blood from the bank, Dr. Weinstein said.

Karl W. Bradley, Architect, Dies

Stricken on a streetcar about 7:15 p. m. yesterday, Karl W. Bradley, 55, an architect of 2308 Wisconsin ave. nw., was pronounced dead 10 minutes later at Emergency Hospital.

The man collapsed as the car approached Wisconsin and Dumbarton aves. nw.

Leroy Gollus, in whose home Bradley had quarters, said Mrs. Bradley was on her way home from Oak Bluffs, Mass., where she had been vacationing. Gollus said Bradley was an architect but that he did not know where Bradley worked. The Bradleys, he said, have a son in New York and a daughter in Michigan.

Transit Firm Asks ICC Fare Ruled Invalid

Says U. S. Agency Can't Go Over PUC And Order Low Va. Commuter Rate

The Capital Transit Co. asked District Court yesterday to nullify an Interstate Commerce Commission order compelling the company to participate in the low-fare system between Washington and near-by Virginia points.

The case affects those commuting between Washington and the Pentagon, the Washington National Airport, the Navy Annex and the Air Force Annex buildings in Arlington.

Capital Transit wants for itself 10 cents a ride or $1.50 for a weekly pass for all its passengers, whether they commute or not.

19c Fare Would Result

Under the ICC rate to go into effect after August 2, Capital Transit will get 7 cents from the 16-cent-a-ride rate that will be charged. The other 9 cents goes to the lines which meet Capital Transit here and travel to the Virginia area.

Thus, it is indicated that if the Capital Transit plan becomes effective the rate will rise to 19 cents for a one-way ride between Washington and near-by Virginia.

(Until August 2, the rate as ordered by ICC is 13.3 cents a ride, of which Capital Transit gets 5.83 cents.)

Wants PUC to Set Fare

Capital Transit asked the court for a declaratory judgment voiding the ICC order and giving the Public Utility Commission the authority to determine the fare bus and streetcar riders must pay on Capital Transit lines.

The company said the PUC set the 10 cents a ride, $1.50 weekly rate. It cited a PUC letter dated July 29, 1948, ordering the company to cease and desist from collecting joint fare tickets good on local buses and streetcars as well as buses of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. and of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co.

Holds ICC Order Illegal

Thus, said the company, if it obeys the ICC, it must violate the orders of the PUC at its peril. The company charged that the ICC cannot set rates legally for Capital Transit between here and Virginia, since no Capital Transit vehicles operate in Virginia.

The suit also asked that the ICC, the Attorney General and the United States Attorney here, among others, be enjoined from taking any action against Capital Transit pending disposition of the case.

The summonses in the case are returnable in District Court Monday, when a hearing will be held.

Glass Held Poison

Man's Body Found in Room Here

The 75-year-old author of a pamphlet, "Success or Failure—Take Your Choice," was found dead in his room here last night, a copy of his pamphlet laying beside a poison-stained drinking glass.

He was identified by police as Robert L. Landon, 1225 N st. nw. Police said he was a charity ward of the District Welfare Department.

Besides the glass and pamphlet were three notes, one addressed to police referring vaguely to persecutions and directing police attention to a second note in code and addressed to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

The note to Hoover ran for two pages. It contained such sentences as: "Tutusherure isus susomume cutasushush which cutanun bube furounund inun a tutinun chutanun onun tutopop ofrer tuthushe cuta bube in an etut."

The third note dealt with disposal of his belongings.

Landon's body was found by Charles A. Seaton, who also lives at the N st. address, about 6:15 p. m. He was pronounced dead upon arrival at Gallinger Hospital. Seaton said the body was lying on a daybed.

The pamphlet on success was copyrighted in 1943 and apparently had been printed by Landon himself. It listed as rules for success: 1. "Have a definite goal in life;" 2. "Have self confidence," 3. "Honesty, truth and industry;" and 4. "Save some money."

Police last night had not located any relatives. An autopsy is expected to be performed today.

180-Person Plane To Cross U. S. Sunday

The biggest passenger plane in the world will make its first cross-country flight Sunday to the East Coast.

The Navy's Lockheed Constitution with a capacity of 180 persons will fly nonstop from Moffett Field near San Francisco to the Patuxent River naval air station in Maryland, the Navy announced last night.

Later the huge double-deck transport will be displayed several days next week at the Washington National Airport.

Filipino Stewardesses Find U. S. Males 'Wolves but Nice'

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

RELAX AFTER SIGHTSEEING—Teresita Huerta (left) and Ines Viaplana, both 21 and from the Philippines, and hostesses for Northwest Airlines, rest in their hotel room after a day of sightseeing here. They are on a tour of the United States

For a couple of much-traveled Filipino airline stewardesses who fly the Orient regularly, their first trip to America has been a "revelation" and Washington is the "most beautiful city yet."

The flying hostesses are Ines Viaplana and Teresita Huerta, both 21, both dark-eyed and brunette, and both here because Northwest Airlines, their company, thinks their excellent first-year records deserve a reward.

They left Manila June 29 and came to the United States over the northern route via Anchorage, Alaska. Since then, they've stopped in cities over the country and had a bangup time sightseeing.

Pretty Ines, the spokesman for the two because she talks the fastest, passes a dubious compliment to American women: "They're straightforward."

Both have more to say about American men. "They're pleasantly crazy," and they're "wolves, but nice wolves."

The girls joined the airline 14 months ago, received two months training, and have spent the past year flying between Manila, Okinawa, Tokyo, Shanghai and Korea.

Later this week, their month's stay in the United States almost over, they'll proceed to New York for a short visit. Teresita is "crazy to see New York, the skyscrapers, the fast-moving people."

And then, their lifelong ambition to visit this countrty realized, they'll head back to Manila and the job.

D. C. Has Tax 'Club' Over Lobby Groups

A one-word change in the District Revenue Act of 1947 has given the city a tax "club" to hold over the heads of questionable charity and educational organizations.

Assessor Edward A. Dent revealed yesterday that the change "gives us a little more leeway in cases where we believe an organization is fundamentally engaged in lobbying."

Prior to passage of the 1947 law, charitable, educational, religious, scientific and similar nonprofit organizations were exempt from District income taxes providing "no substantial part" of their activities "is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation.

In the 1937 law, Dent said, the word "substantial" was delted to "strengthen our hand a little bit more" in denying tax exemption to organizations "where there might have been a question under the said act."

"For all practical purposes," he said, "there will be no substantial change in our administration of the law.

The law has been in effect for more than a year, he pointed out, and no organization's claim to tax exemption has been denied by the assessor.

That fact should give "comfort" to any organization which feels uneasy over the change, he declared. There is nothing in the new law, he added, which he believes would interfere at all with the right of an organization to testify either before Committees of Congress or the Commissioners on proposed legislation.

Tax officials estimated there are approximately 500 organizations which are eligible for tax exemption under the law. If the assessor denied an organization's claim for exemption, Dent pointed out, the case could be appealed to the District Board of Tax Appeals.

Police Candidates To Be Interviewed In Prince Georges

Personal interviews will be given the 21 men who passed the July 8 police examinations in Prince Georges County, Md., the Board of Police Commissioners decided yesterday.

Examination papers of the 21 were presented to the board by Mrs. Betty Tayman, clerk. They were graded by F. Paul Barnhart, principal of Bladensburg High School.

The interviews will not begin for at least two weeks because of a full schedule for the commissioners during the next two weeks, Norman H. Collins, president of the board, said.

The board yesterday named Pvts. Joseph Hill and William Little, who have been temporary policemen, to the permanent force to succeed Policeman Charles Caldwell, killed in action, and Arnett W. Cord, resigned.

Ceramic Display

Art to Vie With Fish at Market Fair

Fine art once again will raise its sensitive head in the strange atmosphere of raw fish and moist sawdust, pigs knuckles and watermelons.

Come this Friday, the Center Market City, 5th and K sts. nw., will add to its stomach attractions, food for the artistic soul—some 500 pieces of ceramics and glass sculpture.

The arty fare, works of 72 local craftsmen, will be displayed for 30 days, starting Friday at 10 a. m. Hours for the exhibit will be 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., Mondays through Saturdays, except Wednesday, when closing time is 1 p. m.

Prices range from $1.50 to $1200 for a brilliant-colored sculptured ceramic set of Henry VIII's wives.

Incidentally, Henry's wives, as they were being uncrated and readied for display yesterday, stirred the interest of a browsing fishmonger, 300-pound Bishop Thompson, 30, of 1520 19th st. se.

"Women," he opined, "are interesting in any form, even if it's only clay ones."

His mouth full of his own wares, shrimp, Thompson confided that his interest in art is purely practical:

"Last time art came to the market business was bustin' out all over—200 customers at the counter at a time." He was referring to the May-June exhibit of paintings and sculpture.

Another slant on the subject was volunteered by Bishop's brother, Al Thompson, 26, of 4605 29th st., Mount Rainier, Md.:

"I get tired of looking at crabs, crabs, crabs all day," he said, as he punctured another hard shell with an ice pick, to end its wriggling misery.

"Mind you, I don't find crabs ugly, and I love to eat 'em," he explained, "but change of scenery, like this art here, don't hurt none."

Included in the show will be sculptures and furniture of glass made by Willis Lowry of 925 Selim rd., Silver Spring, one of the leading exponents of a vanishing form. Techniques of ceramics, glazing and pottery will be demonstrated at the exhibit, sponsored by Lowry, Robert Winthrop, director of the Ceramics Studio, 2012 K st. nw., and the market management.

Man Hurt by Hit-Run Driver Is Identified

A man, who suffered serious head injuries Tuesday night when struck by a hit-run driver last night was identified as Walter Johnson, 50, of 142 11th st. se.

Johnson was hit at 11th and B sts. se. He is in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital. Police are seeking the owner of a 1937 Buick bearing Virginia tags, which, witnesses said, sped away after felling Johnson.

Association On Housing Voted Into Chest Again

Trustees Decide Issue 45 to 39; 56 Welfare Units Get Membership

United Community Services, Washington's new Red Feather organization, voted yesterday to let the controversial Washington Housing Association share again this year in Chest funds.

The housing agency, whose membership in the old Washington Community Chest drew criticism from several sides in recent years, won a place in the new over-all Chest organization by a narrow vote in the UCS board of trustees. With about 90 of the board's 172 members present, 45 voted to let in WHA and 39 to exclude it.

UCS, now a month old, replaced the Washington Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies. Like the old Chest, it is part of the Community Chest Federation, which covers the District and adjoining Virginia and Maryland Counties.

Membership was granted to a total of 56 welfare agencies at the meeting in Room B, Departmental Auditorium. Only one, the Armed Services, YMCA, 1736 G st. nw., was a newcomer among Chest-supported agencies.

Criteria Committee Named

Immediately following the WHA balloting, the trustees set up a committee that will draft a set of criteria on which eligibility of agencies for Chest funds could be determined in the future.

Major opposition to WHA has been from the Washington Home Builders Association, Federation of Businessmen's Associations, the Board of Trade and the Federation of Citizens Association. The housing agency, organized in 1933, is devoted to bettering District dwellings, particularly for those in the lower income brackets. It has been in the Chest since 1936.

Speaking for retention of WHA in the Chest, C. F. Preller, president of the Washington Central Labor Union, warned that its expulsion might mean the "disintegration" of UCS. Although WHA extends no charity as such, Preller argued, the agency serves Washington as a whole through its studies, reports and advice.

Preller said that if the trustees voted WHA out of the Chest, it would be his "unpleasant duty" to tell the 180,000 Greater Washington workers he said he represents that they had lost "one of their most favored agencies," which might affect AFL support.

Preventive Agencies Backed

Miss Jane M. Hoey, who presided at the meeting jointly with Lee D. Butler, urged that UCS "look at the total community picture," instead of confining itself to basic charity. She said agencies that are educational and preventive are as important as those that dole out direct aid to the needy.

Chauncey G. Parker, general chairman of this year's fund drive, said WHA was "a thorn in the side of the Chest campaign" from the fund-raising point of view.

"People say they want their Chest back in the hands of the laity, not in the hands of the professionals. They think of the Chest in terms of charity," he said.

Mrs. W. W. Parsons, 123 Lexington dr., Silver Spring, Md., a trustee selected from the general public, thought "the Chest would be failing in its obligation to meet broad welfare needs if it did not include an agency devoted to so basic a need as housing."

Louis F. Frick, Federation of Businessmen's Associations, said he didn't think "businessmen and the general public will support agencies engaged in fringe activities. These agencies should be deleted."

Two Sailors Fined After 2-Mile Chase

When William O. Powell, 413 4th st. ne., found part of a fender on his automobile missing, he started a two-mile chase at 80 miles an hour through Southeast Washington.

The chase was related in Municipal Court yesterday by Police Motorcycle Pvts. C. E. Mills and R. G. Riker.

Powell, according to the officers, saw another car driving off just as he came to his own automobile. He then noticed the fender skirt was missing.

He began the chase, the two policemen said, but lost the car. The two motorcycle policemen took up the pursuit, following the fleeing vehicle from Sousa Bridge to Branch and Alabama aves. se.

Driver of the fleeing car, Jack L. Smith, 26, a sailor of the Anacostia Receiving Station, was fined $40 on charges of unreasonable speed and driving on the wrong side of the street.

The policeman said the fender skirt was tossed from the car during the pursuit. A passenger in Smith's car, Willie Taylor, 20, also of the Anacostia base, was fined $10 under a seldom-used ordinance forbidding tossing on the highways of articles "dangerous to man or beast."

135 Dogs Await Owners

Anybody want a dog? If you do, get in touch with District Poundmaster, Frank Marks. He announced yesterday that 135 dogs now at D. C. Pound are eligible for "adoption." It will cost you $5 to obtain one of the dogs, he said. This sum includes $3 for a dog license and $2 for a pound fee.

Lions Contribute $3300

The Washington Lions Club distributed checks totaling $3300 to local charitable organizations at a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Checks for $500 were given the Home for Incurables, Emergency Hospital and the YMCA's Camp Letts. Checks for $300 went to camp funds of the Washington Boys Club, the Salvation Army, the Christ Child Society, the YWCA, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

D. C. Stuntman in Circus

A Washington stuntman will perform two feats when Joie Chitwood's "Circus of Death" is held at 8:30 p. m. today at West Lanham Speedway.

He is Buddy Toomey, 33, of 1204 Rhode Island ave. ne., service manager of Columbia Cab Co. He will drive a new Ford virtually on its side with two wheels on a ramp and then smash an automobile by rolling it over and over while traveling at a high speed.

Toomey's events will be among 28 daredevil stunts in the show. Round-trip public transportation will leave the W. M. & A. terminal, 403 11th st. nw., at 7:30 p. m.

Workman Hurt in Fall

George R. Lee, 43, of 3926 Livingston rd., Hyattsville, Md., was injured seriously yesterday when a scaffold upon which he was working at 5701 40th ave., Hyattsville, collapsed.

He was thrown 20 feet to the ground.

At Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, he was reported to be suffering a crushed right arm, broken left wrist and forearm and two broken ribs, contusions and abrasions on the body.

Lee, a former member of the Mount Rainier Volunteer Fire Department, from which he resigned recently after 20 years' service, is the father of Robert D. Lee, a District gfireman.

House Rent by Bid

The Public Buildings Administration yesterday announced a one-bedroom bungalow for rent at 4212 Silver Hill rd., Suitland, Md. The house will go to the highest bidder.

PBA Commissioner W. E. Reynolds said PBA will have no objection to tenants with children and he suggested the house is idea for anyone wanting a garden on the half-acre of land.

Bids will be accepted by John L. Nagle, deputy commissioner, in Room 1126, in the Federal Works Agency Building, 19th and F sts. nw., from 2 to 5 p. m., August 5. The property was included in a tract of land bought by the Government in 1940. The government hopes eventually to erect buildings on the property.

Police Going to Range

Metropolitan police will begin sharpening their marksmanship Monday. One man from each precinct will report to Lieut. Sheldon R. McKee at the Eleventh Precinct pistol range, Morris rd. and Hunter pl., se., for the opening class at 8 a. m. Four classes will be held each day until all the men have made a minimum score of 195 out of a possible 300.

Body in Basin Identified

A body found floating in the Tidal Basin near the floodgates yesterday was identified as that of James A. Sydnor, 19, of 733 Delaware ave. sw.

Police identified him by fingerprints. The man's clothing had been found lying on the bank near where the body was found and police believe he drowned while swimming Tuesday night. Homicide detectives, however, are investigating.

Claim Against Schools

Mrs. Jeannette McCray, 2006 Lawrence st. ne., yesterday filed in Small Claims Court a claim against the District school system for $2, which she alleges she paid to the principal of Burroughs School for a bulb and globe broken by her 9-year-old son, Wilson McCray, 3d.

Mrs. McCray contends the alleged payment amounts to "unlawful seizure," because school authorities, she says, cannot accept money for damaged property.

Inquest Finds Woman Died Of Accident

A coroner's jury yesterday decreed that Mrs. Margaret E. Burch, 27, of 3028 Clinton st. ne., died from a skull fracture suffered before her arrest and police detention.

Mrs. Burch, also known as Mrs. Margaret E. Lemkuhl, died June 29 in Gallinger Hospital, the day after she was found unconscious in a pool of blood in an isolation cell at the Women's Bureau, District Police. She was found at 4 a. m. on the cell floor, bleeding from the nose and a small cut on the back of her head.

The coroner's jury reached its verdict in 10 minutes after one of the longest inquests ever held at the District Morgue. Twenty-seven witnesses testified in the inquest that lasted nearly five hours.

Many witnesses testified to injuries suffered by Mrs. Burch in an automobile that overturned at Point Lookout, Md., 10 days before her death. She was treated at St. Mary's Hospital, Leonardtown, Md.

Police testified she was arrested on June 28 here for disorderly conduct and confined to the isolation cell after she became abusive to court matrons.

The coroner's jury stated it was their belief "no known individuals were responsible for her death."

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he was issuing a certificate of accidental death.

Safeway Trails Backs Capitol Co. Bus Route Plea

The Safeway Trails Bus Co. yesterday backed the application of Capitol Bus Co. for a route from Harrisburg, Pa., to Washington.

Marvin Walsh, Safeway Trails general manager, told a joint hearing board of the Interstate Commerce Commission, that his company wanted to feed traffic from the South to Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., by way of Harrisburg on Capitol Bus Lines.

The board—made up of members of the Maryland and District of Columbia Public Service Commissions and the Pennsylvania Utility Commission—took the case under advisement at the conclusion of the two-day hearing.

It was indicated that the board's recommendation will not be made to the ICC for several weeks and the latter's decision will not be made known for several months.

Manager Favored For Takoma Park, Mayor Post Says

The Takoma Park council generally approves a council-manager form of government for the community, Mayor John C. Post said yesterday.

Post's comment followed publication of a report by Dr. Elwyn A. Mauck, consultant with the bureau of public administration, University of Maryland, advocating such a form of government.

Three members of the council have also signified approval of the plan although expressing doubts that the community at this time could afford to increase expense necessary in hiring a competent manager and other experts.

Men Are Interested Pupils In Red Cross Baby Care Course

The Washington Post

PANTS PROBLEM—Two prospective fathers tackle the technique of the three-cornered pants. Capt. William Calnan, 2401 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., at left, appears to have solved the problem in commendable style. However, Irvin Colodney, 1100 23d st. nw., just can't get started. The captain is stationed at Fort Myer and Colodney is a grocer

"Here we have a baby. It is composed of a bald head and a pair of lungs."

—Eugene Field: The Tribune Primer.

Keeping one hand on the doll's throat while he mopped his dripping brow with the other, Irvin Colodney paused in his labors to look inquiringly at the nurse.

"What's wrong now?" he wanted to know.

Came the stern reply: "If you'll only proceed on the idea that your baby won't break in two, you can get it washed in nothing flat. Relax!"

Nine other anxious, perspiring men, along with Irvin, relaxed.

With his first child still three months away, 25-year-old Irvin, a grocer, already is acting the proud papa. "Times have changed," he says. "Now you can get up some courage before the baby's born."

He's right.

Along with the nine other men and 12 women, prospective parents all, he was in the sixth hour of the Red Cross's 12-hour course in baby care. His class is held Wednesdays and Fridays from 7 to 9 p. m. at 2020 Massachusetts ave. nw.

The young grocer lives with his wife, Anne, at 1100 23d st. nw. In common with the other fathers-to-be (and a lot of the future mothers), he had no idea how to change a diaper, or even how to pick up a baby. Or how to wash it, or "burp" it, and so on.

Lillian Adams, director of nursing service for the D. C. Red Cross, says the men in her classes are more alert and interested than the women.

That's because, she says, most women have read up on the subject. As an interesting footnote, she adds that "wives notice changes for the better in their husbands" after they complete the course. Her fellow instructor, Alice Wooldridge, nursing field representative of the American Red Cross, agrees.

Miss Adams says the present class is typical in its makeup. It lists, among the breadwinners, a student, two economists, three attorneys, a Government analyst, a writer, a soldier, a motion picture technician and a grocer. Many of the prospective mothers are employed, too.

All of them are very much concerned, she says, that they "do right" by their child. In fewer words, she continues, "Love is not enough."

Postlude

Mitchell, Duncan Receive Big Ovation at Watergate

By Paul Hume

Howard Mitchell and Todd Duncan added stature to the excellent Watergate series with their concert last night.

Mitchell and the orchestra played Beethoven's third Leonore overture, Chabrier's Espana, the Strauss Don Juan, and a Purcell suite. While this music cannot be sufficiently prepared in one rehearsal, the results were amazing. Beethoven came off with polish and vitality in keeping with its high drama. The courtly beauties of Purcell's suite, arranged by Akon, were happily expounded by the strings.

The Espana Rhapsody was held to a single strong rhythm, and the playing within that frame was tonally beautiful. There was trouble in the percussion section in this as in the Strauss, but most of the time things went well.

Various conductors of today are noted for their reading of Don Juan. Give Mitchell equal rehearsal time and he will match any of them. His tempos were identical with those of the composer, whose recording of the tone poem we have long prized. He sought proper balance in his players, and dequisite minutiae in phrasing. That most of these arrived is high tribute to his command of an intricate score.

Todd Duncan roused a tremendous audience to shouting pitch with his singing. A suave aria of Saint-Saens preceded the Toreador Song, whose flair has seldom been given with equal ease. Later four songs touched off what became quite a demonstration. Of the four, the Song of the Flea was handled with wit, while Schubert's tender phrases about Shakespeare's Sylvia were duly liquid in delivery.

Two Negro spirituals arranged by Hall Johnson were sung with that unique authority which makes them the property of their principal protagonists. Vocally, Duncan was at his easiest in these. Some of his earlier work had found him less free than he had been in the past. Assuming once more his most famous role, that of Porgy in Gershwin's folk opera, Duncan hit the top in pouplar favor with "I Got Plenty of Nothin'."

Mitchell concluded the evening with the Carousel Waltz and Arthur Benjamin's Jamaican Rumba.

Friday night: Ballet, with Nora Kaye and Igor Youskevitch, conducted by Franz Allers.

Hoffman, 7 ECA Aides Flying to Paris for Studies

New York, July 21 (AP).—Paul G. Hoffman, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration, today called the organization "investment bankers for recovery."

Hoffman headed a party of seven ECA officials who boarded a plane for Paris. During their eight-day visit to the French capital, they will meet with European representatives of the ECA to discuss unification of American and European policies and procedures.

Included in the group were five "information assistants" whose job it will be to study the problems confronting the ECA program.

"We want to set up information sections in the various countries to find out what the dollar is accomplishing," Hoffman said. "We consider ourselves investment bankers for recovery. We want to get at the facts and we will leave the interpreting to the press."

Funeral Rites Set Today for H. E. Burton

Funeral services for Harry Edward Burton, 70, recently retired principal astronomer of the Naval Observatory, will be held at 1:30 p. m. today at his home, 3814 Fulton st. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

An employe of the observatory for 39 years, Mr. Burton died Monday at Emergency Hospital. He retired July 1 as principal astronomer and head of the equatorial and astrographic division, a position he held since 1929.

He was born in Onawa, Iowa, and graduated from the University of Iowa in 1901. Two years later, he received his masters degree there. He taught mathematics later at Parsons College, Fairfield, Iowa, and was a computor at Yerkes Observatory, William Bay, Wis., until he joined the observatory here.

In 1938, Mr. Burton represented the Naval Observatory at a meeting of the International Astronomical Union in Stockholm, Sweden. He was the author of many articles on astronomical matters.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ina Robinson Burton, to whom he was married in 1911, and a brother, living in Portland, Oreg.

P. A. Jackson Dies at Home In Hyattsville

Paul Adams Jackson, 55, brickwork subcontractor for 17 years, died yesterday at his home, 5223 42d pl., Hyattsville. His death was attributed to a throat ailment, with which he had been seriously ill since May.

Mr. Jackson's employes did most of the brick work in the construction of the University of Maryland, College Park, including the colliseum and women's field house.

A native of York County, S. C., Mr. Jackson was educated in public schools of Charlotte, N. C., where he later started as a brick mason. He moved to Riverdale, Md., in 1930. He subcontracted brick work with J. J. McDevitt, of Rockville, Md., for construction of the Rockville courthouse, and later contracted for brick work in Calvert Hills, Md., home development projects.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Norma H. Jackson; four daughters, Mrs. A. P. Wheatley, Hyattsville; Mrs. F. P. Cogar, College Park, Md.; Mrs. R. P. McGowan, Albuquerque, N. Mex., and Mrs. J. A. Miller, Meadville, Pa.; four sons, Paul A. Jackson, jr., St. Petersburg, Fla.; David R. Jackson, James H. Jackson and Thomas L. Jackson, all of the Hyattsville home address; three sisters and three brothers, including Eugene W. Jackson, Hyattsville.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 10:30 a. m. at the Chambers funeral home, 5801 Cleveland ave., Riverdale, Md. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Sarah Roberts

Mrs. Sarah Roberts, 81, died unexpectedly yesterday at her home, 2100 19th st. nw. Death was attributed to a heart ailment.

A native of Hyde, England, Mrs. Roberts came to this country about 1900 to live in New Bedford, Mass. She was married in 1901, and lived in New Bedford until the death of her husband, Thomas H. Roberts.

In 1934, Mrs. Roberts moved to Washington, where she made her home with her three daughters, Mrs. Rose R. MacIlwaine, Miss Dorothy Roberts and Mrs. Lucy E. Hall. Mrs. Hall died about a month ago.

Besides her daughters, Mrs. Roberts is survived by a son, Frank Roberts of New Bedford, and a grandson, G. Roberts Hall of the 19th st. nw. address.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday, at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln.

Words Outside Court Room Start New Case

Words in a Municipal Court corridor temporarily discontinued one case yesterday and started another one.

G. F. Jones, 2705 30th st. se., filed suit for $86 for a rent check from Charles and Laura Ruff, 2004 Nichols ave. se. He said payment was stopped on the check.

But in the courtroom of Judge Thomas D. Quinn where the case was to be heard, Ruff complained that Jones had threatened his life in the corridor. Mrs. Ruff said she was very upset by the alleged threat.

Judge Quinn said her condition forced him to postpone the case indefinitely. The Ruffs then went over tothe United States Attorney's office where a threats warrant was authorized.

For a Versatile Wardrobe

Large wardrobes, like large houses, are on the way out. The most satisfactory wardrobe is small and versatile. First step in reducing the number of clothes is to build around one basic color such as black, brown or navy blue. Buy your coats in the basic color or a neutral shade such as gray or beige. Buy suits or dresses in the same basic or neutral shades with an occasional bright colored dress which contrasts well with any of your coats. Buy two sets of accessories in the basic color, one for street wear, one for dressier occasions.

You can make your wardrobe interesting and dramatic with novel pieces of jewelry. Make a chatelaine from a man's gold watch chain or gold necklace to wear across the front of your suit or at the side of your belt.

Grandma Would Like Footwear

Button Shoes and Soft Suits Make News at Fashion Show

By Peggy Preston

ABOVE:
HANSEN BANG offered this dramatic ensemble in his collection yesterday. A dinner and theater suit, it combines three tones of gray wool and taffeta.
LEFT:
ANTHONY BLOTTA, famous for his tailored suits, created this softly feminine version in spicy "Biarritz brown" tweed for his fall collection.

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 21.—Shoes make news here in Manhattan this week. Maybe the hemline isn't worth a headline, but the toeline is something else again. It's different, and what's more it's sort of cute, your grandma will approve for she fancied the same type of footwear when she was a girl.

This style center, as we mentioned earlier in the week, is noisy with chatter about its forthcoming golden anniversary commemoration and the mammoth fashion panorama it has cooked up for the period from August 23 to September 19 at Grand Central Palace. Fashion editors are constantly being reminded of the event. We're told that styles for fall, 1948, are the direct outgrowth of a revival of interest in the Gibson Girl era. Their period, that is, which is being dramatized by historical-minded New Yorkers this summer.

Undoubtedly, these worthy Manhattanites know what they are talking about. But the trouble is that one year ago we accredited the whole fashion turmoil to that same beat-up old Gibson Girl, with her everlasting shirtwaist and skirt. We hate to put the blame on her all over again, and we won't except on the shoe bracket. And there she has definitely left her mark.

What has she bequeathed us on the occasion of her golden anniversary? She's thrown her high buttoned shoes right at our feet. That's what. If you don't believe us, you should see the cute little button hook we received as a favor at the Shoe Guild fashion show. Better buy one yourself if you are to show a high-fashion ankle this fall.

Now, naturally, we haven't seen any old-fashioned calf-length tops in shoes. What the manufacturers are showing are clever little adaptations of that famous old style, all of the tops stop before they reach the ankle bone. Although sometimes leather straps continue above it, to be buttoned primly at one side.

Spats Simulated

Most novel numbers are the ones that stimulate spats. They generally come in two tones, the bottoms of black patent leather or bronze kid, the little tops of gray or winter white suede. These fit snugly over the instep, close at the side with three shiny buttons.

Despite all these whimsical goings on, the classic pump and sandal are still tops for those who like their fashions straight. Emphasis is on the closed toe and heel, but the shoe with the open toe continues since it accounts for over 50 per cent of the sales made in stores. Platform soles are not being shown in any great quantities and "wedgies" seem to be losing favor. Heels are generally the same with the exception of the French-inspired Louis heel which curves in at the center, is broad at the base. This style item dominates the higher priced collections.

IF YOU are as tired of "looks" as most fashion editors, you'll be happy to know that the classic, softly tailored suit and coat are still in high favor and being manufactured in increasingly large quantities.

This year, topflight suit and coat firms joined the Dress Institute and have held showings this week for the press. In the Wersba and Coppola collection we saw the handsomest classic suits of the week. Hand tailored, many of fine, imported fabrics, they are unique in their simplicity, soft in every line. Neither in this collection nor any other have we noted any of the harsh, man-tailored suits that once were popular. There are no pointed lapels, one-button coats patterned after masculine fashions. The most strictly tailored women's suits remain essentially feminine. Collars are high, small, neat; waistlines slightly tapered; lapels rounded and skirts straight and slim.

Coats, in the collection of Kraus Originals, are generally full length. The full, rippled great coat of last season has been tempered but it is still a style factor to be considered. The empire lines of Napoleon's era are important in coats as well as dresses. Here we have the high, upstanding collar; yoked back and fitted front, the skirt falling in a slight flare. The princess coat is still being shown, but never with a belt and there are less and less of those costumes with over-exaggerated hipline treatment or huge pockets. In general, the coat picture is a trim one, the silhouette slim and frequently treated with fur trimming.

Somber Colors Favored For Winter Wear

New York, July 21 (U.P.).—It's going to be a dull winter, fashionably speaking. Dress designers have gone overboard for the dark somber hues. Visiting fashion editors here today saw a long parade of dusky tinted clothes at six showings.

At Fox Brownie's, the rage is "Navy with a difference"—fall costumes of navy trimmed with black so that they can be worn with all black accessories.

A deep blue suit has a corseted middle that gives an air of slimness belying the bathroom scales. Both jacket and skirt are buttoned down the front with huge black buttons.

One navy suit has jet covered pockets placed high on the bosom and is worn with a black satin criss-cross draped blouse. A still dressier ensemble for dusk-to-midnight doings glints with jet on its short jacket.

For the woman who doesn't care for black and navy, there's always black and brown. A suit of deep tar brown wool has a cape collar of black seal. The dress beneath is touched with tiny black satin ties at the yoke.

Hansen Bang is partial to gray, in shades that range from silver to a deep smoky color. A gray wool suit, with a triple-breasted effect jacket buttoned in silver has an old-fashioned changeable taffeta blouse and an accordion pleated wool skirt.

Taffeta shows up again in a cocktail dress with a tan bodice ruffled in black and a full black taffeta skirt stitched flat across the derriere.

Anthony Blotta's collection is inspired by the Empress Eugenie, a gal who would have liked this season's dull shades. She favored dark colors, dark embroideries and dark jewels, particularly a deep green, and a dark plum, that Blotta uses for evening.

Joseph Whitehead, the negligee and hostess-gown booster, has a series of cocktail frocks with taut corselet midriffs that raise the waistline a bit in front, lower it slightly behind.

Williamsons Feted at Cocktails

Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Holmes entertained a few friends for cocktails yesterday at their home on Woodland Drive, for Mr. and Mrs. David Williamson, here for a brief stay from the Maryland Eastern Shore. Mr. Holmes is a former foreign service officer and was Assistant Secretary of State. Mr. Williamson is in the foreign service and served for three years in the OSS during the war.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes will leave for a New England holiday next month.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Divorcee, 22, and Bachelor, 28, Have Been Constant Companions for 18 Months and Girl Hopes for Marriage but Man Is Noncommittal

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I was married at 18 to a young man whose cruelty shocked me and ruined our marriage. Now I am a divorcee, 22, with a 2-year-old son.

For the last 18 months I have been going with Bob, a bachelor, 28, who is sweet, kind and considerate. His ideals of marriage and a home are the same as mine, he likes children, he acts as if we belong together, and I love him with all sincerity.

I have hopes of our marrying, but one thing bothers me: he has never actually said that he loves me. Finally anxiety has prompted me to ask him if he loves me and he vaguely replies, "I guess so."

Is Man Too Shy To Mention Love?

HE HAS been "my man," and true to me, from the time we met; so may I take for granted that deep down he does love me, and is just too shy to tell me? Why would a man his age spend all this time with a girl if he weren't in love with her?

I know he thinks of a wife and children, but I wonder if he is afraid to take on the responsibility of another man's child? Could you please advise me what to do, or how to act with him? I want Bob's happiness more than anything, but I can't give him up. I love him too much. D. L.

Man's Heart Seems Flinty

DEAR D. L.: When a man loves a girl he tells her so, as involuntarily as breathing, especially if they are often together in mellow camaraderie. Instinct speaks louder than discretion on this score. The words will slip out if the feeling is there, even though the man may have sternly resolved to withhold the utterance for various reasons.

Thus Bob's vague reply to your leading question has a discouraging sound. It signifies that he doesn't know whether he loves you or not; that he feels no urge to establish a reciprocal current of positive tenderness and that he cares for you "to a certain extent" or "after a fashion" only.

As to why he would give you so much of his time, if not in love with you, the answer is that the male likes being loved, preferably by a warm-hearted attractive girl, as I suppose you are; and as you say, you do love Bob with all sincerity, too much to give him up. In other words, with very generous obliging ardor, I infer.

Someone has said that men don't love, but rather respond to loving; and the longer you live to take notes on masculine behavior, the more evidence you're likely to encounter in support of that viewpoint.

Seeks Diversion, Not Domesticity

AS I get the picture, it seems unlikely that Bob will marry you; and in all probability he paired off with you for a time-killing association (on his part) primarily because he isn't interested in marrying anybody.

It is characteristic bachelor psychology, when in search of divertissement without responsibility, to gravitate to a divorcee in preference to a single girl, on the callous theory that a woman who has been married knows the facts of life, and has only herself to blame if she gets hurt by taking a playboy seriously.

The thing to do about Bob at this point is to stop throwing yourself at his head. Taper off your attentions to him. Beat the bushes for other interest. Create a situation where he has to propose marriage to maintain a monopoly; and then if he doesn't, you'll know that you haven't a chance to win him. M. H.

Red Cross Opens Emergency Class to Train in Arts, Skills

August 2 has been set for the opening of an emergency Red Cross arts and crafts training class, according to Mrs. Bruce H. Roberts, chairman of the arts and skills service.

Requirements for taking the course are that those interested be willing to spend at least one day a week teaching a craft to patients in the hospital of their choice. The Red Cross arts and skills volunteer is requested to serve a minimum of a year, in order to justify the training which he or she receives.

The arts and skills workers serve in the Veterans' Administration Hospital, Walter Reed Hospital, Bolling Field and the United States Soldiers Home Hospitals, teaching arts and the skills to patients in these institutions. This type of teaching serves therapeutically to assist in the recovery of the patient.

Anyone interested in taking the arts and crafts course, or in assisting with instruction as a ready-skilled volunteer, may call the Arts and Skills Service, R public 8300, Extension 762.

MISS ALICE THERESA O'DEA

. . . engagement announced

At a buffet luncheon given at their home yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. O'Dea, sr., of Berwyn Heights, Md., announced the engagement of their daughter, Alice Theresa, to Harrison B. Humphries of Silver Spring.

In Bridal Procession

The chapel of the Ninth Street Christian Church was the scene of the marriage yesterday at 7 p. m. of Miss Barbara Louise Carper and Charles Davis Plummer, the Rev. J. Lloyd Black officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mae Caldwell Carper of Washington, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dean Plummer of Marianna, Ark.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Hugh B. Carper, jr., wore a street-length white crepe dress with net trimming and a finger-tip veil of white silk.

Miss Burnelle Thompson was maid of honor and Richard Jones served as best man. Following the reception at the home of the bride, the couple left for a wedding trip to Marianna. On their return they will reside in Memphis, Tenn.

Bjornson—Mayfield

Miss Betty Ann Mayfield and Maj. Wallace E. Bjornson were married in the Bolling Field Chapel July 19, Chaplain G. J. Cameron officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Truman Mayfield of Washington, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Bjornson of Devils Lake, N. Dak.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and her finger-tip veil was held by a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and gladioli.

Miss Katherine Brown attended the bride and Maj. Kenneth O. Friley served as best man. The ushers were Col. L. D. Varney and Maj. Carl Soderstrom.

Following the reception at the Bolling Field Officers Club, the couple left for a motor trip to Niagara Falls and Canada. On their return they will reside in Washington.

Cohen—Dockterman

Miss Mollie Dockterman, daughter of M. I. Dockterman of Chicago, and William Sam Cohen, son of Herbert Cohen of Fredericksburg, Va., were married July 18 at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Theodore Bolle in Silver Spring. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz officiated at the ceremony.

Hot Weather Notes

Political Wits Flourish In Heat; Biffle Sisters Launch Own Antique Shop

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE HEAT has befuddled brains, made even the staidest let down their hair with giddy abandon. When a few hot Democrats knot together they mince no words about their political opponents—a pal culled the following phrase, dropped in the wee sultry hours—"We need Dewey like a moose needs a hatrack!"

Antique Business Launched

LATEST LADIES to launch in business are les soeurs Biffle, Bernice and Blanche Biffle Sanders, sisters of no less a political glamour boy than Leslie Biffle. They have taken a small gray house at 1762 K st., live upstairs, display antiques on the ground floor, in the back yard, any place where they look well. The shop opened Monday and its their first business venture. Miss Biffle has been living in Newbern, Tenn., while Mrs. Sanders has been working for the Government, specializing in general accountancy—which will come in handy. The idea started when Blanche Sanders went "antiquing" through the South with a friend. She persuaded her sister to join forces and to gather stock they motored through Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and they also visited Pennsylvania.

They coaxed many of their friends to part with some of their more valuable lares and penates. They deal only in very fine antiques, lovely old tables, chairs, Meissen and Sevres porcelaines.

Though Leslie Biffle was sergeant at arms at the Democratic Convention and the sole possessor of a telephone line straight to the White House, he telephoned the girls several times to find out how they were "doing."

Bernice says that going in the antique business is no light project, it takes a generous hunk of capital, especially if you operate like the Biffle sisters, nothing on consignment, everything bought and paid for. "You never know" remarked Bernice seriously "we may end up counting eeny-meeny-miney-mo to divide the stock between us!"

Royall's Party Is On Anniversary

SECRETARY OF THE ARMY and Mrs. Kenneth Royall are giving a reception Saturday in honor of Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bradley. The Bradleys asked to have the party during the summer when little was going on socially—but with Congress' return Mrs. Royall has snagged people she never imagined would be in town.

The reception is really a triple-header as it is the Secretary's birthday and also the first anniversary of his becoming a Cabinet member.

Mrs. Royall, who stems from Warsaw, N. C., was a delegate-at-large at the Democratic convention, attended all the caucuses, took in some of the parties. She is proud that her home State was the only Southern State which went all out for President Truman.

To Give Convention Highlights

FRIDAY at the Women's Democratic Club there is to be a tea honoring members of the Women's Division which struggled so relentlessly in Philadelphia last week. Some of the gals are to sound off informally with "Convention Highlights"—Mrs. Charles Tillett, Mrs. Charles Brannan, Mrs. Lamar Caudle and India Edwards. Mary Tobin, who handled publicity for the Women's Division in Philadelphia, will also be on hand from New York. The ladies were going to open their campaign headquarters in New York almost immediately but they have postponed packing up until the special session is over. Then they'll send half the staff to the Biltmore Hotel, leave the remainder. Mrs. Edwards, who is efficiency plus politically, is taking a busman's holiday, driving down to Virginia's Ninth Congressional District and speaking next Tuesday at Bristol.

1000 Years Come Soon

CONVENTION dither has distracted us from equally important hometown struggles. Absorbed in political hurrah, almost everyone forgot that a critical railroad strike had been stopped by the United States Government assuming managerial responsibility—and that negotiators were tying themselves in knots trying to achieve some sort of peace. But, as at the conventions, humor occasionally seeped through blood and thunder. After 10 days and ditto long nights of disputes Presidential Assistant John Steelman came up with a presumably workable plan—put it up to the labor bosses. They looked it over, then a bigshot drawled contemptuously, "I would agree to that proposition in exactly a thousand years from today!" Instead of snapping back Steelman closed in which Machiavellian skill, "Fine!" he exclaimed pleasantly, "Now, gentlemen, we're getting somewhere! We won't need to rehash the case again. We can stick right to the subject and discuss only one point—that is when we come to an agreement. Instead of a millennium later, the "when" came after 50 days and 300 hours of negotiations

Why Not a Squirrel?

THE DEMOCRATS have their donkey, the Republicans have an elephant as party symbols—but what has Henry Wallace got? Nothing, as far as we can make out in the line of flora or fauna. So, this department would like to suggest a third party trademark. Why not a squirrel? Everyone knows what squirrels spend most of their time doing—collecting nuts! Any better ideas floating around loose?

MISS LOIS M. WATERS, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Waters of Falls Church, Va., announce her engagement to Arthur J. Conner, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Conner of Washington.

Mrs. Thos. Cowell Is Here for Stay

Mrs. Thomas R. Cowell, here for a brief stay from New York, was lunching in the Mayflower Lounge yesterday with Miss Bertha Joseph.

Mrs. Cowell was to have accompanied Mme. Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, when she left by plane yesterday for China to attend the wedding of her son. Last-minute developments, however, have prevented Mrs. Cowell from leaving the country. Her son, Richard, is now in Europe.

Mrs. Cowell keeps an apartment here at 2500 Q st. and expects eventually to return to Washington to live.

Also in town for a few days is Mrs. Florence Harris Downs, here from Nantucket where she is spending the summer.

How're Your Figures

Job Shortage Reported for Statisticians

How are your figures, miss? If you can do a bit of trained juggling, you're in job luck. There is a shortage of both mathematicians and statisticians. In fact, a recent report to the President predicts a total deficit of 1200 Ph.D.'s in mathematics by 1955, according to a bulletin issued yesterday by the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor.

The monograph entitled, "The Outlook for Women in Mathematics and Statistics," is one of an over-all series on "The Outlook for Women in Science."

As for women statistians' future opportunities, the bureau's report states, "ample for some time to come." Also, the gentler sex trained in this science "will not encounter as much discrimination in this relatively new and growing field as women in many other professional fields. Moreover, shortage of statisticians at the bachelor's as well as the Ph.D. level is expected to continue for several years.

Openings in statistical posts are about equally divided between industry and Government. Opportunities first started about 10 years ago and the growth has been particularly great in the fields of: (1) industrial statistics such as quality control, research and development; (2) research in biological sciences; (3) collection and analysis of Government statistics; (4) market research and commercial sample surveys; (5) psychological testing. The Women's Bureau uses the computations of the National Research Council as its source here.

Then the bureau points out that women statisticians are not expected to fill the post of actuary, except in rare cases. While the field is not overcrowded insurance companies traditionally have preferred men in this post. When employed, women are generally taken on only as assistants.

Findings of the bureau's study reveal that the majority of women mathematicians with college degrees are, as in prewar days, engaged in teaching or holding down jobs in insurance and other business firms.

If she holds a bachelor degree she will fare better in the teaching profession if she also can instruct in physics or chemistry, the report points out. The demand and supply of women here is just about even. The girl who can show a Ph.D. degree in math, however, will have better luck in the profession. She can have a college or university post. Unlike the high-school teachers who combine other subjects, she can stick to pure math.

For women Ph.D.s who prefer industrial research, they will have more job offers if they know some engineering and other related courses, concludes the Women's Bureau.

Housekeeper Writes Memoirs

Roosevelt's Choosy Food Habits Signalled Crisis in War Days

Henrietta Nesbitt says she could always tell, when she was White House housekeeper for the Roosevelts, when the war was building to a new emergency.

The President would get choosy about his food. Mrs. Nesbitt says that in her 13 years in the White House it was the only way in which she saw the President show tension.

Each morning Mrs. Roosevelt would find out what her husband wanted to eat that day and phone Mrs. Nesbitt's office. Once Mrs. Nesbitt heard the President exclaim: "Damn it, I don't want beef." (It was the only time she ever heard him swear.)

Then she heard Mrs. Roosevelt ask gently: "What do you want?"

"I want steak," he said.

Mrs. Nesbitt's story will be published tomorrow under the title "White House Diary" (Doubleday).

Apple Pie Was Favorite

She writes that the President's favorite pie was America's favorite pie—apple. He preferred chocolate ice cream. But he also liked oddities: wild turkey, stone crab, terrapin. He had definite ideas on their preparation. Once the cook warned: "The President likes a duck just chased through the flame."

The President's favorite cake was fruit, and Mrs. Roosevelt's was angel food. They both liked a crab meat soup the recipe for which was found among Mrs. George Washington's record. The President's breakfast tray always included a dog biscuit for Fala.

Like other American husbands the President ate left-overs on the day after company.

Mrs. Nesbitt's story also includes amusing anecdotes of happenings in the White House.

Once there were so many guests that Mrs. Roosevelt slept on a couch in the hall and caught the flu.

Once tea was ready for 300. Mrs. Roosevelt waited. No one came. The White House social bureau had forgotten to mail the invitations.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Nesbitt made their first inspection of the mansion they found the kitchen dirty and almost empty of utensils. It took a four-year struggle, but they finally squeezed out enough money from their allowance to put in a modern kitchen.

Foreigners Brought Problem

The many foreign visitors brought their own problems.

Mrs. Nesbitt's first such worry came with the visit of Ras Das Demptu of Ethiopia.

The State Department phoned stiffly: "He is a Coptic Christian, and you will act accordingly."

She looked that up in the encyclopedia and found that Coptic Christians eat no animal products, down through cream and butter. She turned out a normal meal by using several vegetable oils.

As the war tension grew, all the world leaders appeared to develop finfeky appetities. Mrs. Nesbitt had a long file on ulcer patients' needs and amusing notes on how they circumvented their doctors' orders. Harry Hopkins ordered just what he was told not to eat.

Her first tip on the war came in 1937 although she didn't recognize it as such. The President made his first complaints about food. She learned later that he had just been briefed on Japanese espionage in the Pacific.

Mrs. Nesbitt writes that she has learned that really big people never made demands. The British King and Queen asked for nothing during their stay, but one of the Queen's maids put on a minor tantrum.

In the Boy's Room

It is never wise to "doll up" the bed in the boy's bedroom. It can be kept clean and neat, but a serviceable washable spread is always the best choice. After all, it is his room and he certainly should have some freedom in it. Show off the guest room or grown person's bed and let the boy be able to sit on his if he wants to.

Ask Anne About Campaign Against Roaches

I have purchased an insect bomb (3% DDT) to try to rid my apartment of roaches. However, with a year-old toddler into everything, I hesitate using this insecticide. Can you tell me if it is safe? What precautions must I take? H. W. P.

Being broad and flat, cockroaches conceal themselves in cracks between flooring, baseboards, and similar places. Because of this, it would seem impossible to hope to get rid of all of them with a gas from an insect bomb. In fact, trying to rid one apartment of cockroaches when other apartments in the same building are still infested is a pretty discouraging business. If it is possible to get the owners of the building to carry on a program of ridding the entire building of them, by all means do so. If not, perhaps painting all woodwork, including cracks, with a colorless new insecticide containing chlordane, or dusting powdered sodium fluoride or fresh pyrethrum powder into cracks will help.

If you apply the powder, it is a good idea to remove all foods from the cupboards, shelves, and drawers, wash the cupboards and then dust the powder in every crack. If it is possible to leave the food out of the cupboards a day or so, so that the powder can remain undisturbed, the treatment will be more effective. Perhaps the powder could be placed before you leave for vacation or a weekend. Before replacing food in the cupboards, wash up all powder, but if possible, leave it undampened in the cracks so it will continue to be effective. If you can't leave the powder around for a day or so, dusting all cracks each night after baby has gone to bed, and removing the powder before she is abroad again in the morning, may help.

What is the proper way to wash and dry a crocheted bedspread?
G. K. S.

Wash the spread in the washing machine, using a mild soap. Wash for about five minutes and rinse twice. Set the wringer so it is somewhat loose to avoid pressing heavy wrinkles in the spread. When wrung, shake and, if possible, place it on a curtain stretcher. (Take the dimensions before washing so it can be dried to original size.) If you do not have a curtain stretcher, place lengthwise on the line and pull so that the four corners are even. As it dries stretch the spread several times so it will shrink as little as possible. Removing the spread from the line while it is yet slightly damp and placing it on the bed will help to avoid a ridge down the center.

I have heard cedar chests need to be renewed every three years. What should be used and how in renewing these chests?
G. K. S.

Some well-known makes of cedar chests carry a guarantee as to their moth-repellent properties. If the makers name is on your chest, call the dealer from whom you bought it and ask him if there is a time limit on the moth-repellent qualities of the chest. (Most fine chests carry an indefinite guarantee.) Or, write directly to the manufacturer.

If you are not able to get specific information in regard to your chest, I would suggest you use a moth-repellent in the chest to be on the safe side.

PETUNIA!

Pete was hep
But I am hepper!

(Could Peter Piper Stuff a pepper?)

Apparently not, Petunia! And here's a pepper-stuffing suggestion: Puf them in muffin tins while they bake, and they'll keep their shape better. Same goes for Baked Apples, too.

Census Bureau Finds More Children Born To College Women

By The Associated Press

The best educated women have the fewest children, but the difference isn't as great as before the war.

The Census Bureau said today it found that out in checking up on who's been having all the children that sent the country's population soaring since 1940.

Another thing the bureau said it learned: Farmers and poor people still have the most children, but city folks and the richer people have been catching up with them.

On the matter of education the bureau found that in both 1940 and 1947, the number of children decreased as the amount of schooling went up.

College graduates, for example, had fewer children than women who went to college only a short while.

The general average was 367 children per 1000.

$3500 CASH

Do you want 3 or 4 bedrooms? One or two floors? We have new brick houses of excellent planning and construction available from $14,950 to $15,500, to meet your every requirement. These fine homes have living rooms with open fireplaces, modern kitchens, large bedrooms, full tiled baths with showers and full basements. Among the details indicative of the exceptional quality of these houses are the hardwood floors throughout, the excellent trim and plastering, the heavy roofs, basements with laundry tubs, large closets, copper plumbing and oversize gas furnaces. These ramblers and two-story houses are situated on large lots, some open, some with trees. We believe we offer a wider selection, more quality and a better community than is available anywhere else around Washington. These houses are open daily from 1-7 p. m. To inspect, drive north on Georgia ave. about 2½ miles from traffic light at Colesville rd. to Belvedere ave. and our sign, left to houses.

Video Still Waiting on Wallace

NEW YORK.—The television companies still haven't decided whether or not to televise the Wallace convention. They don't know whether enough people are interested in seeing it. . . . Unlike the two major parties, Wallace's group received no money from the City of Philadelphia for holding the convention there—but will be given Convention Hall without fee. . . . Correspondents in Cairo are trying to interview King Farouk, to check on the rumor that he has lost an eye. . . . Whenever John Golden, the producer, lunches at his favorite restaurants, the management never presents a bill to him, but adds the waiter's tip and sends the bill to Golden's auditor. Golden asked for this arrangement, because looking at the high bills for his food made him too angry.

When the American delegation to Intl. Theater Congress, sponsored by UNESCO, went to its quarters at the Axa Hotel in Prague, the delegates couldn't sleep. They were serenaded by the bands of the Sokol Festival playing "Money Is the Root of All Evil," all night long. . . . Babe Ruth will leave the hospital July 26 to attend the premiere of "The Babe Ruth Story" at the New York Astor. He will be flanked inside the theater by Governor Dewey and General Eisenhower. . . . Democratic campaigners will try to lure Governor Dewey into taking a stand on the legislation which will come up before the special session of Congress. The legislation he opposes will become campaign issues. And if the legislation he supports should be rejected, Democrats will stress this as proof that Dewey can't control the Republican Congress.

The only money-maker at the Democratic convention was the Americans For Democratic Action. At the headquarters in a fraternity house leased for the week, the ADA "gave" a free drink to anybody who'd contribute 75 cents. The funds thereby raised were used in the fight for the civil rights plank. . . . Next month secondary television—the process by which movie audiences see telecasts of important events 62 seconds later—will be improved so that the time lag will be down to 22 seconds. Movie theaters are not allowed to advertise these telecasts before 9 p. m. the same day. . . . Dewey won't start campaigning until after Labor Day. He won't fly because a delayed flight might mean disappointing a stadium of people.

Eleanor Roosevelt was confronted with a problem which troubled her. She asked Bernard Baruch for advice. He listened to the problem and asked her how she felt about it. "My mind tells me to do it," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "but my heart tells me not to do it." . . . "When in doubt follow your heart and not your mind," was Baruch's counsel, "When you make a mistake of the heart, you don't feel so bad."

Sherman Billingsley, who told his doorman to "discourage" arrivals who wear seersucker suits, finally succumbed to the New York heat and showed up at the Stork Club wearing such a suit himself . . . The gold lorgnette and chain worn by Brian Aherne in "Beaux Stratagem" at the Westport Playhouse was bequeathed to him by the late Dame May Whitty . . . Two noted New York industrialists do a great deal of night-clubbing together. For the past 10 years these two men have been able to drink freely during their night club visits because they have a pact: "Any deal made after 11 p. m., is no deal."

During an inspection tour of West Point, General Pershing once entered a cadet's room and pulled a forbidden box of candy out of the fireplace flue. The guilty cadet stood grimly at attention. "Think nothing of it," Pershing told him. "That's where I used to hide mine, too" . . . With the death of Pershing went the secret of how precious chromium was obtained during the First World War. Major Fiorello LaGuardia told the general: "If I were permitted to wear civilian clothes, and go into a certain country, with the credit of the USA behind me, I can get chromium." LaGuardia told him the full details, on pledge of secrecy. Pershing approved the trip, and LaGuardia next was seen sailing into Genoa with two shiploads of the precious chromium.

Fatigue and Food

Generally, it is safe to follow the child's lead as far as eating is concerned. On a number of occasions, I urged food on a reluctant but nonresisting child only to have it returned later in a not-too-pleasant form. In most instances, it was only fatigue that caused the lack of appetite. After a good rest, appetite returned and the child's system handled the food in the usual effective way.

It is good practice to try to see that children have an opportunity to rest a while before every meal. Also, it should not be demanded that a certain amount of food be eaten at each meal. If the child doesn't feel "up to" as much food as usual at one meal, he will make up for it later.

The relaxed, unworried parental attitude is not always an easy one to cultivate, but it is important that it be developed. Unless there is some extreme condition calling for medical care, children have an unconscious knowledge of what they need and how much. This does not mean that one should not help a child overcome finicky habits. But fussing definitely should be played down.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Story With a Moral for Dixiecrats

By Drew Pearson

Herbert Bayard Swope, editor of the old New York World, has some backhanded advice for Dixie Democrats who consider bolting Truman in the Electoral College.

Swope

Swope, chosen for the Electoral College from New York in 1936, tells how the electors met in a lavishly draped room, reminiscent of early Grecian meeting places. Each elector had an embossed and engraved ballot to be deposited in a Grecian urn. An air of great solemnity pervaded the gathering.

In the middle of this impressive ceremony, Swope suddenly turned to Democratic Governor Herbert Lehman.

"I think I'll use this opportunity to go down in history," he remarked. "I'll cast my vote for Herbert Hoover. It has never happened before. If I do it here, my place will be secure in the history books."

The humorless Lehman nearly fainted. Beckoning to Ed Flynn, then Secretary of State of New York and head of the New York electors, he warned:

"Ed, Swope here is about to do something terrible. You have got to prevent it at all costs. He is going to cast his vote for Hoover."

"Who is to say that I can't?" replied Swope, basking gayly in the pleasure of the prospect of making history. "What law will I be defying? Am I not a duly elected elector? It is my right as a duly elected elector to vote as I see fit."

"Relax, Herbert," Flynn told Governor Lehman. "He can vote any way he wants. But don't worry. If he votes for Hoover, I won't count it."

Merry-Go-Round

The big, bold State of Texas is in the throes of a hot primary battle including, among other things, the question of who will replace that noted flour salesman, Senator (Pappy) O'Daniel . . . Congressman Lyndon Johnson, the former Navy veteran, is making a strong bid. He's the man who put Truman right on the spot when he discovered that the Government was serenely selling its war plants at the very same time it was worrying about another war . . . A lot of outside money has been flooding Congressman Wright Patman's district to try to defeat him—most of it put up by the real estate interests in Houston. Patman is the Texan who fought hardest for public housing . . . Housing is a hot subject in various Congressional districts, including Dallas, where Bill Cooper, a decorated campaign veteran who enlisted in the Army at $21 a month, is exposing the antihousing record of Congressman Frank Wilson. Wilson calls the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill "socialistic"—perhaps because he isn't a veteran . . . Once again the power lobby is trying to defeat pillar-of-the-party Sam Rayburn—(revenge against his fight for Rural Electrification and the Holding Company Act) . . . Despite being fairly busy at Philadelphia, Sam has found time to help get 25 Democratic Congressmen on the "discharge petition" to force Republicans on the Rules Committee to vote the T-E-W housing bill out of its pigeonhole. Sam says he's made it a practice never to sign a discharge petition, but he's been working back-stage to get housing over the hump. The Republicans may be surprised when they come back next Monday . . . Another vet Congressional candidate who has been plugging housing is live-wire Creekmore Fath of Austin who studied the housing shortage under War Mobilizer Jimmie Byrnes in Washington.

Clark Wants Help

Attorney General Tom Clark is looking for 300 part-time fathers to help take care of his wayward boys.

No ordinary job of baby sitting, Clark's idea is to give each kid at the Federal Reformatory a sponsor, thus help to guide the boys back on the straight-and-narrow.

Clark has some 350 kids under his wing—all convicted of Federal offenses and serving time at Washington's National Training School for Boys. He has taken a personal interest in their cases, but can't give individual attention to each boy—although he will listen to anyone complaining of a "bum rap."

For a closer, heart-to-heart approach, Clark is trying to recruit individual sponsors. Since he worked out the idea two months ago, he has already rounded up 70 foster fathers through civic organizations. Each is responsible for one boy, must visit the boy at least twice a month and take him on an outing once a month.

The Attorney General also has appealed to several exclusive boys' schools to take in boys from the reformatory on scholarships. The plan is to withhold their identity, but give them the same break as boys who came from more fortunate environments. The first youngster to enter such a school under this plan is now receiving private tutorship at the reformatory, and will be quietly admitted to the school this autumn.

Note: Largely because of improper training at reformatories, three fourths of America's criminals started out as juvenile delinquents and stuck to crime.

Hot-Weather Politics

Virginia's Senator Byrd and Gov. William Tuck walked out on the Democratic Convention—but only to get a breath of fresh air. But, forgetting to bring along their coats which contained their convention badges and credentials, the two prominent Virginians were not permitted to return. Thus, the Virginia delegation was left leaderless throughout the nominations for Vice President while Byrd and Tuck argued with convention doormen . . . Maryland's Senator Millard Tydings pulled wires against President Truman at the Philadelphia convention—after Truman's press-conference statement that Eleanor Roosevelt would be acceptable for the vice presidency. Tydings, visiting Les Biffle's office when he heard the news, hit the ceiling, said he would work for Eisenhower.

I Matter Not

It does not matter where I end . . . Or what becomes of me . . . But only what I do on earth . . . To help humanity . . . Because my duty is to live . . . In that unselfish way . . . That will encourage other souls . . . . . To know a better day . . . To do my very utmost by . . . Whatever means I can . . . And prove myself a brother true . . . To every fellow-man . . . My name is not important now . . . Nor anything I do . . . Except as I may draw a smile . . . Or paint a sky of blue . . . For I am just a minor part . . . Of one community . . . And only as I serve my God . . . Will He remember me.
